Counters Israeli U.N. Action Call

. . . IN ITS OWN COMPLAINT

United Nations, N.Y. (AP)—Syria answered Israel's charges of aggression Wednesday by filing a counter-complaint and calling for quick U.N. action to deal with flare-ups along the Syrian-Israeli border.

Like Israel, Syria requested an urgent meeting of the U.N. Security Council to consider the situation. U.N. diplomats expected the 11-nation council to meet either Friday or Monday to hear the two countries.

Syria's complaint was handed to Council President Sivert A. Nielsen of Norway less than 24 hours after Israel filed charges that Syria had repeatedly violated Israel's border and had killed two Israeli farmers Monday night.

One Incident

The Syrian letter, signed by Ambassador Salah Eldine Tarazi, mentioned only one incident, an alleged attack Tuesday by Israeli armored cars.

Tarazi said an Israeli force estimated at 15 armored cars had opened fire with automatic weapons from the Israeli settlement of Al-Dardara in the demilitarized zone at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

"Our forces returned the fire," he said, "but the Israeli force continued to shell our positions, creating a situation which threatens the peace and security of the region.

Flagrant

"This new and flagrant violation of the (1949) armistice agreement and the charter of the United Nations was preceded several days ago by heavy concentration of Israeli troops in the area."

As a result of "this new wave of aggression perpetrated by the Israeli authorities," Tarazi asserted, he was asking for an urgent council meeting. In cases involving complaints from two or more countries, the council's practice has been to lump them together for a single debate.

Israel's complaint said that "for a number of months past there have been repeated and numerous acts of Syrian armed attack from fortified positions just across the border upon Israel civilian activities in the areas adjacent to the border."

Strong Case

Israeli delegate Joel Barromi told a reporter:

"We have a strong case."

As for the Syrian complaint, he said:

"It is devoid of all basis. We had a confirmation from Jerusalem that there is no basis whatever, and it will not be difficult to prove it."

U.N. officials disclosed, meanwhile, that the chief of the U.N. truce supervision organization in Palestine, Lt. Gen. Odd Bull of Norway, had intervened on the scene in an effort to avoid further incidents.

Familiar Names Lead

. . . IN COUNTY SWINE, SHEEP SHOWS

By GLENN KREUSCHER

Familiar names in Lancaster County purebred livestock circles represented by 4-H members led the winners in the swine and sheep shows at the county fair Wednesday before record capacity crowds.

Marlene Retzlaff, 15, of Walton, representing the fifth generation of her well-known livestock family, showed a pair of twin lambs to the championship and reserve championship of the fat market lamb show.

It was a truly family affair for the Retlaffs with two sisters, Cheryl and Karen, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Retzlaff, providing strong competition for their sister.

Familiar Pair

In the swine show another pair of familiar names showed the winning market hogs.

Tom McKay of Roca, made a long list of McKay Hampshire wins longer by adding to his 1962 fair wins with the 1963 Grand Champion market hog. The reserve champion was another Hampshire shown by John Maahs of Rt. 7, Lincoln, representing another family name associated with winning swine.

The trend of familiar names in breed circles continued with the first purple ribbon dairy herd going to Randy Steinhausen of Rt. 1 on his Jersey herd. Other Jersey purples were awarded Edwin Smith of Roca and Robert Hunt of Rt. 8, Lincoln.

Dress Contest

More than 300 girls were competing in the Skirt and Blouse Dress Review held Wednesday and in the Middle and Advanced Dress Review Thursday morning. Winners will be announced Thursday evening at the annual 4-H Purple Ribbon Show that is expected to attract more than 3,000 persons.

The annual baby beef show with 195 entries will be a Thursday fair highlight. The annual livestock auction will be held Friday morning.

A strong increase in entries was reported in adult divisions where some classes increased more than 100 over last year.

Fair officials were citing the entrance of former 4-H club members to the ranks of adult exhibitors as a reason for the increase in open competition events.

Troops Seize Pagodas In Viet Nam Crackdown

Tokyo (AP) — President Ngo Dinh Diem's troops and police seized Buddhist pagodas throughout South Viet Nam Wednesday virtually on the eve of the arrival of the new U.S. ambassador to Saigon, Henry Cabot Lodge. There were hundreds of arrests.

Official sources in Washington said some monks were killed.

The U.S. government, with a heavy military and financial stake in that little Southeast Asian nation, sharply denounced the tactics, which capped a political-religious crisis building since last May.

But high Washington authorities said American help in the South Vietnamese war against Communist guerrillas, which involves 14,000 U.S. military men and expenditures of more than $250 million a year, will continue.

State Of Siege

President Diem, a Roman Catholic who has run the country under a state of emergency since Oct. 19, 1961, firmed up his military control by proclaiming a state of siege. American sources said this state of siege, as carried out, amounted to martial law.

A curfew was imposed. Air traffic was halted. Censorship blacked out normal communications, though details filtered to the outside world circuitously. Elements of the armed forces raided the pagodas, which have been the center since last May of an antigovernment campaign that Buddhist leaders said was intended to win "religious freedom and social justice."

Though the Buddhists are pledged to nonviolence, the government-controlled radio Saigon said the raiders found weapons in pagodas of the capital. It listed a submachine gun, 3 mines, 14 plastic explosive charges and 10 daggers, plus a radio and printing equipment.

Reneging

The U.S. State Department accused Diem of reneging on assurances that his regime was pursuing a policy of reconciliation.

"The United States deplores repressive actions of this nature," it said.

The strongly worded statement resembled a charge in April 1960, by Christian A. Herter, then secretary of state, that the South Korean government of President Syngman Rhee was using "repressive measures unsuited to a free democracy" against student riots. Herter's statement contributed to the pressure that forced Rhee to resign and take up life as an exile in Honolulu.

Assessed

President Kennedy assessed the reports from Saigon with concern. He was brought up to date at a briefing which an aide said was provided by staff members of the White House and state and defense departments.

Diem repeatedly has denied Buddhist charges of religious discrimination, charges that 5 Buddhists backed up by publicly burning themselves to death.

The retiring U.S. ambassador, Frederick E. Nolting, Jr., is reputed to have said he saw no discrimination during his tour of duty in Saigon. This made him a target of Buddhist criticism.

At Once

Lodge, now in Tokyo, got orders to proceed at once to Saigon instead of delaying his arrival to next Monday, as originally planned. U.S. military craft arranged to fly him in because of the suspension of commercial flights.

Lodge told Tokyo newsmen his chief task in Saigon will be the joint fight against the spread of Communism. But there was every indication his first efforts will be directed toward getting some internal settlement.

"Our policy is to help the republic of Viet Nam free itself from Communist terrorism," Lodge said. "Anything that hinders that fight we will oppose. Anything that furthers that fight we will support."

Power Board Studying Precedent Setting Case

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Power Review Board Wednesday was presented with its first conflict over retail customer service, a key case in which it is likely to settle the criteria for future decisions on similar disputes.

At issue is a question of whether Consumers Public Power District or Gering Valley Rural Public Power District will be authorized to serve a new customer near Gering.

To reach the customer—the Rock Island Oil and Refining Company pumping station two miles south of Gering—CPPD would need to extend its present 7.2 KV single phase line in the area by 500 feet.

Consumers Chief Engineer Don Schaufelberger set the cost at $494.75.

Gering Valley would need to extend its 7.2 KV single phase line by 707 feet at a cost which it estimated at $484.25.

The board has 10 days in which to reach a decision.

More important than the individual case itself was the fact that it is likely to set the precedent for the future.

Attorneys for the two power agencies disagreed as to which factors should be accorded the most weight in determining customer disputes.

CPPD attorney Richard Wilson argued that "the only objective factor involved in this case is the length of the line . . . the distance you have to go."

Affect Argued

But Gering Valley attorney Byron Johnson urged the board to consider how its decision would affect potential retail service areas, noting that the new customer is "encompassed" by Gering Valley customers.

Johnson also suggested that the 5-member board consider costs and rates.

"Gering can build the line more economically," he declared.

As for rates, Johnson presented evidence that—based on projected customer load—Gering Valley would provide service to the pumping station at a lower rate than Consumers.

Public Interest

Wilson said the board is directed by law to "look at the public interest, not at the rate to be paid. Rate is not a proper consideration for the board."

To consider rates would also "change past policy" of the State Department of Water Resources, he said.

In other action, the board was advised by the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation that the deadline for Nebraska utilities to apply for additional Bureau power has been extended from Sept. 1 to Oct. 15.

Iraq Gives Troop Support To Syria

Damascus, Syria (AP)—Iraq Wednesday placed its armed forces under Syrian command to support Syria in the armed crisis with Israel.

Syrian Premier Salah Bitar called in the ambassadors of the U.N. Security Council members — including the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France—and gave them Syria's version of the air and land battles that flared along the armistice line Tuesday.

The Security Council is scheduled to debate the issue.

Seek Unity

A foreign ministry spokesman said the Syrian government also sent a telegram to the Arab League in Cairo demanding a unified Arab stand behind Syria to face "all possible eventualities" along the explosive 70-mile demarcation line.

Demanding backing from Arab states, Syria called the border tension and Tuesday's fighting "premeditated Israeli aggression."

President Nasser's United Arab Republic, despite its political feud with Syria, already has pledged support against Israel. Jordan and Saudi Arabia buried their long-standing differences with Damascus to chime in with support.

The Iraqi gesture seemed to signify more moral support than military assistance. More than half Iraq's army and a substantial part of its air force already are committed to war against rebellious Kurdish tribes in northern Iraq.

Hole Nearly Finished

. . . MUST BE WIDENED TO SAVE MINERS

Hazelton, Pa. (AP) — Drilling crews early Thursday neared completion of a 12-inch hole which they plan to ream to 17 inches and possibly 24, to bring 3 trapped miners to the surface of the earth.

By 1:40 a.m., EDT., the giant drill had penetrated to a depth of 265 feet toward the 331 feet site where the miners are trapped.

But at this point operations slowed up a bit because drillers had to be more careful since they were getting closer and wanted to avoid a cave-in.

Told to Watch

Authorities, talking to one of the trapped miners, David Fellin, 58, through a microphone lowered down a 6-inch lifeline hole, told him to watch closely to see if the drill was coming through. Fellin replied he could hear the drilling but was unable to pinpoint the location right at the moment.

The 12-inch drilling, or the first phase of the recovery operation, likely would have been completed Wednesday night had it not been for a 6-hour delay caused by a broken drive shaft on the giant, electrically-operated drill rig.

Workers had started drilling at 5:20 a.m., CST.

Meanwhile, two capsules, in which the men will be pulled to the surface by a winch, will be constructed Thursday at the Louis Pagnotti shop in nearby Pittston. The capsules, designed by Earl Bush, a member of the Independent Miners Association, will be made of rolled steel so they will be smooth and will be pointed at each end to reduce friction.

30 More Hours

Authorities estimated it will take about 30 more hours to ream the escape hole to 17 inches. Then it will be decided, based upon the condition of the men and possibly cave-ins, whether to try to bring them up or ream the hole to 24 inches. Under a 17-inch operation, the men likely would be cramped.

H. Beecher Charmbury, state secretary of mines, also reported that in the event workers get a 17-inch hole through and there is a danger of a further cave-in, lubricating grease will be droped to them. They would strip themselves, and hold their hands over their head. A rope from the surface would be lowered and attached to their safety belts and they would be slowly pulled up by hand. This would be only an emergency procedure.

There were whoops of joy from rescue workers and others around the mine shaft as the big rig began again just after 6 p.m.

Keep Warm

While experts were repairing the rig, David Fellin, 58, one of the trapped men, reported:

"We're doing everything we can think of to keep warm. We're very cold and Hank's hands are beginning to swell."

Hank is Henry Throne, 28, who has been trapped 331 feet underground in a small passageway with Fellin since Tuesday of last week.

The third man is Louis Bova, 42, who is separated from them by debris. His fate remains uncertain, with no reports about him since late Tuesday night.

Fragments Of Body Indicate Pair Dead

. . . MILLIONAIRE FATHER, SON

Stuart, Fla. (AP) — Fragments of a body found floating in Lake Okeechobee indicated Wednesday that a millionaire father and son construction team died in a plane crash, sheriff's officers said.

The fragments were identified by two associates as belonging to Louis Berlanti of St. Petersburg, a construction magnate who had projects throughout this country and in Latin America.

Berlanti and his 32-year-old son, Frederick, had been missing since last Saturday on a flight from Miami to Tampa. Sheriff's deputies said they presumed the son also died in the crash.

Pieces of limbs—including two hands with cuffs and gold cufflinks—have been found the past 3 days. A piece of fabric identified as part of the plane was also picked up from the lake's murky waters. A rivet apparently from the plane's fuselage was imbedded in one arm.

Berlanti, 54, was born on a farm in Connecticut and worked his way up from the bottom of the construction business. He built turnpikes, bridges, housing developments and sewer projects throughout the east.

Along with the Murchison brothers of Texas, he bought 2,000 acres of submerged land in Boca Ciega Bay at St. Petersburg in 1959 and started a plush housing development. He also was planning a housing development in Venezuela and was a member of the development board of Haiti.

He won a judgment of $8 million against the Fidel Castro government in federal court after the Cubans took over a housing development he had started. He was president of the Berlanti Construction Co., and the Berlanti Overseas Corp.

The sheriff's department of Martin County, which borders the eastern shore of Lake Okeechobee, said search for the plane's debris would be enlarged Thursday. However, criminal investigator Tom Wyatt said the chances of finding the hulk were slim.

'Wiggle' Cleared

Rock Island, Ill. (AP)—A 25-year-old woman arrested last week by police who said she "wiggled and made obscene movements" while walking on a downtown street was freed Wednesday when the charge was dismissed.

Betty Jane Allsup, who was once billed in taverns as; a "twisting barmaid," had been charged with disorderly conduct. But Police Magistrate John Cunningham dismissed the charge on a motion by the woman's attorney that there was insufficient evidence.

However, Judge Cunningham warned the woman to stay out of Rock Island. She lives in Davenport.

Miss Allsup had contended she was not arrested on the street, but at the cosmetics counter of a drugstore. She said she was wearing a sheath dress, slitted at each knee.

After her case was dismissed, Miss Allsup commented:

"I believe justice was done. I think this was a victory against tyranny."

NU To Train 50 More For Peace Corps

Washington (AP) — A Peace Corps contract has been awarded to the University of Nebraska to train 50 volunteers in agricultural extension and home economics, Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., was informed Wednesday.

The training will begin Aug. 31 and will be completed Nov. 16. The volunteers will go to Colombia, South America. Amount of the contract was not immediately available.

(Training will also include basic civil engineering and an accelerated Spanish course, NU officials said.

(Deon Axthelm, coordinator of the project and assistant professor of ag extension, is now in Colombia, planning for the training session.)

Workers had started drilling at 5:20 a.m., CST.

Meanwhile, two capsules, in which the men will be pulled to the surface by a winch, will be constructed Thursday at the Louis Pagnotti shop in nearby Pittston. The capsules, designed by Earl Bush, a member of the Independent Miners Association, will be made of rolled steel so they will be smooth and will be pointed at each end to reduce friction.

30 More Hours

Authorities estimated it will take about 30 more hours to ream the escape hole to 17 inches. Then it will be decided, based upon the condition of the men and possibly cave-ins, whether to try to bring them up or ream the hole to 24 inches. Under a 17-inch operation, the men likely would be cramped.

H. Beecher Charmbury, state secretary of mines, also reported that in the event workers get a 17-inch hole through and there is a danger of a further cave-in, lubricating grease will be droped to them. They would strip themselves, and hold their hands over their head. A rope from the surface would be lowered and attached to their safety belts and they would be slowly pulled up by hand. This would be only an emergency procedure.

There were whoops of joy from rescue workers and others around the mine shaft as the big rig began again just after 6 p.m.

Keep Warm

While experts were repairing the rig, David Fellin, 58, one of the trapped men, reported:

"We're doing everything we can think of to keep warm. We're very cold and Hank's hands are beginning to swell."

Hank is Henry Throne, 28, who has been trapped 331 feet underground in a small passageway with Fellin since Tuesday of last week.

The third man is Louis Bova, 42, who is separated from them by debris. His fate remains uncertain, with no reports about him since late Tuesday night.

NU To Train 50 More For Peace Corps

Washington (AP) — A Peace Corps contract has been awarded to the University of Nebraska to train 50 volunteers in agricultural extension and home economics, Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., was informed Wednesday.

The training will begin Aug. 31 and will be completed Nov. 16. The volunteers will go to Colombia, South America. Amount of the contract was not immediately available.

(Training will also include basic civil engineering and an accelerated Spanish course, NU officials said.

(Deon Axthelm, coordinator of the project and assistant professor of ag extension, is now in Colombia, planning for the training session.)

'Wiggle' Cleared

Rock Island, Ill. (AP)—A 25-year-old woman arrested last week by police who said she "wiggled and made obscene movements" while walking on a downtown street was freed Wednesday when the charge was dismissed.

Betty Jane Allsup, who was once billed in taverns as a "twisting barmaid," had been charged with disorderly conduct. But Police Magistrate John Cunningham dismissed the charge on a motion by the woman's attorney that there was insufficient evidence.

However, Judge Cunningham warned the woman to stay out of Rock Island. She lives in Davenport.

Miss Allsup had contended she was not arrested on the street, but at the cosmetics counter of a drugstore. She said she was wearing a sheath dress, slitted at each knee.

After her case was dismissed, Miss Allsup commented:

Dollars Recovered

Perth, Australia (AP) — A number of ancient Dutch silver dollars have been recovered from the wreck of a Dutch merchant ship Batavia which foundered 334 years ago on Abrolhos Island, 400 miles north of Perth. An expedition to the wreckage also found a cannon and the ship's anchor.

Pentagon Scientist Rebukes Teller

DISAGREES WITH BAN OBJECTIONS

Washington (AP)—The Pentagon's top military scientist disagreed Wednesday with just about every major objection raised against the limited nuclear test ban treaty by Dr. Edward Teller and some Air Force generals.

Dr. Harold Brown, defense director of research and engineering, told a Senate hearing on ratification of the pact that most objections raised have nothing to do with nuclear testing. And he gave these views:

—"I feel rather strongly" that the Russians are not ahead of the United States in developing a missile killer.

—The treaty "will not seriously hamper the development of" an antimissile system, but will slow it down.

—Teller is wrong in saying Soviet Premier Khrushchev wants the test ban now—after previously rejecting it—because of knowledge gained in the recent Russian series of high yield atmospheric tests.

—"I know that we have" had more effective nuclear tests than the Soviet Union.

—He is confident that this country has been spending more money and effort in nuclear developments than the Russians.

Not Worth It

—Even if the Russians cheat to the maximum extent possible without detection it would "appear not to be worth the effort involved" in the near future and may never become attractive at the low yields that would have to be used. Brown said upper atmospheric testing "is quite vulnerable to detection by intelligence means and could probably not be chanced under a test ban."

—Backed President Kennedy's denial of Teller's charge that politics—fear of public distaste for testing forced reduction in the number of U.S. atmospheric tests in 1961 and 1962. Brown said it was simply the pressure of "good management" to make useful tests and "I helped to exert it."

The 36-year-old Brown testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee — with armed services and atomic energy committee members present—one day after Teller gave an almost opposite picture on most points.

Antimissile

Particularly Teller expressed belief that Russia has forged ahead in the antimissile field and he questioned whether the United States could perfect such a weapon under the pact to ban all except underground tests.

Teller, now 55, guided development of the hydrogen bomb and was Brown's boss at the University of California Radiation Laboratory at Livermore at one time. Brown succeeded Teller as director there in 1960.

Brown described Teller as a "dear personal friend" but said of Teller's contention that the treaty would undermine the capability of the U.S. retaliatory capacity:

"On this matter we disagree."

Not All

In reply to a question by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Brown said he had made scientific data and intelligence available to Teller but also had some not available to his ex-boss.

Brown said he believes his experience as director of research and engineering for the military is broader than that of Teller, who has spent years in nuclear and weapons development.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., noted that some top Air Force witnesses have indicated opposition to the treaty in varying degrees and asked if there is "anything prejudicial" in the pact to their service and its mission. Brown replied:

"I wouldn't say there are not things they want to find out that they can't under the treaty, if they want to consider it prejudicial. I've used the criteria of national security, and I do not consider the treaty prejudicial to national security."

Disagreed

Brown disagreed with Teller and some Air Force officers that atmospheric tests are required to develop a missile defense system, including effects on hardened missile sites. He said most of the work can go ahead with underground tests and improved system designing.

"There will be some uncertainty no matter how many atmospheric tests we conduct," the Pentagon scientist added.

Brown said tests made already have reduced some uncertainties about the effect of enemey missiles on hardened missile sites but "the Soviet Union appears to be in the same situation." The tests, he said, indicate that if an oncoming missile hits close enough it will destroy a hardened site and that is why they have been dispersed.

Goldy Wrong

In an exchange with Brown, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., complained that the Air Force had been turned down in its request to try a high yield test against a missile site, but was confined to low yields. Brown replied this was not accurate and said "a study was proposed and a study is being carried out."

Brown said evidence is strong that the high megaton explosions conducted by the Russians in 1961 were weapons tests and not tests of the effects of such explosions on missile sites.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev Deals Chinese Double Blow

Belgrade, Yugoslavaia, (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev dealt a double blow against the Red Chinese Wednesday.

On the first full day of his 15-day visit to Yugoslavia, the Soviet leader openly ridiculed Peking economic concepts and praised a form of Yugoslav worker-factory management long denounced by Communist China. Stalin also reviled it.

Khrushchev also threw in lavish praise for the late Henry Ford.

Khrushchev's double blast came in the wake of a Moscow broadside denouncing the Chinese for not relying on the nuclear protection of the Soviet Union.

Motor Works

The platform for Khrushchev's attack was Yugoslavia's big motor factory at Rakovica, outside Belgrade. He drove there with his wife, Nina; Yugoslav Vice President Alexander Rankovic, and members of the Soviet party who came with Khrushchev from Moscow.

Outside the factory, Khrushchev stood on a platform under a brilliant sun and delivered a lively talk to the workers.

Inside the factory, in a board room meeting with plant managers, the Soviet Premier got in his jabs at the Red Chinese.

Pooh-Poohed

He pooh-poohed Peking's efforts to go it alone in economic development, quipping:

"They say we are going to rely on our own resources—then they write to us for credits."

"Their motto," he added, "is 'our resources and your credits.' "

He added, however, that in the entire Communist world only China, besides the Soviet Union, has the manpower and resources potential for large scale mass production of all products.

This was taken as an obvious rebuke to other Communist countries straining for more individual economic development.

In his talk he paid tribute to Ford, whose automobile assembly line techniques opened the way for America's modern day mass production economy.

"Ford demonstrated how to do it," said Khrushchev. "We learned from Ford and we are not ashamed to admit it. If we don't learn mass production methods, then no amount of curses and slogans will help us win."

Isolation

In his blast against Peking, he criticized the Red Chinese for "locking themselves behind their frontiers" in isolation from the rest of the Communist Bloc, and he indicated Red China acted like a hypocrite, shunning the West but using the Soviet Union to get Western goods.

He said Red China sought such scarce raw materials as oil and cotton from Russia.

"But we ourselves buy on capitalist markets and then sell to our socialist countries," he said. "If the rule of equality for all were to apply then we could say: 'Go and buy for yourselves'."

In a move certain to outrage the Communist Chinese even more, Khrushchev announced a radical shift from former Soviet opposition to Yugoslavia's experiment in workers self-management councils.

Granted Voice

Council members, elected by fellow workers, are legally granted voice in management of their own plants and factories with the constitutional power to overrule management.

The councils are a part of President Tito's de-centralized kind of communism Red China denounces as a total betrayal of Marxism.

Russia Tells China Ban 'Positive Gain'

Moscow (AP) — The Soviet Union told Red China Wednesday the limited nuclear test ban was a positive gain for communism because it would perpetuate the liquidation of the one-time American nuclear monopoly, and freeze each side's nuclear power.

A 20,000-word official government statement derided Communist Chinese charges that signing of the treaty marked a Soviet "capitulation" to the United States as the words of "simpletons." It told the Chinese they would do well to improve their economic situation and forget about nuclear weapons.

It asserted the treaty was "a victory of the peaceloving forces"—this is, the Soviet Union.

First Time

For the first time the Kremlin admitted that it had followed a zig-zag policy — the statement called it "non-fossilized, flexible and realistic"—on banning tests according to particular Soviet nuclear needs at any given moment.

The statement, in reply to the Aug. 15 attack on Soviet policy by Peking, said that for years it would have been against Soviet interests to have a test ban unless the United States agreed to destroy all its nuclear weapons. This, of course, the United States refused to do.

But now, it added, "with the new balance of strength, the nuclear test ban would perpetuate not the American nuclear monopoly, but the fact of its liquidation; not the unilateral advantage of the imperialist camp but the new balance of strength in the area of nuclear weapons."

Refused

The Kremlin accused Peking of opposing the treaty because the Soviet Union had refused to give it a nuclear capability.

This, the statement said, would have been foolish because "it would be naive, to say the least, to assume that it is possible to conduct one policy in the West and another in the East; to fight with one hand against the arming of West Germany with nuclear weapons, against the spreading of nuclear weapons in the world, and to supply these weapons to China with the other hand."

It charged that anger over this Soviet decision was at the root of Chinese attacks on Moscow policy.

BAD LUCK RODE WITH McMAHON

Falls City (AP) — Sunday just wasn't a good day for Patrick McMahon.

In the afternoon Fred E. Allen backed out from a curb and into the path of Mr. McMahon's car. Minor damage resulted.

Sunday evening the car he was driving collided headon with one driven by Jack L. Walker, Dawson, near the exit of a drive-in theater. Both cars were damaged extensively.

Railroad Talk Cut Off Again

Washington (AP) — Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz Wednesday acknowledged a new breakdown in the railroad work rules negotiations and he said there is no immediate prospect of reconciliation.

Wirtz told newsmen that an exchange of versions of an arbitration agreement, written by the carriers and the unions, "left significant differences" in the definition of issues for arbitration, and procedures to be followed.

"So far, it has proved impossible to reconcile these differences," Wirtz said.

He said a joint meeting of two sides late Wednesday was adjourned at his request for them to make additional efforts to reconcile their differences.

The secretary said he will keep in touch with the parties, but has set no schedule for any further meetings.

The secretary's comments followed disclosure earlier Wednesday that the dispute was still stalled on dead center. This became apparent after both sides and Wirtz met with 3 members of the Senate Commerce Committee.

The committee is now expected to make a decision Thursday whether to go ahead with anti-strike legislation.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., the commerce committee chairman, said after the joint session:

"The situation stands just about where it was."

The senators called the session to determine "where the parties stood" on averting a nationwide strike threatened for Aug. 29

That is the day the railroads say they will impose new work rules eliminating some 32,000 firemen's jobs, among others, which they say are unnecessary. The 5 on-train unions say the jobs are needed for safety and they will strike if the rules are imposed.

Police Jail Negroes In Plaquemine

Plaquemine, La. (AP) — Negroes staged demonstrations Wednesday night at the city hall and the Iberville Parish (county) courthouse despite a federal judge's order to end racial protests.

More than 70 Negroes were arrested at the courthouse in this Mississippi River town, where racial troubles began 3 nights ago.

Another group of 100 protested in front of city hall.

One of the integration leaders arrested Wednesday night was Lavert Taylor, a Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee worker.

The arrests were made after Plaquemine Police Chief Dennis Songy told the Negroes to go home. He told them their protest was in violation of a federal judge's order banning racial demonstrations.

U.S. Dist. Judge E. Gordon West halted his vacation to sign the sweeping restraining order earlier Wednesday night at Baton Rouge, the state capitol which is 20 miles upstream from Plaquemine.

The order was requested by parish and city officials. It followed numerous demonstrations in Plaquemines Wednesday.

Every demonstrator spotted by police was arrested, including 33 Negro children who staged a "freedom sing" at the courthouse.

Judge West's restraining order said it was effective immediately "without notice." It was aimed at the congress of racial equality, "John Doe and Mary Doe and others acting in concert with them." It prohibits marches, freedom rallies and all other types of integration activity.

About 85 were arrested during the daylight demonstrations. Most were charged with disturbing the peace. Those who refused to walk to police cars were also charged with resisting arrest and picked up and carried to jail.

Racial trouble began here Monday night when state police broke up a march on city hall with volleys of tear gas.

Business Index Discloses Gain

...Despite Slight Dip In Retail Sales

Nebraska retail sales in June dipped slightly from last year's level but general business activity was up substantially, according to the August issue of Business in Nebraska, a publication of the University of Nebraska's Bureau of Business Research.

Compared with June a year ago, retail sales dropped a half of one per cent and were off .4 of a per cent from May. Minor weaknesses in hard-goods sales accounted for the drop. Soft-goods sales generally held firm. Sales of home and farm equipment, dairy goods, and luxury items showed gains but sales in automobiles, auto goods and service, building materials and food items were off.

Several outstate cities showed good retail sales records in June, compared with a year ago: Beatrice up 10%, York 9.2, South Sioux City 8.2, Sidney 5.3.

In the unadjusted city business index, a general measurement of business activity, each of the 21 Nebraska cities included showed gains over a year ago and the state average was up 6.2. The index is composed of bank debits, building activities, retail sales, electricity and gas consumed, water pumped, postal receipts, and newspaper advertising.

The index cities and their percentage of gain: Sidney 24; Kearney 18; Chadron 16.8; Holdrege 15.6; Broken Bow 9.9; Scottsbluff 8.4; Falls City 8; Hastings 7.9; Columbus, North Platte, Omaha, and York 6.6; Norfolk 5.1; Alliance 4.4; Grand Island 4; Nebraska City 2.8; Fremont 2.5; Lincoln 1.9; and McCook, South Sioux City, and Fairbury 1.

TITAN SHOT IMPORTANT TO GEMINI

Cape Canaveral, Fla. (AP)—A thundering Titan 2 missile streaked 5,800 miles down the Atlantic range Wednesday on a successful military test flight which had important bearings on the Project Gemini man-in-space program.

Manned Spacecraft Center officials and astronaut Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom were interested observers as the Titan 2 roared aloft, demonstrating its basic soundness as an intercontinental range war rocket and for its assignment as the booster for the two-man-Gemini orbiting teams.

Grissom, who made a sub-orbital rocket flight two years ago, is liaison man between the 16-man astronaut group and the overall Gemini planning program, which is aiming for an initial unmanned flight in December and a manned orbital flight in about 14 months.

Space officials have been concerned recently about problems in both stages of Titan 2 which could seriously affect the Gemini project.

Judge Overrules Move To Dismiss Brewer's Charge

Council Bluffs (AP)—A former mental patient was bound over to the grand jury Wednesday after a preliminary hearing on a charge of murder.

Municipal Judge Allan Ardell acted in the case of Ronald Wayne Brewer, 23, after overruling a defense motion for dismissal of the charge.

The defense contended the state failed to show premeditation in the fatal shooting of Lawrence Ray, 22, apartment house manager, the night of Aug. 13.

Brewer, who was held in the county jail without bond, has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

The only witness called at Wednesday's hearing was Lloyd Ray, twin brother of the slain man.

Police said Brewer had tried to gain entrance to an apartment occupied by a girl friend and her parents. The apartment was in the building Lawrence Ray managed.

Officials said Brewer had been a patient at a Nebraska mental hospital.

Hastings One Of Two Sites Considered

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Hastings — The Hastings Naval Ammunition Depot (NAD) is strong in the running as one of two Midwest sites being considered for a satellite communications terminal.

That announcement came from a meeting of Navy brass here Wednesday headed by NAD Commander J. L. Sperandio. Also attending as a representative of the Defense Communications Agency was Charles A. Krauss of Ft. Monmouth, N.J.

"No decision will be made, however, until an evaluation has been completed on all the sites which have been surveyed," commented Krauss. The civilian space employe has made 4 previous trips to the NAD facility.

It was noted that Hastings and one undisclosed location remain of 63 military installations originally considered throughout the Midwest. Eleven had been chosen for additional study by a preliminary survey team.

Both Krauss and Commander Sperandio emphasized, however, that the DCA purpose of the current visit was only "to re-emphasize its desires to continue holding the land for possible use." They declined to state the exact area of an earlier DCA land hold order, but a Washington spokesman has indicated approximately 1,000 acres might be needed.

Interviewed following the closed Hastings meeting, they also shied from predictions as to the extent of personnel requirements. They noted that even after a site decision comes, work probably will not begin for a year.

POET WOULD BURN HIMSELF, BUT IT RAINED

Bastia, Corsica (UPI) — Ferdinand Lop Corse, a poet, stood in the middle of the town square Wednesday and announced he would burn himself to death in protest over Corsica's economic troubles.

He drenched his clothing with gasoline and took out a book of matches.

At that point, it started to rain.

Corse postponed the self-immolation and went home.

Frontier Profits Double July '62

By The Associated Press

Frontier Airlines has reported a favorable financial picture for July which President Lewis Dymond said is the direct result of faster aircraft and a program of special fare inducements.

Operating profit for July was $153,505 compared with $74,481 in July 1962, Frontier said in a statement issued at its Denver headquarters.

For the first 7 months operating profits totaled $1,068,109, as compared with $267,557 for the comparable period last year.

Retained earnings were $68,009 after provision for taxes, interest and profit sharing in July as compared with earnings of $43,453 in the same month of 1962.

Under terms of the profit sharing formula established by the Civil Aeronautics Board, Frontier has this year set aside $202,000 to be returned to the CAB.

The line has provided newer, faster, 44-passenger convair 340 aircraft over a majority of its routes, Dymond said.

Wrong Street Torn Up For Paving Work

Alliance (AP) — City officials have assured residents of paving district No. 71 that it was all a mistake and their street will be returned to its normal status — gravel surfacing.

Residents of the district were surprised when contractors started blading up their street preparatory to paving. The property owners had petitioned against formation of the district.

A quick check with city officials disclosed that a clerical mistake had been made in the city clerk's office and the city not only halted the work, but promised the street would be restored.

Students, Cows In Shelter 2 Weeks

Arthur E. Anderson Jr., 23, Genoa, left, and Dennis DeFrain, 20, Fairbury, hold one of the 35 cows with which they spent two weeks in a nuclear fallout shelter in an experiment conducted by Omaha dairyman J. Gordon Roberts at Elkhorn. The boys "preferred being busy with cows to being bored with people in a shelter," Roberts declared. The two University of Nebraska agriculture students said that boredom and monotonous food were their biggest problems.

Fast-Growing, Lean Cattle Big Problem, Feeders Told

Concord (AP) — "There are beef cattle in Nebraska breeding herds that could weigh 1,000 pounds at a year of age, carry no more than fourtenths of an inch of outside fat with less than 3% kidney fat," Dr. L. J. Sumption, University of Nebraska animal scientist, said here Wednesday.

"But a shortage of cattle capable of this rapid rate of muscle growth, simply faster-growing lean cattle, is a major problem for Nebraska's cattle industry," Sumption explained.

He talked at the Northeast Nebraska Experiment Station Feeder's Day program.

Because Nebraska has cattle which are suitable raw material to meet these standards, breeders have the opportunity to make the state a leader in the production of these desirable, fast-growing, lean cattle, Sumption said.

He said the university's carcass research program is producing the essential facts to develop beef improvement programs, while the recently-organized Nebraska Beef Cattle Improvement Association is providing the necessary organizational strength to help the producer initiate individual herd improvement.

Mineral or vitamin supplements may be more valuable than protein supplements in balancing some rations, according to Walter Tolman, station animal husbandman, who reported on beef cattle feeding trials nearing completion in which steers have gained more on rations fortified with additional minerals and vitamins than on added-protein diets.

Cattle included in the experiment were fed high protein corn and four pounds of alfalfa hay. Ordinarily, Tolman pointed out, corn is too low in protein for most animal needs, and the need to correct protein deficiency in livestock rations has long been known.

Scientists In Russia Announce Discovery Of Proton Radioactivity

Moscow (AP) — Soviet scientists Wednesday announced discovery of proton radioactivity, thus adding one more type to the 5 types of known radioactivity.

The announcement was made by the official Soviet news agency Tass, which listed the other types as alpha radioactivity, beta radioactivity, gamma radioactivity, spontaneous fission and emission of delayed neutrons.

The discovery was made at the Dubna Research Center near Moscow by a group of scientists headed by Georgy Flerov, Tass said.

Torrington Man Pleads Innocent

Torrington, Wyo. (AP) — Loyd J. Edmondson, 37, Torrington, pleaded innocent to a negligent homicide charge in the June 11 auto accident which killed one person and injured 6.

Edmondson is accused in the death of Ronald Guzman, 17, of Morrill, Neb. Guzman died several hours after the car in which he was riding was in collision with Edmondson's near Torrington.

District Judge Allan Pearson continued Edmondson's bond at $1,000. No date has been set for the trial.

LABOR UNION GIVES $5,000 TO CREIGHTON

Omaha (UPI) — Creighton University officials announced it has received $5,000 from the Teamsters Joint Council No. 81 of Nebraska and Western Iowa to expand and support a program of loans to deserving students.

The gift will be made in twice-a-year installments of $500.

Creighton's president, the Very Rev. H. W. Linn, S. J., said to his knowledge the gift is "unique in labor's support of higher education."

More than 13% of Creighton full-time students were aided in the 1962-63 school year through University loan programs. They borrowed a total of $206,059.

Surviving Pilot Saw Crash Coming; Ordered Crew Out

Omaha (AP) — "There was a real grinding noise-like hitting a brick wall."

That was the way Capt. Richard Smiley, 29, Arlington, Kan., described the collision of two B47 jet bombers flying at 27,000 feet above Irwin, Iowa, Monday. Three crewmen parachuted to safety, two were killed and a 3rd is missing and presumed dead.

Captain Smiley, commander of one of the aircraft, said in an interview at Offutt Air Force Base Hospital Wednesday the second plane was above his, and he could see they were going to hit. He was thrown to the left and tried to get at the controls as the plane started to spiral. He said he reached the alarm bell with difficulty because of gravity forces, and ordered the crew to bail out.

Then he said he tried once more to regain control of the plane but there was "no response. The airplane was done flying."

"I knew there was not much time left," he continued. "My ejection seat worked perfectly. When the chute opened there was not as much impact as I expected. It seemed like a long time until I landed."

Capt. Allan M. Ramsey Jr., 32, Brainbridge, Ga., navigator on the plane, had trouble getting out. The explosion supposed to blow the hatch in the nose of the plane merely cracked it open 3 or 4 inches. "I could see daylight below," he said. Ramsey said he kicked a box under his table and "This must have jarred the hatch loose."

"The next thing I remember is the chute opening. That was one of the best sights I have ever seen," he said.

The 3rd survivor, Capt. Richard M. Snowden, 29, Clarkston, Wash., was reported in good condition but because of burns he suffered, he was not allowed to participate in the hospital interviews.

Meanwhile, hundreds of persons combed the hilly farm country near Irwin again Wednesday for one of the missing fliers, Capt. Leonard A. Theis, 29, of San Fernando, Calif. It hasn't been determined whether he bailed out or was trapped in his plane. He was co-pilot on the plane piloted by Lt. Col William W. Thomas, 44, Syracuse, N.Y., who lost his life in the crash. Capt. Peter J. Macchei, 29, of Belleville, N.J., co-pilot on the other plane, also was killed.

Students, Cows In Shelter 2 Weeks

Arthur E. Anderson Jr., 23, Genoa, left, and Dennis DeFrain, 20, Fairbury, hold one of the 35 cows with which they spent two weeks in a nuclear fallout shelter in an experiment conducted by Omaha dairyman J. Gordon Roberts at Elkhorn. The boys "preferred being busy with cows to being bored with people in a shelter," Roberts declared. The two University of Nebraska agriculture students said that boredom and monotonous food were their biggest problems.

Fast-Growing, Lean Cattle Big Problem, Feeders Told

Concord (AP) — "There are beef cattle in Nebraska breeding herds that could weigh 1,000 pounds at a year of age, carry no more than fourtenths of an inch of outside fat with less than 3% kidney fat," Dr. L. J. Sumption, University of Nebraska animal scientist, said here Wednesday.

"But a shortage of cattle capable of this rapid rate of muscle growth, simply faster-growing lean cattle, is a major problem for Nebraska's cattle industry," Sumption explained.

He talked at the Northeast Nebraska Experiment Station Feeder's Day program.

Because Nebraska has cattle which are suitable raw material to meet these standards, breeders have the opportunity to make the state a leader in the production of these desirable, fast-growing, lean cattle, Sumption said.

He said the university's carcass research program is producing the essential facts to develop beef improvement programs, while the recently-organized Nebraska Beef Cattle Improvement Association is providing the necessary organizational strength to help the producer initiate individual herd improvement.

Mineral or vitamin supplements may be more valuable than protein supplements in balancing some rations, according to Walter Tolman, station animal husbandman, who reported on beef cattle feeding trials nearing completion in which steers have gained more on rations fortified with additional minerals and vitamins than on added-protein diets.

Cattle included in the experiment were fed high protein corn and four pounds of alfalfa hay. Ordinarily, Tolman pointed out, corn is too low in protein for most animal needs, and the need to correct protein deficiency in livestock rations has long been known.

Scientists In Russia Announce Discovery Of Proton Radioactivity

Moscow (AP) — Soviet scientists Wednesday announced discovery of proton radioactivity, thus adding one more type to the 5 types of known radioactivity.

The announcement was made by the official Soviet news agency Tass, which listed the other types as alpha radioactivity, beta radioactivity, gamma radioactivity, spontaneous fission and emission of delayed neutrons.

The discovery was made at the Dubna Research Center near Moscow by a group of scientists headed by Georgy Flerov, Tass said.

Torrington Man Pleads Innocent

Torrington, Wyo. (AP) — Loyd J. Edmondson, 37, Torrington, pleaded innocent to a negligent homicide charge in the June 11 auto accident which killed one person and injured 6.

Edmondson is accused in the death of Ronald Guzman, 17, of Morrill, Neb. Guzman died several hours after the car in which he was riding was in collision with Edmondson's near Torrington.

District Judge Allan Pearson continued Edmondson's bond at $1,000. No date has been set for the trial.

LABOR UNION GIVES $5,000 TO CREIGHTON

Omaha (UPI) — Creighton University officials announced it has received $5,000 from the Teamsters Joint Council No. 81 of Nebraska and Western Iowa to expand and support a program of loans to deserving students.

The gift will be made in twice-a-year installments of $500.

Creighton's president, the Very Rev. H. W. Linn, S. J., said to his knowledge the gift is "unique in labor's support of higher education."

More than 13% of Creighton full-time students were aided in the 1962-63 school year through University loan programs. They borrowed a total of $206,059.

Surviving Pilot Saw Crash Coming; Ordered Crew Out

Omaha (AP) — "There was a real grinding noise-like hitting a brick wall."

That was the way Capt. Richard Smiley, 29, Arlington, Kan., described the collision of two B47 jet bombers flying at 27,000 feet above Irwin, Iowa, Monday. Three crewmen parachuted to safety, two were killed and a 3rd is missing and presumed dead.

Captain Smiley, commander of one of the aircraft, said in an interview at Offutt Air Force Base Hospital Wednesday the second plane was above his, and he could see they were going to hit. He was thrown to the left and tried to get at the controls as the plane started to spiral. He said he reached the alarm bell with difficulty because of gravity forces, and ordered the crew to bail out.

Then he said he tried once more to regain control of the plane but there was "no response. The airplane was done flying."

"I knew there was not much time left," he continued.

"My ejection seat worked perfectly. When the chute opened there was not as much impact as I expected. It seemed like a long time until I landed."

Capt. Allan M. Ramsey Jr., 32, Brainbridge, Ga., navigator on the plane, had trouble getting out. The explosion supposed to blow the hatch in the nose of the plane merely cracked it open 3 or 4 inches.

"I could see daylight below," he said. Ramsey said he kicked a box under his table and "This must have jarred the hatch loose."

"The next thing I remember is the chute opening. That was one of the best sights I have ever seen," he said.

The 3rd survivor, Capt. Richard M. Snowden, 29, Clarkston, Wash., was reported in good condition but because of burns he suffered, he was not allowed to participate in the hospital interviews.

Meanwhile, hundreds of persons combed the hilly farm country near Irwin again Wednesday for one of the missing fliers, Capt. Leonard A. Theis, 29, of San Fernando, Calif. It hasn't been determined whether he bailed out or was trapped in his plane. He was co-pilot on the plane piloted by Lt. Col William W. Thomas, 44, Syracuse, N.Y., who lost his life in the crash. Capt. Peter J. Macchei, 29, of Belleville, N.J., co-pilot on the other plane, also was killed.

A Look At Alternatives

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

In answering the criticism of nuclear physicist Dr. Edward Teller against the nuclear test ban treaty, President Kennedy made two major points. He noted first of all that such criticism is not necessarily the deciding factor in the issue. He seemed to be assuring the nation that disagreement on the test ban treaty with Russia should cause no more alarm than would disagreement on other subjects of national and international importance.

Also, the President asked the nation to consider the alternatives to the test ban treaty. This is where the feelings of Dr. Teller come into conflict with those of a majority of the people of this nation. What Dr. Teller has said in effect is that there is no way out for us in our conflict with communism other than that which we might find through the force of arms. President Kennedy has been asked if he can "prove" there are no side agreements with Russia in connection with the nuclear test ban treaty. The request is an insulting one and, of course, cannot be met.

Conflict Of Views

Likewise, no one can prove that Dr. Teller is right or wrong. In this matter of the test ban treaty and all of our relations with Russia, the best we can do is rely upon our own ability to figure out each and every situation as we become involved in it. There never has been and never will be any guarantee of complete and absolute safety from aggression by one nation against another.

It is quite possible that Russia has some sinister motive in coming to a test ban agreement with the United States and that we could end up sorry in the long-run that we had been a party to the agreement. Again, it is impossible to guarantee that Russia will keep the treaty or that she will not take advantage of it in some way or another.

But in the matter of the alternatives, there also are no guarantees. If we continued the testing of nuclear bombs, there is no guarantee that we would develop a weapon superior to that which Russia might produce. There is no guarantee that we would ever come up with a defense against the ballistic missile or that Russia would not do so first. There is no guarantee today that we will beat Russia to a landing on the moon but we appear to be engaged in the contest just the same. The important thing to understand in all of this is that there is no avenue of action for us down which we will find any guarantee. If we must have a guarantee of our safety or of victory over communism, then we are defeated in the very beginning because there simply is no such thing as such a guarantee.

The question, then, is what path appears to offer the greatest safety and security for our people. This does not mean that we seek our lives at the expense of our freedom, that we accept any ideology or any principle just for the privilege of being alive. When we seek our safety and security, we do so within the framework of known essentials. The safety we seek is the safety to continue to work and live as we have done throughout the history of our nation. Our safety constitutes our form of government, our economic system and our social order. We would find no safety, quite obviously, in the destruction of all that for which we stand today, but rather, would find only our complete defeat.

It is the safety, the preservation of our way of life that is sought through the test ban agreement, even granting that it cannot be absolutely certain that this is what it will do. The theory advanced by Dr. Teller appears all too fatalistic to have any appeal. It is based on a premise of force and if force is all that is left in the world today, then even what we have and what we stand for aren't much worth protecting, anyway.

Certainly we intend to maintain a military position, including space, which we consider equal to or superior to that which is held by any other nation of the world. We do not intend to become a strict pacifistic nation. But what is the purpose of this strength? Its purpose is to withstand a threat from without, not to exploit others from within ourselves.

To brand the test ban treaty as an impossibility is to say that we shall never find peace short of war and we doubt that this is the place where the American people want to stand if they can avoid it. If the nuclear test ban treaty proves to be a failure, it is doubtful that we will have lost very much. On the other hand, should it prove to be a success, it offers the world the hope for peace without conflict that so many generations have sought but never realized. Even if we never realize it, we are not ready to say that it is time to abandon the search.

Everything To Gain

All the passing of time does is make more incumbent upon us the exertion of all our skill and energy toward a solution to world conflicts that falls short of armed conflict. Unfortunately, we need never fear that armed conflict will not be around for our use when and if it is the only choice left for us.

It Had To Be Done

Any elected public official worth his salt will wince a little at the thought of increasing the tax levy. There are services which the official knows are needed and wanted by the public and it is his responsibility to see that such services are provided.

But against this need or demand he always considers the matter of full public understanding of the cost of government. It is one thing to want a service and quite another to pay for it. The public doesn't really expect to have the service for free but the public, also, does not always fully appreciate that which he gets for his tax dollar.

Thus, the mayor and City Council, didn't like the idea of adding about $135,000 to this year's city budget for a control program against Dutch elm disease. The added funds will make the city's tax levy go up, pushing the increase even beyond the one mill point.

Yet, there really was little else the mayor and council could do in the matter. Without a control program, the elms would surely die and the city would spend as much removing them as it will in controlling the disease. And without any control program, you end up minus some 40,000 trees.

With control you spend about the same amount of money but have the big advantage of keeping the trees. Even if the elms could be removed for nothing, the control program would still be well worth its cost. Lincoln with all its elms gone simply would not be the same city it is today. The city fathers would have been most neglectful to turn down a control program.

Won't Sell Here

White Plains, New York, is an hour's commuter ride from downtown Manhattan. It is the site of a long gone hide and seek battle between a British detachment and the troubled forces of General George Washington — a pretty place of hills and groves the best of which are occupied by exurbians who are very effete. It is the county seat of Westchester county, a reminder that there is a native population of policemen, a few hoods, shopkeepers and golf caddies, none of them listed in the local social register.

White Plains people did not welcome the revolutionary battle which not only failed to enhance the cause of independence, but was also too noisy. Its one virtue was that it transferred revolutionary activity to New Jersey on the dead run where noise was considered the song of industry and bountiful things.

We can report that White Plains continues to downgrade noise. The people, who wish to lounge on their patios or conduct a well modulated conversation around the swimming pool, are having their days ruined by neighboring blackguards who are rending the air with sounds from power lawn mowers, leaf blowers, baby tractors, hedge clippers and chain saws. They have gone resolutely to the city fathers in the name of peace and tranquility. The result is a new and exciting area of law which defines misdeameanors in terms of decibels. In short, if one is allowed to emit four decibels of sound and in an exultant moment a joyous whoopee registers five decibels on the official meter, it's a 10 dollar fine or a period in the jug.

This will never sell in the Middle West. The roar of the tractor, the clacking of the sickle bar, the bawling of cows out here is considered an enviable progress report, while the clashing sounds of yard equipment dented dedication to high level verdant art, and superb citizenship.

A Bushel A Minute

Roswell Garst, the Coon Rapids, Ia., corn and cattle impressario, has returned again from Russia, asserting that agriculture there is making more rapid headway than we are willing to admit.

Russia, he said, will be able to meet its food needs within the decade. It is getting the hang of agronomy, of mechanization and advanced technology; beginning to produce its own fertilizer, conserve its soil and manage its water.

One listens to Garst with interest, realizing that he is taking some satisfaction from the fact that Premier Khrushchev listened to his advice. But what is perhaps equally interesting is the manner in which Garst measures progress. He noted that in the rich Danube valley in 1955 it took two man hours of labor to produce a bushel of corn. Today it takes half an hour.

By contrast we would consider this unsatisfactory. The United States on the average is producing a bushel of corn for every 5 minutes of human effort. In some of the advanced irrigated areas in Nebraska yields show a bushel per minute of work. Mr. Garst believes soil and climate conditions will prohibit such productivity in Russia.

We have here the implacable yardstick by which American agriculture must live, the necessity of super proficient production for economic survival, against the problem of surplus production. The dilemma is that the farmer who requires four hours of effort to produce a bushel cannot stay on the farm, but if he produces a bushel a minute the overabundance likewise threatens his vocational security. Obviously the farm problem is a national one interwoven into the entire diversity of the economy affecting even the commonwealths wherein agriculture is a principal factor. If proficiency alone is going to dispace many farmers steps must be taken to provide satisfactory activity of a different character where they presently live. This demands a broader look at the problem than most are presently giving it.

German Question, German Problem?

GAGRA, Georgia, U.S.S.R. —The last time I interviewed Khrushchev on the shores of the Black Sea, the Berlin crisis was at its peak and he gave his ideas on the Berlin problem with considerable vigor. This time he was more sympathetic, though still emphatic that the German question was the key to European peace.

"The German question is like a case of appendicitis," he said. "Everyone understands it's harmful but the patient doesn't want to be operated on, so he walks around and aggravates his disease.

"Everyone wants a settlement of the German question. It would improve relations not only between the United States and the Soviet Union, but all countries. I am sure this is the wish of President Kennedy.

"It would seem quite reasonable to let the people of West Berlin develop their future as they wish, but along comes Adenauer and objects. He then starts bargaining between Kennedy and De Gaulle and Berlin becomes a pawn.

"However, it is inconceivable that we should have war. Why should we go to war over Adenauer's claims?"

☆ ☆ ☆

When I asked Khrushchev for his present ideas on settling Berlin, he replied, "A peace treaty should be signed between the two German states. One goes toward capitalism and the other goes forward to socialism. But we must let them work out their future. We must sign a treaty guaranteeing routes of access and guaranteeing noninterference in their internal affairs. We must give West Berlin a chance to develop the way it wants.

"This will be a reasonable solution. It would not infringe on either of the two states, but would give them a chance to develop as they wish. We want Germany to become a socialist state. You want Germany to become a capitalist state. This cannot be arranged around a round-table." I didn't understand the translation of this and asked for an explanation.

☆ ☆ ☆

"You got me wrong," explained Mr. K. "I was ironic about the round-table. The shape of the table has nothing to do with it. It will not help us to talk at any shape table. No side will yield, so the only solution is to sign a peace and let Germany work out its own solution."

"Would this mean that Bonn would give up its demand for reunification?" asked Agnes Meyer, who participated in the interview.

"Yes, this is so," replied Khrushchev, "but there again in a peace treaty we can meet the national wishes of the people and there can be unification of the two German states provided there is agreement between the two German governments.

"On what basis will they agree?" Khrushchev asked, then answered his own question: "Maybe capitalistic, maybe socialistic. It is up to them to discuss and decide."

Brother Ready To Support Rocky

NEW YORK — Three months ago it would have been classified a miracle of some sort if Gov. Nelson Rockefeller announced he would run for the GOP presidential nomination. Today it would be deemed a miracle if he stated emphatically that he will not be a candidate.

The New Yorker was the dominant figure of the Governors' convention, and surely one of the two men Gen. Eisenhower had in mind when, upon his return from Europe, he told reporters that the public should quit thinking of GOP choices as limited to two. (Sen. Goldwater, of course, was the other.)

The governor's brother, Winthrop, seemed a bit surprised the other night when I asked him if Rockefeller would run. He appeared to take it for granted, or at least that could be inferred by his saying, "I plan to give him all the support I can muster." The Arkansas-based Rockefeller is continuing his assessment of his own political career. He thinks a Republican's chances of a Senate seat from Arkansas are remote, but does not rule out the possibility that he might one day run for governor.

Industrially, Winthrop Rockefeller has done more for the state than any other man the state historian can name. (As statistically-minded as his brother, Winthrop pays employees of his 30,000 acre ranch in silver dollars, the easier to trace the number of businesses and other ventures enriched by their spending.)

Rocky's privately employed pollsters are said to have given him encouraging reports from many quarters outside the state. He did not need their assurance that his wife has been a pleasant surprise to many.

The death of Rev. Charles Dismas Clark, S.J., who might have become a hoodlum but lived to be ordained a priest and founded in St. Louis a "half-way house" for convicted men trying to go straight, is a great loss to the world of sociology. Not yet four years old, the establishment, called Dismas House, has extended a helping hand and found jobs for better than 3,500 men who otherwise might not have been given a break by society.

Boys Town survived the death of Father Flanagan, expanded under Monsignor Wegner. Dismas House will remain open, run by a board whose president is a renowned St. Louis criminal lawyer, Morris Shenker, an Orthodox Jew. Like that of Boys Town, this important work can be furthered by public contributions of any sum.

JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Molner: My three-year-old son seems to be "cock-eyed." They aren't crossed, but at certain times he looks at us with one eye while the other appears to be staring. If I put my hand over his eyes for a second, everything returns to normal. About six months ago I had him to our doctor for a cold and asked him to check on this, but he could find nothing wrong. Are we imagining this, or is it possible? If so, is there anything we should do about it? I have noticed this in very young infants but they quickly outgrow it. —MRS. L. S.

Molner

I doubt if you are imagining it. This condition is known as strabismus, or a form of squint.

You also have been an acute observer of babies. They have to learn to focus by trial and error, until they hit on the right way to make their eyes track.

If, a little older than babyhood, a child has difficulty, it usually is most noticeable when he tries to focus at close range—on a toy, or a picture, perhaps.

But all sorts of variants are possible. It may seem to affect only one eye, or both, or may shift from one eye to the other. The eye may turn inward, outward, up or down.

The condition can appear periodically, which makes it quite understandable that your doctor couldn't see anything out of the ordinary. However, you are with your son all the time and can note the trouble when it happens.

Early treatment of such a condition is important, and requires analysis by an ophthalmologist, or eye specialist.

Various measures may be taken—glasses, certain forms of eye exercises, surgery to correct some fault in the eye muscles.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, 21, recently had septicema but the doctor says she has fully recovered. What causes it, and is it really curable? —Mrs. C. B.

Septicemia is another term for what we used to call "blood poisoning."

Ordinarily when an infection attacks, the blood acts to wall off the infected place. At the same time other constituents of the blood (the white cells) actively attack the germs which are causing the infection.

Septicemia means that the germs have broken past this barrier and gotten into the bloodstream.

Yes, it is "really curable," but like anything else, some cases are more severe than others and if not checked, can be deadly. However, once the blood has been cleared of the germ, the attack is over.

Septicemia can be caused by almost any of the particularly virulent germ organisms, but the commonest are streptococcus or staphylococcus ("strep" or "staph" germs).

Usually the infection spreads from some site in the skin, but it can follow a tooth extraction (assuming that the tooth is infected, and the extraction liberates a quantity of germs that had been confined to the tooth and its socket). Severe infection of internal organs also can result in septicemia.

Dear Dr. Molner: What are tongue tonsils? Are people born with them? Do they ever need attention? —MRS. W.B.

These are lingual tonsils —at the back of the tongue.

The tonsil tissue in general forms a sort of ring in the nose and throat — ordinary tonsils at the sides; the adenoids, which are part of toe tongue tonsils, at the base. We are born with them. Occasionally tongue tonsils have to be removed because of enlargement or infection.

Dear Dr. Molner: The average pulse rate is said to be between 72 and 80. What could cause a slow pulse between 56 and 60 and does it have any effect on general health? —MRS. A.C.

Yes, that's the average —but "average" means that some are higher and others lower, but without any harm to health. Just being slow doesn't necessarily mean it is serious or injurious to health. It is often seen in folks with underactive thyroids, but may exist as a perfectly normal state.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Molner: What is auricular fibrillation of the heart?—MRS. B.M.

It's an irregular rhythm at times. Auricular refers to the small upper chambers of the heart. The impulse to beat is not properly carried to the larger lower chambers (the ventricles) and the result is an irregular or off-rhythm heart beat. It requires prompt medical attention.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Need For Support

Lincoln, Neb.

There have been several articles in the paper recently telling how the Southwest Community Center, 1145 High Street, is in a high-income neighborhood and should be self-supporting. I think the public should hear our side of the story. I am not writing this as a staff member but as a member very much interested in the future of the center.

Anyone driving through southwest Lincoln can see that we are not rich. We keep our homes neat but they are not large and elaborate or even new. We are not, on the average, a poor neighborhood, either, but we cannot possibly support a community center. Even the country clubs in Lincoln have trouble keeping open. We are already supporting a fourth of our budget and this is our limit.

Years ago southwest Lincoln was a tough neighborhood. Juvenile delinquency was high and the people's homes were not quite as neat as they are now. Miss Pyle, the present director, instigated a program which has changed this condition. Our present program is outstanding in group work standards, and no other agency in Lincoln has equaled it, in my judgment.

Now, because southwest Lincoln has improved, is there no more need for the center? According to Sallie E. Bright, associate director of the Community Service Society in New York City: "In group work agencies, the ticket of admission is not trouble. One of the principal problems in the interpretations of case work, unlike group work, is that one must be in trouble in order to command the services of the agency. The ticket to group work agencies, on the other hand, has nothing to do with trouble." The Community Chest tells us since our neighborhood is not in "trouble," we are not needed any longer. What about the prevention of trouble? Isn't that important, too?

The Southwest Community Center has proven its worth in Lincoln. Ask the Police Department about the improvement in delinquency in southwest Lincoln. Ask our 350-family membership what the center means to them. Ask our board of directors about our program, unmatched by any other in Lincoln. Must this all be cast aside when it has just reached such a worthwhile goal?

Are the people of southwest Lincoln willing to lose the opportunities offered by this agency? Can Lincoln afford to lose such an agency?

Mother's Place

Lincoln, Neb.

A law should be passed that women with children of school age and under should stay home and look after them. Perhaps then some of our men would be able to get jobs and keep them, and not be laid off every six months or so.

There is one family in our neighborhood where both folks work and both work the day shift. And, as our minister remarked, their daughter shifts for herself. My own girl is entering junior high, so I know, from last year's school work, that there will be plenty of homework for both of them when school starts. However, this girl spends most of her time at our house, inviting herself in and bothering my daughter when she has things that she should be doing. I dislike hurting anyone's feelings but perhaps that's the answer, if they are to understand the situation. I want my children to have friends, but there is a time to work and a time to play, a time to be together and a time to be alone.

We have other neighbors with children of school age, but all of them have their work and don't bother others. And I don't care to have my children alone with others when their parents are both gone.

I wish our entire neighborhood consisted of parents who make their youngsters mind and that the runabouts could live together in another neighborhood.

I have four youngsters in school and could certainly use the extra money more than this mother who works. But I still say a mother's place is in the home until all are old enough to do for themselves.

More Misery

Lincoln, Neb.

Our educational system thought it very nice that the Legislature passed the teachers' retirement bill and authorized the spending of thousands of dollars to set it up.

The question in the minds of many is this: How can tax-levied dollars collected to run the state government be legally used to give pensions to people who are employes of city, county and school districts, which are not a part of state government?

If the Legislature's thinking is correct, then cities, counties and school districts could levy taxes to give pensions to state employes.

Could this retirement bill be another of the boo-boo's that our Legislature is becoming famous for?

It would seem that calling the Legislature back for a special session would be about the same as a child with a stomach-ache eating more green apples, only adding to his misery.

Also, the President asked the nation to consider the alternatives to the test ban treaty. This is where the feelings of Dr. Teller come into conflict with those of a majority of the people of this nation. What Dr. Teller has said in effect is that there is no way out for us in our conflict with communism other than that which we might find through the force of arms. President Kennedy has been asked if he can "prove" there are no side agreements with Russia in connection with the nuclear test ban treaty. The request is an insulting one and, of course, cannot be met.

Conflict Of Views

Likewise, no one can prove that Dr. Teller is right or wrong. In this matter of the test ban treaty and all of our relations with Russia, the best we can do is rely upon our own ability to figure out each and every situation as we become involved in it. There never has been and never will be any guarantee of complete and absolute safety from aggression by one nation against another.

It is quite possible that Russia has some sinister motive in coming to a test ban agreement with the United States and that we could end up sorry in the long-run that we had been a party to the agreement. Again, it is impossible to guarantee that Russia will keep the treaty or that she will not take advantage of it in some way or another.

But in the matter of the alternatives, there also are no guarantees. If we continued the testing of nuclear bombs, there is no guarantee that we would develop a weapon superior to that which Russia might produce. There is no guarantee that we would ever come up with a defense against the ballistic missile or that Russia would not do so first. There is no guarantee today that we will beat Russia to a landing on the moon but we appear to be engaged in the contest just the same. The important thing to understand in all of this is that there is no avenue of action for us down which we will find any guarantee. If we must have a guarantee of our safety or of victory over communism, then we are defeated in the very beginning because there simply is no such thing as such a guarantee.

The question, then, is what path appears to offer the greatest safety and security for our people. This does not mean that we seek our lives at the expense of our freedom, that we accept any ideology or any principle just for the privilege of being alive. When we seek our safety and security, we do so within the framework of known essentials. The safety we seek is the safety to continue to work and live as we have done throughout the history of our nation. Our safety constitutes our form of government, our economic system and our social order. We would find no safety, quite obviously, in the destruction of all that for which we stand today, but rather, would find only our complete defeat.

It is the safety, the preservation of our way of life that is sought through the test ban agreement, even granting that it cannot be absolutely certain that this is what it will do. The theory advanced by Dr. Teller appears all too fatalistic to have any appeal. It is based on a premise of force and if force is all that is left in the world today, then even what we have and what we stand for aren't much worth protecting, anyway.

Certainly we intend to maintain a military position, including space, which we consider equal to or superior to that which is held by any other nation of the world. We do not intend to become a strict pacifistic nation. But what is the purpose of this strength? Its purpose is to withstand a threat from without, not to exploit others from within ourselves.

To brand the test ban treaty as an impossibility is to say that we shall never find peace short of war and we doubt that this is the place where the American people want to stand if they can avoid it. If the nuclear test ban treaty proves to be a failure, it is doubtful that we will have lost very much. On the other hand, should it prove to be a success, it offers the world the hope for peace without conflict that so many generations have sought but never realized. Even if we never realize it, we are not ready to say that it is time to abandon the search.

Everything To Gain

All the passing of time does is make more incumbent upon us the exertion of all our skill and energy toward a solution to world conflicts that falls short of armed conflict. Unfortunately, we need never fear that armed conflict will not be around for our use when and if it is the only choice left for us.

It Had To Be Done

Any elected public official worth his salt will wince a little at the thought of increasing the tax levy. There are services which the official knows are needed and wanted by the public and it is his responsibility to see that such services are provided.

But against this need or demand he always considers the matter of full public understanding of the cost of government. It is one thing to want a service and quite another to pay for it. The public doesn't really expect to have the service for free but the public, also, does not always fully appreciate that which he gets for his tax dollar.

Thus, the mayor and City Council, didn't like the idea of adding about $135,000 to this year's city budget for a control program against Dutch elm disease. The added funds will make the city's tax levy go up, pushing the increase even beyond the one mill point.

Yet, there really was little else the mayor and council could do in the matter. Without a control program, the elms would surely die and the city would spend as much removing them as it will in controlling the disease. And without any control program, you end up minus some 40,000 trees.

With control you spend about the same amount of money but have the big advantage of keeping the trees. Even if the elms could be removed for nothing, the control program would still be well worth its cost. Lincoln with all its elms gone simply would not be the same city it is today. The city fathers would have been most neglectful to turn down a control program.

Won't Sell Here

White Plains, New York, is an hour's commuter ride from downtown Manhattan. It is the site of a long gone hide and seek battle between a British detachment and the troubled forces of General George Washington — a pretty place of hills and groves the best of which are occupied by exurbians who are very effete. It is the county seat of Westchester county, a reminder that there is a native population of policemen, a few hoods, shopkeepers and golf caddies, none of them listed in the local social register.

White Plains people did not welcome the revolutionary battle which not only failed to enhance the cause of independence, but was also too noisy. Its one virtue was that it transferred revolutionary activity to New Jersey on the dead run where noise was considered the song of industry and bountiful things.

We can report that White Plains continues to downgrade noise. The people, who wish to lounge on their patios or conduct a well modulated conversation around the swimming pool, are having their days ruined by neighboring blackguards who are rending the air with sounds from power lawn mowers, leaf blowers, baby tractors, hedge clippers and chain saws. They have gone resolutely to the city fathers in the name of peace and tranquility. The result is a new and exciting area of law which defines misdeameanors in terms of decibels. In short, if one is allowed to emit four decibels of sound and in an exultant moment a joyous whoopee registers five decibels on the official meter, it's a 10 dollar fine or a period in the jug.

This will never sell in the Middle West. The roar of the tractor, the clacking of the sickle bar, the bawling of cows out here is considered an enviable progress report, while the clashing sounds of yard equipment dented dedication to high level verdant art, and superb citizenship.

A Bushel A Minute

Roswell Garst, the Coon Rapids, Ia., corn and cattle impressario, has returned again from Russia, asserting that agriculture there is making more rapid headway than we are willing to admit.

Russia, he said, will be able to meet its food needs within the decade. It is getting the hang of agronomy, of mechanization and advanced technology; beginning to produce its own fertilizer, conserve its soil and manage its water.

One listens to Garst with interest, realizing that he is taking some satisfaction from the fact that Premier Khrushchev listened to his advice. But what is perhaps equally interesting is the manner in which Garst measures progress. He noted that in the rich Danube valley in 1955 it took two man hours of labor to produce a bushel of corn. Today it takes half an hour.

By contrast we would consider this unsatisfactory. The United States on the average is producing a bushel of corn for every 5 minutes of human effort. In some of the advanced irrigated areas in Nebraska yields show a bushel per minute of work. Mr. Garst believes soil and climate conditions will prohibit such productivity in Russia.

We have here the implacable yardstick by which American agriculture must live, the necessity of super proficient production for economic survival, against the problem of surplus production. The dilemma is that the farmer who requires four hours of effort to produce a bushel cannot stay on the farm, but if he produces a bushel a minute the overabundance likewise threatens his vocational security. Obviously the farm problem is a national one interwoven into the entire diversity of the economy affecting even the commonwealths wherein agriculture is a principal factor. If proficiency alone is going to displace many farmers steps must be taken to provide satisfactory activity of a different character where they presently live. This demands a broader look at the problem than most are presently giving it.

German Question, German Problem?

GAGRA, Georgia, U.S.S.R. —The last time I interviewed Khrushchev on the shores of the Black Sea, the Berlin crisis was at its peak and he gave his ideas on the Berlin problem with considerable vigor. This time he was more sympathetic, though still emphatic that the German question was the key to European peace.

"The German question is like a case of appendicitis," he said. "Everyone understands it's harmful but the patient doesn't want to be operated on, so he walks around and aggravates his disease.

"Everyone wants a settlement of the German question. It would improve relations not only between the United States and the Soviet Union, but all countries. I am sure this is the wish of President Kennedy.

"It would seem quite reasonable to let the people of West Berlin develop their future as they wish, but along comes Adenauer and objects. He then starts bargaining between Kennedy and De Gaulle and Berlin becomes a pawn.

"However, it is inconceivable that we should have war. Why should we go to war over Adenauer's claims?"

☆ ☆ ☆

When I asked Khrushchev for his present ideas on settling Berlin, he replied, "A peace treaty should be signed between the two German states. One goes toward capitalism and the other goes forward to socialism. But we must let them work out their future. We must sign a treaty guaranteeing routes of access and guaranteeing noninterference in their internal affairs. We must give West Berlin a chance to develop the way it wants.

"This will be a reasonable solution. It would not infringe on either of the two states, but would give them a chance to develop as they wish. We want Germany to become a socialist state. You want Germany to become a capitalist state. This cannot be arranged around a round-table." I didn't understand the translation of this and asked for an explanation.

☆ ☆ ☆

"You got me wrong," explained Mr. K. "I was ironic about the round-table. The shape of the table has nothing to do with it. It will not help us to talk at any shape table. No side will yield, so the only solution is to sign a peace and let Germany work out its own solution."

"Would this mean that Bonn would give up its demand for reunification?" asked Agnes Meyer, who participated in the interview.

"Yes, this is so," replied Khrushchev, "but there again in a peace treaty we can meet the national wishes of the people and there can be unification of the two German states provided there is agreement between the two German governments.

"On what basis will they agree?" Khrushchev asked, then answered his own question: "Maybe capitalistic, maybe socialistic. It is up to them to discuss and decide."

Brother Ready To Support Rocky

NEW YORK — Three months ago it would have been classified a miracle of some sort if Gov. Nelson Rockefeller announced he would run for the GOP presidential nomination. Today it would be deemed a miracle if he stated emphatically that he will not be a candidate.

The New Yorker was the dominant figure of the Governors' convention, and surely one of the two men Gen. Eisenhower had in mind when, upon his return from Europe, he told reporters that the public should quit thinking of GOP choices as limited to two. (Sen. Goldwater, of course, was the other.)

The governor's brother, Winthrop, seemed a bit surprised the other night when I asked him if Rockefeller would run. He appeared to take it for granted, or at least that could be inferred by his saying, "I plan to give him all the support I can muster." The Arkansas-based Rockefeller is continuing his assessment of his own political career. He thinks a Republican's chances of a Senate seat from Arkansas are remote, but does not rule out the possibility that he might one day run for governor.

Industrially, Winthrop Rockefeller has done more for the state than any other man the state historian can name. (As statistically-minded as his brother, Winthrop pays employees of his 30,000 acre ranch in silver dollars, the easier to trace the number of businesses and other ventures enriched by their spending.)

Rocky's privately employed pollsters are said to have given him encouraging reports from many quarters outside the state. He did not need their assurance that his wife has been a pleasant surprise to many.

The death of Rev. Charles Dismas Clark, S.J., who might have become a hoodlum but lived to be ordained a priest and founded in St. Louis a "half-way house" for convicted men trying to go straight, is a great loss to the world of sociology. Not yet four years old, the establishment, called Dismas House, has extended a helping hand and found jobs for better than 3,500 men who otherwise might not have been given a break by society.

Boys Town survived the death of Father Flanagan, expanded under Monsignor Wegner. Dismas House will remain open, run by a board whose president is a renowned St. Louis criminal lawyer, Morris Shenker, an Orthodox Jew. Like that of Boys Town, this important work can be furthered by public contributions of any sum.

JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Molner: My three-year-old son seems to be "cock-eyed." They aren't crossed, but at certain times he looks at us with one eye while the other appears to be staring. If I put my hand over his eyes for a second, everything returns to normal. About six months ago I had him to our doctor for a cold and asked him to check on this, but he could find nothing wrong. Are we imagining this, or is it possible? If so, is there anything we should do about it? I have noticed this in very young infants but they quickly outgrow it. —MRS. L. S.

Molner

I doubt if you are imagining it. This condition is known as strabismus, or a form of squint.

You also have been an acute observer of babies. They have to learn to focus by trial and error, until they hit on the right way to make their eyes track.

If, a little older than babyhood, a child has difficulty, it usually is most noticeable when he tries to focus at close range—on a toy, or a picture, perhaps.

But all sorts of variants are possible. It may seem to affect only one eye, or both, or may shift from one eye to the other. The eye may turn inward, outward, up or down.

The condition can appear periodically, which makes it quite understandable that your doctor couldn't see anything out of the ordinary. However, you are with your son all the time and can note the trouble when it happens.

Early treatment of such a condition is important, and requires analysis by an ophthalmologist, or eye specialist.

Various measures may be taken—glasses, certain forms of eye exercises, surgery to correct some fault in the eye muscles.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, 21, recently had septicema but the doctor says she has fully recovered. What causes it, and is it really curable? —Mrs. C. B.

Septicemia is another term for what we used to call "blood poisoning."

Ordinarily when an infection attacks, the blood acts to wall off the infected place. At the same time other constituents of the blood (the white cells) actively attack the germs which are causing the infection.

Septicemia means that the germs have broken past this barrier and gotten into the bloodstream.

Yes, it is "really curable," but like anything else, some cases are more severe than others and if not checked, can be deadly. However, once the blood has been cleared of the germ, the attack is over.

Septicemia can be caused by almost any of the particularly virulent germ organisms, but the commonest are streptococcus or staphylococcus ("strep" or "staph" germs).

Usually the infection spreads from some site in the skin, but it can follow a tooth extraction (assuming that the tooth is infected, and the extraction liberates a quantity of germs that had been confined to the tooth and its socket). Severe infection of internal organs also can result in septicemia.

Dear Dr. Molner: What are tongue tonsils? Are people born with them? Do they ever need attention? —MRS. W.B.

These are lingual tonsils —at the back of the tongue.

The tonsil tissue in general forms a sort of ring in the nose and throat — ordinary tonsils at the sides; the adenoids, which are part of toe tongue tonsils, at the base. We are born with them. Occasionally tongue tonsils have to be removed because of enlargement or infection.

Dear Dr. Molner: The average pulse rate is said to be between 72 and 80. What could cause a slow pulse between 56 and 60 and does it have any effect on general health? —MRS. A.C.

Yes, that's the average —but "average" means that some are higher and others lower, but without any harm to health. Just being slow doesn't necessarily mean it is serious or injurious to health. It is often seen in folks with underactive thyroids, but may exist as a perfectly normal state.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Molner: What is auricular fibrillation of the heart?—MRS. B.M.

It's an irregular rhythm at times. Auricular refers to the small upper chambers of the heart. The impulse to beat is not properly carried to the larger lower chambers (the ventricles) and the result is an irregular or off-rhythm heart beat. It requires prompt medical attention.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Need For Support

Lincoln, Neb.

There have been several articles in the paper recently telling how the Southwest Community Center, 1145 High Street, is in a high-income neighborhood and should be self-supporting. I think the public should hear our side of the story. I am not writing this as a staff member but as a member very much interested in the future of the center.

Anyone driving through southwest Lincoln can see that we are not rich. We keep our homes neat but they are not large and elaborate or even new. We are not, on the average, a poor neighborhood, either, but we cannot possibly support a community center. Even the country clubs in Lincoln have trouble keeping open. We are already supporting a fourth of our budget and this is our limit.

Years ago southwest Lincoln was a tough neighborhood. Juvenile delinquency was high and the people's homes were not quite as neat as they are now. Miss Pyle, the present director, instigated a program which has changed this condition. Our present program is outstanding in group work standards, and no other agency in Lincoln has equaled it, in my judgment.

Now, because southwest Lincoln has improved, is there no more need for the center? According to Sallie E. Bright, associate director of the Community Service Society in New York City: "In group work agencies, the ticket of admission is not trouble. One of the principal problems in the interpretations of case work, unlike group work, is that one must be in trouble in order to command the services of the agency. The ticket to group work agencies, on the other hand, has nothing to do with trouble." The Community Chest tells us since our neighborhood is not in "trouble," we are not needed any longer. What about the prevention of trouble? Isn't that important, too?

The Southwest Community Center has proven its worth in Lincoln. Ask the Police Department about the improvement in delinquency in southwest Lincoln. Ask our 350-family membership what the center means to them. Ask our board of directors about our program, unmatched by any other in Lincoln. Must this all be cast aside when it has just reached such a worthwhile goal?

Are the people of southwest Lincoln willing to lose the opportunities offered by this agency? Can Lincoln afford to lose such an agency?

ROGER ASPEGREN
NU Student and Asst. Director of Southwest Community Center

Mother's Place

Lincoln, Neb.

A law should be passed that women with children of school age and under should stay home and look after them. Perhaps then some of our men would be able to get jobs and keep them, and not be laid off every six months or so.

There is one family in our neighborhood where both folks work and both work the day shift. And, as our minister remarked, their daughter shifts for herself. My own girl is entering junior high, so I know, from last year's school work, that there will be plenty of homework for both of them when school starts. However, this girl spends most of her time at our house, inviting herself in and bothering my daughter when she has things that she should be doing. I dislike hurting anyone's feelings but perhaps that's the answer, if they are to understand the situation. I want my children to have friends, but there is a time to work and a time to play, a time to be together and a time to be alone.

We have other neighbors with children of school age, but all of them have their work and don't bother others. And I don't care to have my children alone with others when their parents are both gone.

I wish our entire neighborhood consisted of parents who make their youngsters mind and that the runabouts could live together in another neighborhood.

I have four youngsters in school and could certainly use the extra money more than this mother who works. But I still say a mother's place is in the home until all are old enough to do for themselves.

More Misery

Lincoln, Neb.

Our educational system thought it very nice that the Legislature passed the teachers' retirement bill and authorized the spending of thousands of dollars to set it up.

The question in the minds of many is this: How can tax-levied dollars collected to run the state government be legally used to give pensions to people who are employes of city, county and school districts, which are not a part of state government?

If the Legislature's thinking is correct, then cities, counties and school districts could levy taxes to give pensions to state employes.

Could this retirement bill be another of the boo-boo's that our Legislature is becoming famous for?

It would seem that calling the Legislature back for a special session would be about the same as a child with a stomach-ache eating more green apples, only adding to his misery.

Statistics Show Advancing Years Won't Be Lonely

By ROBERT PETERSON

I suspect most of us revel in statistics shouting that the aging population is increasing. It's gratifying to realize that when we're along in years we won't be alone, but will be flanked by rising millions of men and women who will be just as old and gray as we.

A report from the University of Chicago confirms that most people along in years find pleasure in contemplating their membership in a growing body of elders. "It is a reasonable inference," concludes the report, "that membership in aging groups growing in number and power provides the individual with a sense of important participation, a stimulus to higher morale, and increased incentive to reach out for new experiences in the later years."

Various magazines are carrying a public service ad from President Kennedy's Council on Youth Fitness. The ad asks, "How many times can your boy chin himself?" Then the text suggests that if he has trouble chinning himself a dozen times or so he's in pretty poor physical condition.

It strikes me as foolish to equate chinning ability with physical fitness. Even as a robust teen-ager I had a dickens of a time chinning myself more than once. And it was no reflection on my fitness, for I was exposed to all the wholesome food and exercise any child could have. Rather, it was due to my lanky body type. I'm tall and thin and and my arms just aren't equipped with muscles strong enough to hoist my chin easily to the chinning bar.

Just to see what effect the years have had on my aging muscles. I just tried chinning myself on a door casing in my office. Sure enough, I could still do it. But only once.

The other morn I stopped at a nearby drugstore for coffee. The chap next to me was munching some toasted corn muffins. I ordered some, too, and found them so succulent that 3 mornings in a row I walked into the drug store and ordered coffee and toasted corn muffins.

The fourth morning the waitress saw me coming and without asking popped the muffins in the toaster and reached for a coffee cup. When I commented that I guessed I was in a rut, she retorted, "All men are in a rut when it comes to food.

"My prize is a bank teller who comes for lunch 5 days a week, 50 weeks a year. When I see him coming I start opening a can of vegetable soup and making an American cheese sandwich with lettuce on whole wheat toast. He hasn't ordered anything different in the past 4 years."

When tire executive J. E. Corker of New York hit 65 recently, he sent a printed letter of adieu to business friends saying he was being retired under company policy but would find a new job or start some kind of business of his own. "Don't worry," he said in the last paragraph, "I'm not going to crawl into a corner and listen to my arteries harden."

It strikes me as foolish to equate chinning ability with physical fitness. Even as a robust teen-ager I had a dickens of a time chinning myself more than once. And it was no reflection on my fitness, for I was exposed to all the wholesome food and exercise any child could have. Rather, it was due to my lanky body type. I'm tall and thin and and my arms just aren't equipped with muscles strong enough to hoist my chin easily to the chinning bar.

Just to see what effect the years have had on my aging muscles. I just tried chinning myself on a door casing in my office. Sure enough, I could still do it. But only once.

The other morn I stopped at a nearby drugstore for coffee. The chap next to me was munching some toasted corn muffins. I ordered some, too, and found them so succulent that 3 mornings in a row I walked into the drug store and ordered coffee and toasted corn muffins.

The fourth morning the waitress saw me coming and without asking popped the muffins in the toaster and reached for a coffee cup. When I commented that I guessed I was in a rut, she retorted, "All men are in a rut when it comes to food.

"My prize is a bank teller who comes for lunch 5 days a week, 50 weeks a year. When I see him coming I start opening a can of vegetable soup and making an American cheese sandwich with lettuce on whole wheat toast. He hasn't ordered anything different in the past 4 years."

When tire executive J. E. Corker of New York hit 65 recently, he sent a printed letter of adieu to business friends saying he was being retired under company policy but would find a new job or start some kind of business of his own. "Don't worry," he said in the last paragraph, "I'm not going to crawl into a corner and listen to my arteries harden."

Largest Power Pool Planned In Midwest

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

Washington (UPI) — Plans for forming "the nation's largest power pool" by 1980, at a cost of $2.2 billion, were announced Wednesday night by a group of 22 Midwestern power suppliers.

About 70 members of Congress from the 10 Midwestern and Western states involved were invited to the announcement ceremonies, and the cocktail and dinner party which followed.

Before ice tinkled in the first glass, the affair was criticized by Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont. He charged in a Senate speech Tuesday that the party, which he said would cost the hosts $2,200, heralded a program aimed at "the destruction of public power yardsticks."

Earl Ewald, chairman of the midcontinent Area Power Planners (MAPP) and executive vice president of Northern States Power Co. of Minneapolis, described the planned operations.

Extra-High Voltage

He said about $280 million will be invested in a 5,400-mile network of extra-high voltage power lines to link key cities in Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesoat, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Montana, Wyoming and Missouri.

By 1980, he said, the 22-member power systems will have built $2 billion worth of new generating plants and begun an integrated operation.

The program will be needed then, according to Kenneth S. Vig, MAPP coordinator. He predicted the member's demands for power will have increased from its present level of 65 million kilowatts to about 23 million.

The MAPP plants will coordinate with adjacent power suppliers, including federal agencies, and hope the government will join the long-range program of regional power planning, Ewall said.

He predicted MAPP eventually will become the largest power pool in the U.S., exchanging large blocs of power among its members over 230,000-volt and 345,000-volt lines, and "may well establish a pattern of electric power development for the entire nation."

MAPP members will enjoy substantial savings through lower generating reserve requirements, deferral of new generating units, and the building of larger, more efficient generating units, he said.

State Hoping To Let Bridge Work In Fall

The State Department of Roads is still hoping to let a contract in October for the foundation of the Interstate bridge across the Missouri River between Omaha and Council Bluffs, Iowa, State Engineer John Hossack said Wednesday.

But Hossack cautioned that an October letting would be the earliest possible and depend on a number of factors.

The tentative letting date would be Oct. 3.

The highway department is reviewing the blueprints for the bridge substructure, but the plans also have to be approved by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads and the Army Corps of Engineers, he said.

"It looks about like it always did. The plans are being reviewed. That part is on schedule," he said.

Hossack noted that railroad agreements will have to be signed before the work can start. Some tracks in Omaha by the river will have to be shifted to permit installation of pilings.

Hossack said where railroads are involved approval has to be obtained from their officials.

If everything goes according to schedule, Hossack estimated, the earliest completion date for the bridge would be in the summer of 1965.

SCHOOL GROUPS EYE DUIS REPEAL

School groups in Nebraska are weighing the possibility of a statewide initiative petition campaign aimed at knocking the Duis Amendment out of the state constitution.

The Duis Amendment makes it mandatory that Nebraska state government abandon the property field if and when a state sales or income tax, or a combination, is adopted.

Local subdivisions could still have a property tax.

The idea of the petition was first discussed at the 3-day leadership conference of the Nebraska State Education Association in Chadron several weeks ago.

An effort late in the 1963 legislative session by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly to introduce a bill overturning the Duis Amendment failed, but the losing reception was encouraging to Duis Amendment foes. The effort got 18 votes, 8 votes less than required to introduce the new measure, but represented 43% of the Legislature.

What school people want is a constitutional revision saying that if and when Nebraska enacts a general retail sales or income tax, or combination, some parts of such tax money—if not all—should be channeled back to public school districts.

In this way, it is argued, real property tax relief can be felt at the local level.

By July

To gain a spot on the November 1964 general election ballot, a citizen initiative amendment would have to be formally filed 4 months before the election, or sometime early next July.

It would have to bear sufficient signatures from 38, or two-fifths, of the state's counties.

Secretary of State Frank Marsh said that the legal qualification is 5% of the electors voting for governor in each of the 38 counties in the last general election.

Court Order Bars Strike Against United Airline

Chicago (AP) — An argument over who would refuel two planes at New York's Idlewild Airport threatened for a time Wednesday to shut down operation of United Air lines, the nation's largest domestic airline.

A U.S. district court restraining order Wednesday ordered members of the International Association of Machinists back to work after they had walked off the job at United terminals in New York, Newark, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Seattle, Portland and Los Angeles.

The walkout started at Idlewild when mechanics and service ramp men staged a 90-minute walkout in protest against the hiring of a private firm to refuel two jets equipped with a modified fueling intake.

Modified

Isador Daniels, president of the IAM New York local, said the two jets had been modifed so that their fueling device is on the underside of the wing. The jets are usually serviced by IAM personel from the cockpit.

Daniels said the workers "pulled out by themselves" when the airline hired the Allied Fuel Service, a private firm, to refuel the modified jets.

The machinists local at Newark stopped work in sympathy and the walkout spread across the country.

A United spokesman said the walkout did not involve all members of the machinists union employed by United. The spokesman said some 13,000 of United's 33,000 employes are IAM members.

The spokesman said supervisory employes filled in during the walkout and only a few flights were delayed or canceled.

The temporary restraining order issued by U.S. District Judge Bernard M. Decker at the request of the airline will remain in effect until 12 p.m., CST, Aug. 30.

Attorneys for the airline asked for the order at an emergency hearing, granted by Judge Decker after airline officials warned that their operation would be shut down by Thursday unless the walkout was halted.

'Strike Illegal'

Stuart Bernstein, attorney for the airline, argued that the strike was illegal since relations between the union and company were under jurisdiction of the National Mediation Board.

The mediation board had entered contract negotiations between the union and the airline last March. A tentative agreement was reached Aug. 3 on a contract to replace one that expired in June 1962.

Bernstein pointed out, however, that the mediation board still had jurisdiction—making a strike or walkout illegal—since the union has not said whether its membership has ratified the proposed agreement. Terms of the contract have not been announced.

Although it formed the legal basis for the airline's request for a restraining order, the contract dispute was not the cause of the walkout, a United spokesman said.

D. C. Police Set For Marchers

Washington (AP) — With all the props of a military maneuver, Police Chief Robert V. Murray and his deputies briefed other police officers Wednesday on how to handle the 100,000 or more civil rights marchers on Washington next Wednesday.

A projector flashed a map across a giant screen. A flashlight arrow pointed out strategic corners and no-parking zones. Officers stood and recited their missions. Deputy chiefs talked of closing bridges and deploying national guardsmen and keeping balloon vendors away and working 18-hour days.

Murray opened the meeting by saying "we do not expect any trouble at all on the 28th."

Troops Assigned

But he quickly announced that the Pentagon had assigned 4,000 soldiers and marines to the Washington area that day to be "available if needed."

"We believe it is prudent to take these precautions in view of the large crowd," he continued. "However, again, let me stress that we have every indication that the march will be orderly and dignified."

The federal troops, if needed, would augment a city security force scheduled to include 2,900 policemen, 2,000 District of Columbia National Guardsmen, 430 firemen, and 250 to 500 reserve policemen. The demonstrators themselves plan to have 1,500 marshals.

Murray said that 1,000 policemen and 1,000 guardsmen will be concentrated in the march area which extends from the Washington Monument to the Lincoln Memorial, a distance of a half-mile or so.

2,000 Buses

Murray also announced that police are expecting 2,000 buses to come to Washington that day and have set aside 4 parking zones for them. No private autos will be allowed to park in these zones or in the demonstration area.

One official said 6 police cranes will begin work at 4 a.m. to tow away all cars in the restricted areas. He said 13 other cranes are ready if needed.

Deputy Chief Harold V. Covell said no cars will be allowed into the demonstration area and any newsmen or others who want to move about will have to walk.

Rusk Included?

"Secretary of State Dean Rusk included?" a newsman asked, noting that the Department of State is alongside the march route.

"I'd rather not answer that question," said Covell.

Covell said all policemen will "work a tough and grueling day of at least 18 hours."

Asked about reports that many of the demonstrators plan to come to Washington in cars, Covell said: "This police department can not handle any great influx of cars. They should be discouraged. They are going to clog the streets of Washington, and they won't find a place to park."

But Covell said he is confident the police can handle all problems.

"Except for the bonus army that came to Washington in 1932," he said, "there never has been a fracas here."

He cited a few examples of Washington police handling crowds, including the time "we found thousands of pickets in front of a hotel, some for Castro, some against Castro, and some saying phooey on both sides. And we separated them."

Police Comb Gaming Den In Loot Probe

London (AP)—Police Wednesday combed an abandoned gambler's den, once the property of Mandy Rice-Davies' late lover, Peter Rachman, in a continuing search for loot from the great train robbery.

The post office, meanwhile, said it had finally set the total stolen Aug. 8 at 2,626,747 pounds ($7,355,005) of which a little over 10% has been recovered.

That much money weighs 2½ tons and police theorized the robbers are getting scared of it and dropping pound notes behind as they scurry for safety.

The house formerly owned by Rachman was once the roost of 6 men and 4 women. All had disappeared by the time police got there.

Police had no luck in other swoops either.

U.S. Cruiser Docks

Portsmouth, England (AP) — The U.S. Navy cruiser Newport News docked to begin a 3-day visit. The cruiser was flagship for the recent NATO naval Exercise Riptide centering on the Bay of Biscay.

Good Dam News Given Salt-Wahoo

Salt-Wahoo Watershed District directors received good news on the progress of several dams and dam sites at their Wednesday meeting.

Norman Gau, Army Corps of Engineers official, noted that Dam 9 near Hickman may be ready for closing the first week in September. Closing of the dam will allow lake water to begin to accumulate.

At Dam 2 near Kramer, corps spokesmen reported, work is progressing ahead of schedule.

Robert Jackson reported "fine progress" in the acquisition of land in the Dam 14 area near Emerald. He said that negotiations there may be completed by Sept. 15 to Oct. 1.

Board Chairman Otto Liebers told the group that the numbered dams in the watershed may soon receive formal names instead of their present numbers. Director Byron Dunn and a committee are selecting suitable names of historical significance and geographical meaning for the major dam projects.

Other project progress reported to the group included:

—Rejection of bids on the Dam 14 outlet work as being too high, and plans to readvertise for bids in early September.

—Survey work on the site of Dam 10, southwest of Lincoln, is continuing but incomplete. A site upstream from the present location is being considered.

—Another request for a fall start on channel work on Salt Creek through Lincoln has been made to Washington officials.

The board also heard a report from the district's general manager, Hal Schroeder, on plans to begin a 25-minute color and sound movie of the Salt-Wahoo project.

Schroeder said a rough draft of the movie script had been developed and estimated the cost of the project at $15,000 to $18,000.

Hasselbalch Is Right-Of-Way East O Aide

Lincoln attorney Hal Hasselbalch has been retained by the city to aid in right-of-way acquisition on the east O project at a retainer of $5,940.

Hasselbalch will handle the legal work of obtaining land for street widening on the 27th to 33rd segment of the project.

Mayor Dean Petersen confirmed the contract with Hasselbalch by executive order. He was recommended by Deputy City Atty. Vincent Brown who has been handling the acquisition work.

Fee, Success

Under terms of the contract, Hasselbalch will receive the full amount only if all the property required is provided to the city. He will receive lesser amounts if he does not provide the entire right-of-way area required.

The contract also provides fees of $35 per half day or $70 per day for consulting work or court appearances required of Hasselbalch.

Hasselbalch, a 1959 University of Nebraska Law College graduate, served as assistant city attorney from Sept. 1, 1961 to Oct. 1, 1962, and as Lincoln office manager of the Midwest Employers Council. He also was employed as an examiner for the State Railway Commission.

INN ENTERED

Police Wednesday were looking for someone who broke into Tastee Inn, 1530 No. 48th, and took about $2 in pennies and 12½ dozen eggs. Reports said the intruder then smashed the eggs throughout the building.

Seward Fire Cause Still Undetermined

Seward (AP)—A spectacular fire destroyed part of an egg processing plant in Seward early Wednesday.

Fire Chief Jack Dietrich said the flames consumed the western half of the structure but that firemen halted the blaze at a firewall and saved the masonry eastern part and its contents. The portion which burned was mostly wood.

Dietrich said that apparently the part destroyed was mostly used for storage of crates, cases and other items.

The fire started shortly after midnight and firemen had it under control by about 4:30 a.m.

One fireman suffered second degree burns.

The fire chief said cause of the fire had not been determined. There was no immediate estimate of the loss.

Fire departments from Staplehurst and Goehner helped fight the blaze and departments from Utica and Milford stood by to help if needed.

Trio Bound Over On Robbery Count

Fremont (AP) — Three Rockford, Ill., teen-agers were bound over to District Court on robbery charges Wednesday and a preliminary hearing was scheduled Monday for a 4th in connection with the holdup of a motel owner Monday night.

Bonds of $5,000 each were set by Justice of the Peace Nell Schilke.

Dodge County Attorney Richard said all 4 admitted participating in the robbery of Alvin Black, Fremont motel manager, Monday evening. Black was struck on the head but was not seriously injured. The 4 boys were arrested at Central City later in the evening. The robbery netted about $80.

Deputy Sheriff D. W. Parker said the 4 were arrested by the Safety Patrol when a filling station attendant tipped the patrol that there were guns in their car.

Black said he was struck on the head 3 times by one of two men who entered the motel. A 3rd was posted outside with a rifle and a 4th remained in the car. The two who entered the motel wore stocking masks. Parker said the guns and stocking masks along with most of the money were recovered.

Under terms of the contract, Hasselbalch will receive the full amount only if all the property required is provided to the city. He will receive lesser amounts if he does not provide the entire right-of-way area required.

The contract also provides fees of $35 per half day or $70 per day for consulting work or court appearances required of Hasselbalch.

Hasselbalch, a 1959 University of Nebraska Law College graduate, served as assistant city attorney from Sept. 1, 1961 to Oct. 1, 1962, and as Lincoln office manager of the Midwest Employers Council. He also was employed as an examiner for the State Railway Commission.

INN ENTERED

Police Wednesday were looking for someone who broke into Tastee Inn, 1530 No. 48th, and took about $2 in pennies and 12½ dozen eggs. Reports said the intruder then smashed the eggs throughout the building.

Seward Fire Cause Still Undetermined

Seward (AP)—A spectacular fire destroyed part of an egg processing plant in Seward early Wednesday.

Fire Chief Jack Dietrich said the flames consumed the western half of the structure but that firemen halted the blaze at a firewall and saved the masonry eastern part and its contents. The portion which burned was mostly wood.

Dietrich said that apparently the part destroyed was mostly used for storage of crates, cases and other items.

The fire started shortly after midnight and firemen had it under control by about 4:30 a.m.

One fireman suffered second degree burns.

The fire chief said cause of the fire had not been determined. There was no immediate estimate of the loss.

Fire departments from Staplehurst and Goehner helped fight the blaze and departments from Utica and Milford stood by to help if needed.

Trio Bound Over On Robbery Count

Fremont (AP) — Three Rockford, Ill., teen-agers were bound over to District Court on robbery charges Wednesday and a preliminary hearing was scheduled Monday for a 4th in connection with the holdup of a motel owner Monday night.

Bonds of $5,000 each were set by Justice of the Peace Neil Schilke.

Dodge County Attorney Richard said all 4 admitted participating in the robbery of Alvin Black, Fremont motel manager, Monday evening. Black was struck on the head but was not seriously injured. The 4 boys were arrested at Central City later in the evening. The robbery netted about $80.

Deputy Sheriff D. W. Parker said the 4 were arrested by the Safety Patrol when a filling station attendant tipped the patrol that there were guns in their car.

Black said he was struck on the head 3 times by one of two men who entered the motel. A 3rd was posted outside with a rifle and a 4th remained in the car. The two who entered the motel wore stocking masks. Parker said the guns and stocking masks along with most of the money were recovered.

Evans Held After Murder Charge Report

Fremont (AP) — Robert Joseph Evans, 26, of Honolulu was ordered held here Wednesday after a Portland, Ore., detective reported a first degree murder charge had been filed against Evans.

Detective William Taylor said Evans was charged in the death of Mrs. Irene E. Davis, 41, of Payette, Idaho. Taylor said the charge had been filed in Multnomah County, Ore.

Justice of the Peace Neil Schilke ordered Evans held for 30 days without bail to permit time for extradition.

Evans was arraigned on a fugitive warrant.

The detective testified at the arraignment that Mrs. Davis was found strangled with one of her own stockings in her Portland hotel suite early Aug. 6.

He said a ring found in a car Evans was driving matched the description of one the Idaho heiress wore. Taylor also said "many $100 bills were missing from her hotel suite. He did not expand on this statement.

Evans' car was spotted by a Fremont police officer Monday as one listed in a police bulletin. Evans was listed as wanted on a larceny as bailee warrant in Portland.

What Evans was doing here was not explained, but authorities said he had checked into a hotel here Aug. 8, and checked out again on the 13th.

The Spanish built Old San Juan on an island It is a finger of land, two-and-a-half miles long and half mile wide, a breakwater across the Atlantic wash to form the mainland harbor.

They surrounded it with the most massive fortifications in the New World.

The energetic Sir Francis Drake brought a fleet of 27 ships to Puerto Rico in 1595.

His canon shots bounced off the 20-foot-thick walls like Ping-Pong balls.

It was a tidy town of breezy mansions and blue glazed brick streets.

Naturally, this is rich country for the tourist. And Old San Juan is hurriedly rebuilding its tottering mansions for a golden tide the original owners never dreamed of

It was a close thing. In one burst of air-conditioned insanity — (protected by the title of "modern thinking") —the citizens started tearing down the Spanish walls.

Fortunately, they ran out of money and energy before they could finish.

Even so, most of the houses were walled into slum cubicles.

Chickens ran loose in noble courtyards. Convents were turned into warehouses. Patios and colonnades were destroyed. Plate-glass show stores were cut into street floors of elegant homes.

In a few years, the local merchants did more damage to San Juan than English, Dutch and Carib Indians could do in 300 years of planned determination.

The saviors of San Juan were a strange breed: A sunburned fellow in an aloha shirt with a camera slung around his neck saying:

"Stand over against that old building. That'll make a heck of a good pictures."

☆ ☆ ☆

Today, Old San Juan has been declared a historical zone. Owners can't lay a finger on a building without a permit from the Institute of Puerto Rican Culture.

This is run from a handsome old building by Dr. Ricardo Alegria.

An owner of one of the old buildings can get government finance and an excellent tax rebate if he will remodel it back to the original.

There's a sort of fascinating detective work finding the original structure beneath the slum walls. "Papi" Alegria who deals in antiques in a restored mansion showed me some of it.

"You tap around with a hammer until you find where beams and pillars are hidden under the newer walls

"One thing, we know the general pattern of these houses.

"You see the Spanish families built for all the family. Aunts, uncles, grandparents —everybody lived in them.

"The ground floor was always built with stables along the sides for the horses. There was a central patio and all the rooms on the upper levels ran around it.

"The front rooms on the first floor were for living rooms and for the family. The dining room and kitchen were toward the back. When you know this, you know what to look for"

Some of the more famous buildings were never touched. Casa Blanca was the home built in 1523 for the family of Juan Ponce de Leon. It became the residence of the Spanish military governors.

It is still the residence of the U.S. military commanders. (Puerto Rico thinks we ought to give it back. But the army really hates to give up property.)

You can't pull down the forts short of dynamite And nobody burns churches since 1625 when the Dutch felt that such Popish buildings were for the torch.

POSTCARD

The Spanish built Old San Juan on an island. It is a finger of land, two-and-a-half miles long and half mile wide, a breakwater across the Atlantic wash to form the mainland harbor.

They surrounded it with the most massive fortifications in the New World.

The energetic Sir Francis Drake brought a fleet of 27 ships to Puerto Rico in 1595.

His canon shots bounced off the 20-foot-thick walls like Ping-Pong balls.

It was a tidy town of breezy mansions and blue glazed brick streets.

☆ ☆ ☆

Naturally, this is rich country for the tourist. And Old San Juan is hurriedly rebuilding its tottering mansions for a golden tide the original owners never dreamed of.

It was a close thing. In one burst of air-conditioned insanity — (protected by the title of "modern thinking") —the citizens started tearing down the Spanish walls.

Fortunately, they ran out of money and energy before they could finish.

Even so, most of the houses were walled into slum cubicles.

Chickens ran loose in noble courtyards. Convents were turned into warehouses. Patios and colonnades were destroyed. Plate-glass show stores were cut into street floors of elegant homes.

In a few years, the local merchants did more damage to San Juan than English, Dutch and Carib Indians could do in 300 years of planned determination.

The saviors of San Juan were a strange breed: A sunburned fellow in an aloha shirt with a camera slung around his neck saying:

☆ ☆ ☆

Today, Old San Juan has been declared a historical zone. Owners can't lay a finger on a building without a permit from the Institute of Puerto Rican Culture.

This is run from a handsome old building by Dr. Ricardo Alegria.

An owner of one of the old buildings can get government finance and an excellent tax rebate if he will remodel it back to the original.

There's a sort of fascinating detective work finding the original structure beneath the slum walls. "Papi" Alegria who deals in antiques in a restored mansion showed me some of it.

"You tap around with a hammer until you find where beams and pillars are hidden under the newer walls.

"One thing, we know the general pattern of these houses.

"You see the Spanish families built for all the family. Aunts, uncles, grandparents —everybody lived in them.

"The ground floor was always built with stables along the sides for the horses. There was a central patio and all the rooms on the upper levels ran around it.

"The front rooms on the first floor were for living rooms and for the family. The dining room and kitchen were toward the back. When you know this, you know what to look for."

☆ ☆ ☆

Some of the more famous buildings were never touched. Casa Blanca was the home built in 1523 for the family of Juan Ponce de Leon. It became the residence of the Spanish military governors.

It is still the residence of the U.S. military commanders. (Puerto Rico thinks we ought to give it back. But the army really hates to give up property.)

You can't pull down the forts short of dynamite. And nobody burns churches since 1625 when the Dutch felt that such Popish buildings were for the torch.

Purchasing Power Up In South Central Area

Despite a dramatic exodus of manpower from its farms and ranches and no significant gain in total population, South Central Nebraska, an area of 18 counties mostly south of the Platte, picked up an inflation-free increase of 84% in purchasing power in 20 years following 1940.

That is one of the major points emerging from a study of the area's changing employment pattern by Dr. E. B. Schmidt, University of Nebraska professor of economics. The study is part of a larger one he is making of the entire state.

Some of the things the south-central study reveals:

. . . The total population has not changed much in 20 years and totaled 189,751 in the 1960 census.

. . . The number of persons gainfully employed was 70,582 in 1960, almost 10,000 more than in 1940 but 3,000 fewer than in 1950.

. . . Farming and ranching employed 43% of the area's workers in 1940 but only 26% of them in 1960.

. . . Service occupations — including communication, transportation, public utilities, wholesale and retail trade, and a miscellaneous category composed of educators, governmental employees, banking, financial, and real estate personnel — employed 49% of the money-earning workers in 1940 and 51% of them in 1960.

. . . Though development of manufacturing, especially in Dawson (Cozad), Webster, and Furnas Counties, gave the area a 22% increase in the number of workers in that category between 1940 and 1960, those employed in manufacturing in 1960 accounted for less than 6½% of the area's total gainfully employed.

. . . The per-person purchasing power of the area's population increased from $738 annually in 1940, to $1,239 in 1950, and on to $1,361 in 1960. The figures are adjusted to remove the influence of inflation.

The counties included in the South Central area, from east to west, are: Hall, Adams, Webster, Buffalo, Kearney, Franklin, Phelps, Harlan, Dawson, Gosper, Furnas, Frontier, Red Willow, Hayes, Hitchcock, Perkins, Chase, and Dundy.

The area includes the municipalities of Grand Island, Hastings, Minden, Kearney, Holdrege, Lexington, Cozad and McCook.

Strange Parallel May Portend Decline And Fall Of U.S.

. . . HOW CHILDREN ARE BROUGHT UP, WHAT THEY READ GIVE CLUES TO FUTURE

Washington (AP) — A strange parallel between what children read and how adults die may portend decline and fall for the United States, a psychologist said Wednesday.

In fact, he said, you may be able to predict 25 years or more in advance the death rates from murders, suicides or ulcers—and even the fates of nations—from how children are brought up.

For it is here that the chain reaction seems to begin—in the motives for life taught to a child, the need for achievement versus the need for power, said Dr. Stanley A. Rudin of Dalhousie University, Halifax, N.S., Canada.

Speaking to a meeting of the International Congress on Psychology, he explained it this way:

Certain types of death—notably murder, suicide and cirrhosis of the liver (from alcoholism)—are associated with aggressive behavior.

But death from ulcers and high blood pressure (hypertension) stem from inhibited or repressed behavior.

Both nations and people who have a high need for achievement have learned to inhibit themselves, control their aggressions. This costs them in terms of dying from ulcers and high blood pressure.

But nations and people with a high need for power show a high rate of murder, suicide and cirrhosis—and these nations tend to be totalitarian and warlike.

In history's view, Rudin said, the need-power nations tend to start wars—and the need-achievement nations to finish them.

But oddly in the United States there have been for some 50 years indications that the motivations of the people are changing. The need for achievement is declining and the need for power increasing, he said.

Much of his study is based on correlating death rates with work reported in a book, "The Achieving Society" by Dr. David G. McClelland of Harvard University.

McClelland drew parallels between the motivational teaching of children's books—and their later manifestation in terms of economic development.

Trends Paralleled

Remarkably the kind of stories children read directly parallel the kind of death trends that show up 25 years or more later, Rudin said.

He studied 17 nations generally equal in other respects. He found "perfect" correlation between death rates and the achievement-power indications. By way of example, he explained it this way:

". . . if you frustrate an Englishman, he will keep a stiff upper lip and develop an ulcer; if you frustrate a Frenchman, he will drink himself to death; if you frustrate an Irishman, he will die of angry hypertension; if you frustrate a Dane . . . he will shoot himself; and if you frustrate an American, he will shoot you, then establish a million-dollar aid program for your relatives. Then he will die of an ulcer."

If—after further study—these indications prove to be reliable criteria for measuring a nation's future, Rudin said, they would be invaluable for nations wanting to guard against decline, perhaps by protecting and guiding their national motivations.

He said a yet-unpublished study of the Soviet Union's motivations, based only on the magazine USSR which is designed for foreign consumption, shows the Soviets to be high in need for achievement, low in a need for power.

Strange Parallel May Portend Decline And Fall Of U.S.

. . . HOW CHILDREN ARE BROUGHT UP, WHAT THEY READ GIVE CLUES TO FUTURE

Washington (AP) — A strange parallel between what children read and how adults die may portend decline and fall for the United States, a psychologist said Wednesday.

In fact, he said, you may be able to predict 25 years or more in advance the death rates from murders, suicides or ulcers—and even the fates of nations—from how children are brought up.

For it is here that the chain reaction seems to begin—in the motives for life taught to a child, the need for achievement versus the need for power, said Dr. Stanley A. Rudin of Dalhousie University, Halifax, N.S., Canada.

Speaking to a meeting of the International Congress on Psychology, he explained it this way:

Certain types of death—notably murder, suicide and cirrhosis of the liver (from alcoholism)—are associated with aggressive behavior.

But death from ulcers and high blood pressure (hypertension) stem from inhibited or repressed behavior.

Both nations and people who have a high need for achievement have learned to inhibit themselves, control their aggressions. This costs them in terms of dying from ulcers and high blood pressure.

But nations and people with a high need for power show a high rate of murder, suicide and cirrhosis—and these nations tend to be totalitarian and warlike.

In history's view, Rudin said, the need-power nations tend to start wars—and the need-achievement nations to finish them.

But oddly in the United States there have been for some 50 years indications that the motivations of the people are changing. The need for achievement is declining and the need for power increasing, he said.

Much of his study is based on correlating death rates with work reported in a book, "The Achieving Society" by Dr. David G. McClelland of Harvard University.

McClelland drew parallels between the motivational teaching of children's books—and their later manifestation in terms of economic development.

Trends Paralleled

Remarkably the kind of stories children read directly parallel the kind of death trends that show up 25 years or more later, Rudin said.

He studied 17 nations generally equal in other respects. He found "perfect" correlation between death rates and the achievement-power indications. By way of example, he explained it this way:

". . . if you frustrate an Englishman, he will keep a stiff upper lip and develop an ulcer; if you frustrate a Frenchman, he will drink himself to death; if you frustrate an Irishman, he will die of angry hypertension; if you frustrate a Dane . . . he will shoot himself; and if you frustrate an American, he will shoot you, then establish a million-dollar aid program for your relatives. Then he will die of an ulcer."

If—after further study—these indications prove to be reliable criteria for measuring a nation's future, Rudin said, they would be invaluable for nations wanting to guard against decline, perhaps by protecting and guiding their national motivations.

He said a yet-unpublished study of the Soviet Union's motivations, based only on the magazine USSR which is designed for foreign consumption, shows the Soviets to be high in need for achievement, low in a need for power.

Establish Relations

Amman, Jordon (AP)—Jordan and the Soviet Union agreed to establish diplomatic relations and exchange ambassadors. It will be the first relations between them.

Margaret's Public Image Improving

. . . BUT STILL CAN'T MATCH HER FIGURE

London (AP) — Princess Margaret reached the age of 33 Wednesday with a public image that still can't match her shapely figure. The royal image is, however, improving.

A year ago one of her friends said to another:

"It's too bad, but she and her husband would be near the bottom in any royal family popularity poll."

"Agreed," replied the friend, "and they get one of the worst presses in this country."

Hard To Fault

At 33, it would be hard to fault Margaret's figure.

Many women of the Princess' short stature — only an inch or so over 5 feet—begin to bulge in their early 30's, especially after they've had a baby. The Princess's vital statistics, however, are holding firm.

No one could say that she and her husband, Lord Snowdon, are unpopular with the public, but they don't generate the swoons and raves accorded other members of the royal family.

Reasons

Several things account for this.

Criticism has been made several times in the House of Commons over the government's plan to spend 67,000 pounds ($187,600) in renovating the Princess' new rent-free home. Margaret found her first house too small. Both houses are owned by the Princess' sister, the Queen, but their upkeep is borne by the government.

The Princess also drew criticism last year when she and her husband flew to the West Indies for a winter vacation.

A row developed when a passenger—who held a first class ticket reservation on the same plane—complained that he and others were shifted out of the first class section in order that Margaret and Snowdon could ride alone in that area.

There was more criticism because the Princess left her son, then 3 months old, and took the West Indian holiday.

Margaret's husband often has been criticized for accepting a peerage and the Princess' detractors say she had a lot to do with the decision to make him an Earl.

Before his marriage to Margaret, Lord Snowdon was Antony Armstrong-Jones, a society photographer.

During the last 12 months, however, there's been a sharp falling off in criticism of the Princess. There's also been a subtle change in her.

'New Woman'

With a baby of her own, a home of her own and a husband with whom she's deeply in love, she seems like a new woman.

She's given up the night-club circuit. She works harder for charity. She's become interested in the ballet and other arts.

As for the birthday itself: Margaret and her husband spent it with the Earl and Countess of Dalkeith of Drumlanrig Castle in the Lowlands of Scotland—shooting grouse.

His lordship, Walter Francis John Montagu-Douglas-Scott, Earl Dalkeith, arranged a birthday party.

Pentagon Feels Soviets Don't Have Better Missile Defense

EDITOR'S NOTE—One of the key arguments in the debate over the limited nuclear test ban treaty is whether the Soviet Union is ahead of the United States in progress toward an anti-missile defense system and whether this country needs to conduct new atmospheric tests to catch up. The position of the Defense Department, which is endorsed by the Kennedy administration, is set in the following article.

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington (AP) — The Pentagon stands pat on its contention that Russia hasn't made a better mousetrap for missiles —and so American rockets can beat a path to the Soviet door if necessary.

The Defense Department's chief scientist, Dr. Harold Brown, included in his testimony Wednesday before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing on the limited nuclear test ban his views on anti-ballistic missile and missile systems.

His statement represented another official reply to the testimony of Dr. Edward Teller, famous nuclear physicist, who said he believes "the Russians have acquired the knowledge" needed for an anti-ballistic missile (ABM) system. Teller also said nobody in this country, including Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, can know how much progress Russia has made in establishing an ABM system.

'Comparable'

Brown, director of defense research and engineering, made these points:

1. The best present judgment is that our ABM development efforts are comparable in magnitude and success with those of the Soviets'" and "any deployed system which the Soviets are likely to have now or in the near future does not appear to be as effective, almost certainly not more effective" than the Nike Zeus system—which the Defense Department has withheld from production on the ground that it was inadequate. An improved Nike-X system now is under development, along with the Zeus.

2. U. S. "penetration aids" —which means, among other things, the use of decoys released from ICBM'S to create a mess of false targets to conceal the real warhead—now under development will be effective even against much better systems than the Zeus and the presumably similar Soviet system.

Warheads Not Problem

3.Warheads for ABM missiles are not the primary problem. They can be improved through underground testing, which is permitted under the test ban pact. However, further studies of certain side-effects of nuclear explosion, such as blackout of radar, as well as blast effect, could influence new designs.

4. The ABM problem, thus, is not viewed as the major difficulty. This, instead, involves "capability to acquire (locate) early, to discriminate decoys from warheads, to handle large volumes of traffic and to hit and kill the targets . . . most of these problems have nothing to do with further nuclear testing."

Brown, in the main, was repeating in more detail statements previously made by both McNamara and President Kennedy.

Kennedy, in a news conference early this month, said the problem of developing a missile defense appears beyond both U.S. and Russian capability and that "perhaps it can never" be solved.

Radar Difficulties

He talked about the problem of determining, by radar, between the true warhead target and "100 objects flying through the air at thousands of miles an hour."

Therefore, Kennedy said, "The problem is not the size of the bomb but rather the problem of discrimination, the problem of selectivity, targeting and all the rest."

The United States now has more than 500 strategic missiles and plans a total of 1,700 by 1955, McNamara told the Senate committee.

It may be assumed that a large percentage of the ICBM's — although perhaps not the submarine—launched Polaris missiles — now are equipped with decoys to confuse radar detection, identification and tracking by an enemy. The Polaris, with a present range of about 1,700 miles, is in flight for only a few minutes, making detection difficult even if decoys are not used. On the other hand, the big missiles, with ranges up to about 9,000 miles take a half hour or more to reach target despite peak speeds of 14,000 or 15,000 miles an hour.

Two Sides

There are, of course, two sides to the coin. What the United States can do with decoys probably can be done by Russia.

The Army, which has developed the Nike Zeus, says it is confident of the ability of the missiles to intercept and destroy an incoming ballistic missile. It has announced 7 successful intercepts of Atlas ICBMs. The Air Force fired the ICBMs from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California, with the Army launching the Zeus ABMs from Kwajelein Island, in the Central Pacific.

However, on the ground that it would be security information, the military has not disclosed how extensively these ICBM targets were equipped with decoy systems.

And this question of decoy effectiveness is at the heart of the defense department's refusal to produce and deploy the exisiting ABM weapons.

Christian Unity Appeal Renewed By Pope Paul VI

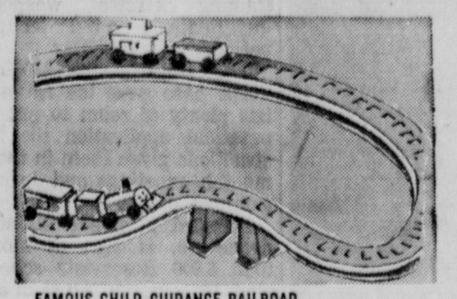

Castel Gandolfo, Italy (AP)— Pope Paul VI Wednesday renewed his appeal for Christian unity and invited pilgrims the world over to pray for those "who are far away from Christ."

Speaking in a general audience granted to thousands of persons at his summer residence here, the pope said:

"You should always be the promoters of the unity of the Church by working and praying . . . so that the separated brethren could one day enjoy our same happiness."

3 Presidents Lead School Cooks Meet

By DICK STUCKEY
Star Staff Writer

Three presidents led 450 Nebraska high school cooks and cafeteria managers at the Nebraska School Food Service Association convention Wednesday.

Mrs. Jepson

Presiding over the meeting was Mrs. Lucille Jepson of South Sioux City. Taking the reins of the organization after Wednesday's convention will be Mrs. Elma Connely of Omaha.

Newly announced president-elect for the following year is Mrs. E. D. Jensen of Broken Bow.

The Wednesday meeting was interjected into this week's Nebraska School Lunch Workshop, sponsored by the State Education and Health Departments and the NSFSA.

The group represents the corps of Nebraska cooks and managers of a school lunch program dishing up over 17 million meals to youth last year.

Mrs. Connely

Mrs. Jensen

Daily participation in the school lunch program in Nebraska is 104,764. Total operation requires a budget of nearly $7 million.

Likes And Dislikes

Stressing the necessity of educating youth to a regularly practiced proper diet in the face of modern sub-par physical fitness, the cooks and managers discussed what foods kids like and don't like.

Hamburger in any form, protein-packed pizza, milk (9,000 gallons daily in Nebraska) and attractive desserts top the meanu favorites.

Surprisingly, spinach has at least become an accepted, if not particularly favorite, dish in school lunches.

Mrs. Jensen credited a proper dose of diet education along with the edibles for the spinach attitude.

"Sometimes they even ask for it," she said.

Dislikes Cranberries and rice were mentioned.

Cautious girls shy away from potatoes and starchy foods, President Jepsen noted.

Cure Of Time

Many other dishes good for the kids are balked at originally, according to cooks-in-the know, but educating youth to the value of a proper diet to physical fitness can solve any eat-up problem.

School Food Services Director Allen A. Elliott predicted little "experimentation" with dishes and menus, mainly because most recipes used some cause most recipes used come tried and tested from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Elliott said prices for approved lunch programs in Nebraska range from nothing to 35 cents. Schools at Macy and Winnebago offer the handouts, while 10 schools, including some in Omaha, Kearney and Alliance charge the highest rate of the 554 schools now on the lunch program.

The average price is about 28 cents, Elliott said.

Lincoln A La Carte

Nine schools in the state serve an ala carte lunch not on the school food services menu. Seven of the 9 are in Lincoln, including the Capital City's 5 high schools and several junior high schools.

The a la carte program offers "unbalanced" diet selections for students who wish the snacks. The program differs from NSFSA menus in that the latter emphasizes health and balanced diet for increased physical fitness and mental alertness in the classroom.

Elliott said several Nebraska school system superintendents have written that the "balanced" program has increased scholarship and decreased illness. However no study has been made to accurately conclude this, Elliott said.

50% Utilization

Two-thirds of Nebraska prepsters and lower class students have "balanced" lunch programs available to them, Elliott said. However only about one-half of them, or about 35% of Nebraska's students, utilize the lunch.

The percentage figure is going up, Elliott said, but not rapidly. In 1950 it was about 10% less.

Eat-a t-school incentives have been started in many programs. These include dances, movies and intramural programs over the noon hour.

Elliott said that the school lunch programs evolved across the nation after a committee looking into a 40% World War II draft rejection figure because of sub-par physical fitness reported the washout due mainly to poor diet during youth.

Aref Leaves For Meeting With Nasser

Damascus, Syria (AP) —Iraqi President Abdel Salam Aref left Baghdad Wednesday for Cairo for talks with President Nasser in a bid to save the projected Union of Syria, Iraq and the United Arab Republic.

Baghdad radio said the president was accompanied by 6 cabinet ministers and the army chief of staff, Major General Taher Yahya.

Aref was quoted by the radio as saying he would do his utmost to settle the political differences between Nasser and the ruling Baath Socialist Party in Syria and Iraq. It was this feud that spoiled plans for a federation of the 3 countries next month.

Aref is scheduled to visit Damascus when the Cairo talks are finished. He is expected here Friday or Saturday.

Magistrate Can't Determine Which Twin Was Driver

Whitby, Ont. (AP) — Which twin was driving?

Magistrate Harry Jermun couldn't decide so he dismissed a charge of driving a motorcycle while under suspension against William A. Puckrin, 18, of Pickering, Ont.

Const. Lawrence Watson said that when he stopped the pair, William said he was the driver. The twins both testified that Robert was driving. "I don't believe these fellows," said the magistrate. "But there is reasonable doubt."

MARK MISSED BY 2,000 MILES

Milwaukee (AP)—A Japanese salesman missed his mark by 2,000 miles.

Deputy Sheriff George Hilbert said Wednesday a cab driver hailed him in suburban Glendale and asked him to help find the Hudson Trading Co. on Riverfront Drive. The driver's fare, the salesman, wanted to go there.

There was a Riverfront Drive, but no Hudson Trading Co.

The confused salesman showed Hilbert his itinerary. He discovered that the firm is in Milwaukie, Ore., not Milwaukee, Wis.

The unidentified salesman and the cab driver left for the airport.

Lincoln Marines Wind Up Annual Summer Training

Camp Pendleton, Calif. — The 3rd Engineer Maintenance Co., U.S. Marine Corps Reserve, of Lincoln, Neb., has completed two weeks of annual filed training here.

The Lincoln leathernecks, under the direction of the 1st Marine Division's 1st Force Service Regiment, underwent two weeks of extensive field training exercises, weapons qualifications and lecture periods.

The 125,000—acre Marine Corps base gave the Reservists plenty of room to put to practical application the instructions given them in their monthly meetings and during summer camp.

The 3rd Engineer Maintenance Co. is part of more than 6,000 Reservists scheduled to undergo summer training at Camp Pendelton this year.

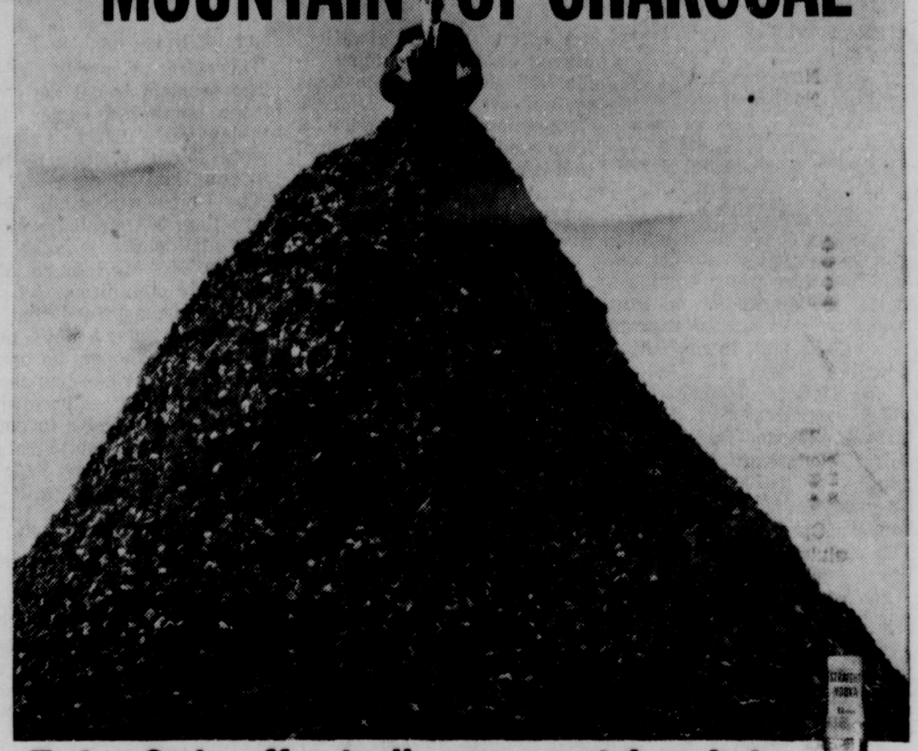

YOUTH ADMITS SETTING FIRES

Belleville, Ill. (AP)—A 9-year-old Belleville boy has admitted setting fires that have caused nearly $200,000 damage in Belleville, police said Wednesday.

A police spokesman said the boy admitted setting at least 23 fires, one of them causing $100,000 damage at the Hiken Furniture Co., July 10.

The youth, police said, told them he also started a fire which caused $70,000 damage at the Steller Mfg. Co. last March 10.

3 Presidents Lead School Cooks Meet

By DICK STUCKEY
Star Staff Writer

Three presidents led 450 Nebraska high school cooks and cafeteria managers at the Nebraska School Food Service Association convention Wednesday.

Mrs. Jepson

Presiding over the meeting was Mrs. Lucille Jepson of South Sioux City. Taking the reins of the organization after Wednesday's convention will be Mrs. Elma Connely of Omaha.

Newly announced president-elect for the following year is Mrs. E. D. Jensen of Broken Bow.

The Wednesday meeting was interjected into this week's Nebraska School Lunch Workshop, sponsored by the State Education and Health Departments and the NSFSA.

The group represents the corps of Nebraska cooks and managers of a school lunch program dishing up over 17 million meals to youth last year.

Mrs. Connely

Mrs. Jensen

Daily participation in the school lunch program in Nebraska is 104,764. Total operation requires a budget of nearly $7 million.

Likes And Dislikes

Stressing the necessity of educating youth to a regularly practiced proper diet in the face of modern sub-par physical fitness, the cooks and managers discussed what foods kids like and don't like.

Hamburger in any form, protein-packed pizza, milk (9,000 gallons daily in Nebraska) and attractive desserts top the meanu favorites.

Surprisingly, spinach has at least become an accepted, if not particularly favorite, dish in school lunches.

Mrs. Jensen credited a proper dose of diet education along with the edibles for the spinach attitude.

"Sometimes they even ask for it," she said.

Dislikes Cranberries and rice were mentioned.

Cautious girls shy away from potatoes and starchy foods, President Jepsen noted.

Cure Of Time

Many other dishes good for the kids are balked at originally, according to cooks-in-the know, but educating youth to the value of a proper diet to physical fitness can solve any eat-up problem.

School Food Services Director Allen A. Elliott predicted little "experimentation" with dishes and menus, mainly because most recipes used some cause most recipes used come tried and tested from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Elliott said prices for approved lunch programs in Nebraska range from nothing to 35 cents. Schools at Macy and Winnebago offer the handouts, while 10 schools, including some in Omaha, Kearney and Alliance charge the highest rate of the 554 schools now on the lunch program.

The average price is about 28 cents, Elliott said.

Lincoln A La Carte

Nine schools in the state serve an ala carte lunch not on the school food services menu. Seven of the 9 are in Lincoln, including the Capital City's 5 high schools and several junior high schools.

The a la carte program offers "unbalanced" diet selections for students who wish the snacks. The program differs from NSFSA menus in that the latter emphasizes health and balanced diet for increased physical fitness and mental alertness in the classroom.

Elliott said several Nebraska school system superintendents have written that the "balanced" program has increased scholarship and decreased illness. However no study has been made to accurately conclude this, Elliott said.

50% Utilization

Two-thirds of Nebraska prepsters and lower class students have "balanced" lunch programs available to them, Elliott said. However only about one-half of them, or about 35% of Nebraska's students, utilize the lunch.

The percentage figure is going up, Elliott said, but not rapidly. In 1950 it was about 10% less.

Eat-at-school incentives have been started in many programs. These include dances, movies and intramural programs over the noon hour.

Elliott said that the school lunch programs evolved across the nation after a committee looking into a 40% World War II draft rejection figure because of sub-par physical fitness reported the washout due mainly to poor diet during youth.

Aref Leaves For Meeting With Nasser

Damascus, Syria (AP) —Iraqi President Abdel Salam Aref left Baghdad Wednesday for Cairo for talks with President Nasser in a bid to save the projected Union of Syria, Iraq and the United Arab Republic.

Baghdad radio said the president was accompanied by 6 cabinet ministers and the army chief of staff, Major General Taher Yahya.

Aref was quoted by the radio as saying he would do his utmost to settle the political differences between Nasser and the ruling Baath Socialist Party in Syria and Iraq. It was this feud that spoiled plans for a federation of the 3 countries next month.

Aref is scheduled to visit Damascus when the Cairo talks are finished. He is expected here Friday or Saturday.

Magistrate Can't Determine Which Twin Was Driver

Whitby, Ont. (AP) — Which twin was driving?

Magistrate Harry Jermun couldn't decide so he dismissed a charge of driving a motorcycle while under suspension against William A. Puckrin, 18, of Pickering, Ont.

Const. Lawrence Watson said that when he stopped the pair, William said he was the driver. The twins both testified that Robert was driving. "I don't believe these fellows," said the magistrate. "But there is reasonable doubt."

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	7 ♠

Opening lead — jack of clubs.

There are easy hands to play, and there are difficult ones. Here is a difficult one.

South is in seven spades and West leads a club. Declarer realizes he has no sure thing going for him, since either the spades or hearts may break badly for him. Obviously, he will try to bring home dummy's hearts rather than attempt to ruff his diamonds in dummy.

Let's say he wins the club with the ace, cashes the queen of spades, and then plays a spade to the king, West showing out. He does not dare to draw another round of trumps now, because if he does, and runs into a 4-1 heart break, he will find it impossible to make the contract.

So he leads a heart to the ace and continues with the king, hoping nothing dreadful will happen. Unfortunately, East ruffs the king and South goes down one.

Let's grant that South is unlucky, having followed this course of play. He would have made the hand if the spades had been divided 2-2 or the hearts 3-2—and this was certainly not much to ask for.

Nevertheless, he had a better method of play that figured to improve his chances considerably. After cashing the queen of spades at trick two, he cashes the ace of hearts next. True, this might be ruffed if the hearts are divided 5-0, but that is a remote possibility.

Declarer now plays a spade to the king. If both opponents follow suit, the hand is over. But if, as in the actual case, West shows out, the contract is still 100% sure, regardless of how the hearts are divided.

Declarer cashes the king of clubs, discarding the king of hearts. Then he ruffs a heart, enters dummy with a trump, and ruffs another heart. The rest of the tricks are now his.

This method of play caters not only to a 3-1 trump division, but also to the possible 4-1 heart division. Consequently, it is a markedly superior line of play.

Dear Abby

Hands-Off Policy Is A Good Safeguard For Reputation

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I usually agree with your answers, but I think you were wrong to tell that 14-year-old girl who was only holding hands with a boy at the baseball game that "any show of affection was out of place in public". What's wrong with holding hands in public. Abby? Isn't it a lot better than doing other things on the sneak? Are you getting to be an old fogy or something? You sure let us kids down this time.

DISAPPOINTED

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: I'm sorry if I let you down, but if it's any consolation, you have lots of company. There is NOTHING wrong with holding hands. But it leads to other displays of affection, such as slipping the arm around the waist. Then a big controversy develops over WHERE the waist begins and where it ends. Honest affection is beautiful, but a hands-off policy in public is a good safe-guard for a girl's reputation. And a boy's, too.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: I visited my son recently and never was I hurt more in my life. My daughter-in-law works part-time for a doctor, and all the time I was there she worked, which was all right with me because it gave me a chance to cook, sew, keep her house and take care of her two adorable children. The killing blow came when her best friend called me up and told me that my daughter-in-law ASKED the doctor to let her work full time during my visit there because she hated me and did not care to be at home while I was there. Do you think I should talk to my son about this?

HURT MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: First, your informant is more of a fool than a friend, and may even be a liar. So, ignore the report and enjoy your visit. P.S. With a "best friend" like her, your daughter-in-law doesn't need any enemies.

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl of 11, but Iam very big for my age. My problem is I don't know how to ask my mother for a bra. But that isn't the hardest part. She is handicapped with "M.S" and even if she said yes my Dad would have to buy it for me, and that would be very embarrassing.

Please tell me what to do because I am getting ashamed.

"JUST ME"

DEAR "ME": Confide in an aunt, a grown girl cousin or even a friendly neighbor lady, and I'm sure one of them will be glad to take you shopping. And it is nothing to be ashamed of, honey, so don't be timid.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: The woman who "lied" nine years off her age in order to capture a certain widower reminded me of my own experience. When I met this very attractive older gentleman, I wanted so much to be considered "wife" material that I ADDED five years to my age so he wouldn't think I was too "young" for him. We are married now, and couldn't be happier. I later confessed my scheme, and we both had a good laugh.

A Whirl Of Activity In Suburbia

PATRICIAN HEIGHTS

It was cat food cake with all the trimmings at a combination surprise farewell and birthday party held at the home of Ginger and Tammie Reilley, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Reilley.

The farewell honoree in the neighborhood was Miss Georgeann Santoro who has been visiting at the home of her uncle, aunt and cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Preiss for the summer months.

Georgeann will leave her summer playmates this evening to begin her trip home to Newark, N.J.

Sharing honors with Georgeann at the afternoon patio party was Muffin, the Misses Ginger and Tammie Reilley's "kitten" who, we might add, was one year old on Wednesday.

Guests for the afternoon which included cookies for the children and a cat food cake for Muffin were Barbara Holmstedt, Sherry Maaske, Carol Multcher and the honoree, Georgeann Santoro.

Colorado is certainly a popular vacation site this summer as Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Maaske and their children, Sherry, Kevin and Krista, have just returned home from a seven-day stay in the mountains.

While vacationing in their mountain cottage the Maaske family enjoyed fishing, horseback riding, and the scenic tours through the countryside.

A certain little miss in the Patrician Heights neighborhood now is seven years old as of last Saturday. She is Miss Barbara Holmstedt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Holmstedt.

Barbara celebrated her birthday with an afternoon tour of the Children's Zoo and the Capitol with Ginger and Tammie Reilley, Heidi McKee, John Bucy, Annie Santoro, and her brother, Roger.

PARK MANOR

The social calendars are awhirl this week in Park Manor with news of patio dinners, bridal showers, and guests — a variety of activity that is keeping busy Suburban residents on their tiptoes.

Entertaining last week at a patio supper were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hunter who honored Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Rogers and Judith and Kendall, who soon will leave Lincoln. The Rogers family will leave next Sunday for their home in Wabash, Ind., where the Rev. Mr. Rogers will be minister of the Church of the Brethren in Wabash.

There is more news of wedding plans in the making this morning for we have a shower honoree in the Park Manor area.

Miss Nancy Kurtz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Kurtz, was honored at a grocery shower last night when Mrs. Jack Reigert and Mrs. Virgil Reigert were hostesses.

Guests at the party included friends and relatives of the bridegroom-elect.

Miss Kurtz will become the bride of James Eitel on September 9.

The Park Manor home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barlow was a beehive of activity last week when Mr. Barlow's brother-in-law and sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Chesebro, Carol and Mary, arrived from Marshall, Minn.

The Chesebro family were in the Lincoln area from Thursday until Saturday morning when they began their journey home.

Two days at Lake Mahoney near North Platte was the holiday trip for Mr. and Mrs. Robert Markel and their sons, Randy and Kent last weekend when they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dee Koch.

Fishing, swimming and boating filled the weekend schedule of activities for the Markel family before they returned home on Sunday.

Interesting Program Planned

A very noted 'notable' in the world of flower arrangements will be arriving in Lincoln later this week. She is Mrs. Joe Wolff of Bellevue, Wash., who is to be the guest speaker at the meeting of the Garden Club of Lincoln which will be held on Friday evening in the Telephone building auditorium, and which will be attended by only members and invited guests.

Mrs. Wolff, who knows flower arrangements from A to Z and who is a national judge will demonstrate a variety of arrangements as well as lecture on her favorite subject. The guest speaker's flower arrangement experience covers considerable territory including Japanese (she has an instructor's diploma from the Japanese Senke School of Flower Arrangement); table settings, modern arrangements, abstract arrangements — You name it, Mrs. Wolff can do it.

Incidentally, Mrs. Wolff staged the flower show at the Seattle World's Fair, has done innumberable All-State holiday shows in the state of Washington where she has held court in the floral realm during a period of years — She has served as president of the Seattle Chrysanthemum Society and has held office in the State Federation of Garden Clubs, plus being a member of the National Primrose Society, for which she also serves as judge.

PATRICIAN HEIGHTS

It was cat food cake with all the trimmings at a combination surprise farewell and birthday party held at the home of Ginger and Tammie Reilley, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Reilley.

The farewell honoree in the neighborhood was Miss Georgeann Santoro who has been visiting at the home of her uncle, aunt and cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Preiss for the summer months.

Georgeann will leave her summer playmates this evening to begin her trip home to Newark, N.J.

Sharing honors with Georgeann at the afternoon patio party was Muffin, the Misses Ginger and Tammie Reilley's "kitten" who, we might add, was one year old on Wednesday.

Guests for the afternoon which included cookies for the children and a cat food cake for Muffin were Barbara Holmstedt, Sherry Maaske, Carol Multcher and the honoree, Georgeann Santoro

Colorado is certainly a popular vacation site this summer as Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Maaske and their children, Sherry, Kevin and Krista, have just returned home from a seven-day stay in the mountains.

While vacationing in their mountain cottage the Maaske family enjoyed fishing, horseback riding, and the scenic tours through the countryside.

A certain little miss in the Patrician Heights neighborhood now is seven years old as of last Saturday. She is Miss Barbara Holmstedt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Holmstedt.

Barbara celebrated her birthday with an afternoon tour of the Children's Zoo and the Capitol with Ginger and Tammie Reilley, Heidi McKee, John Bucy, Annie Santoro, and her brother, Roger.

PARK MANOR

The social calendars are awhirl this week in Park Manor with news of patio dinners, bridal showers, and guests — a variety of activity that is keeping busy Suburban residents on their tiptoes.

Late August Weddings

The wedding of Miss Margaret Hentzen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hentzen of Seward, and Jack C. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clark of Seward, took place on Saturday evening, Aug. 17. The ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Dale Krampe at the United Church of Christ in Seward.

Mrs. Roy Neil of Omaha was her sister's matron of honor, and the maid of honor was Miss Alice Hentzen of Seward, also a sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Ann Steinheider, Omaha, and Mrs. Dan Wright, Lincoln.

Serving as best man was Mike Mehring, Denver, and the ushers were Merlin Perry, West Point; Dean Jacobs, Staplehurst; Richard Hastings, Dan Vogt and Don Vogt, Seward.

White Chantilly lace and silk organza fashioned the bride's gown. The lace bodice was designed with a Sabrina neckline, jeweled with pearls and sequins, and appliques of the lace trimmed the full skirt of organza, which continued into a chapel train. A pearl crown held her veil of illusion, and she carried a single white orchid showered with valley-lilies.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark will make their home at 2100 Euclid. The bride will receive her degree on Friday from Lincoln General Hospital School of Nursing. Mr. Clark, a member of Triangle fraternity, is a student at the University of Nebraska.

Bouquet taffeta in traditional white was chosen by the bride for her wedding gown. The long-sleeved bodice was accented by a squared neckline, touched with appliques of imported lace, and the bell-shaped skirt was detailed at the back waist by a flat bow of satin and extended into a cotillion train. A circlet of pearls held to the head her veil of illusion, and she carried a cascade of white sweetheart roses and gardenias.

State Auditor Ray C. Johnson says he has found another mistake in the 1963-65 budget bill.

Johnson called the item to the attention of the governor's office for possible inclusion in a special legislative session call.

Johnson noted that Section 14 of LB811, the controversial stop-gap bill enacted at the end of the session dealing with time sales, calls for establishment of a retail installment sales fund.

Into this fund comes money paid by firms getting State Banking Department licenses.

Money from the fund "when appropriated by the Legislature, shall be available to the director (of the Banking Department) for the purpose of paying the cost of administering and enforcing the provisions of this act," according to LB811.

Nothing Appropriated

Johnson said the difficulty is that the omnibus budget bill makes no appropriation for the banking department out of the new fund.

Thus the money can be collected, but cannot be spent, the auditor explained.

Nearly $25,000 could be expected in the fund through issuance of the $100 licenses, according to Deputy Banking Director C. Robert Haines.

Funds for financing of the service bound with issuing of licenses will have to come from someone else's money without an appropriation, he said.

Other Mistakes

Other errors reported in the budget bill include:

—Misplacement of $20,000 for Division of State Services for the Visually Handicapped.

—Driver education funds misplaced in the Motor Vehicle Department rather than the Education Department.

—Not making it possible for the Murals Commission to pay $10,000 in bills out of its $36,000 appropriation until early next year.

Girl CAP Cadet Wins Top Award

Miss Louise Ellis, a cadet in the Civil Air Patrol, was awarded the certificate of proficiency, the CAP's highest training award.

Miss Ellis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Ellis of 6425 Adams, also was promoted to second lieutenant.

Maj. George Snider, commander of the Lincoln squadron, and Cadet Maj. James Winney, chairman of the Nebraska Wing Advisory Council, made the presentation.

Governor, AEC Man To Go Over Industrial Atom

A federal official will meet here with Gov. Frank Morrison Sept. 6 to discuss industrial application of atomic energy.

An official of the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) will be on hand, it was announced Wednesday.

Morrison reported earlier a seminar sponsored jointly by the AEC and his office would be held to discuss possible industrial uses of radioactive sodium isotopes from the Hallam power plant. Radioactive isotopes are a by-product of the Hallam nuclear reactor, recently activated to full power by the AEC.

Setting of the seminar date will also be discussed at the Sept. 6 meeting.

The governor has long been interested in food irradiation in connection with atomic energy.

Morrison Has Doubts On Advisory Opinions

Ogallala (UPI)—Gov. Frank Morrison said Wednesday he was "skeptical" about permitting the Legislature to seek advisory opinions from the State Supreme Court, but that he would be willing to consider such a move in a special session of the Legislature.

The consideration of a constitutional amendment permitting such advisory opinions was among items recommended to be taken up in a special session by a special legislative study committee.

The committee also recommended remedial legislation be included in a special session to protect contracts written in good faith under the unconstitutional 1959 installment sales act. Another recommendation was to include legislation to revise the general usury law.

He's 'Not Sold'

"I'm not sold on letting the Legislature ask the Supreme Court for opinions," Morrison said. "I'm skeptical of it, but I'm willing to include it among matters to be discussed."

The governor said opinions from the attorney general's office should provide adequate protection to the Legislature. He said a court opinion was not needed on the 1959 act "because the 1959 Legislature had plenty of reason to believe it unconstitutional."

He said the attorney general had advised the body of the law's unconstitutionality.

Radical

"It's a dangerous thing for the Legislature to do," Morrison said, "and it's not necessary. It's a radical departure from the time-honored concept of judicial procedure in America."

Morrison also said a special session of the Legislature will probably be held the first week in October as the legislative study committee recommended.

He said he was in the process of contacting senators to determine what time would be the best for them to go back to Lincoln.

New School Bus Driver Law Poses Problem

A new state law requiring annual examination of school bus drivers has posed a serious probelm throughout the state, the Motor Vehicle Department reported Wednesday.

Schools are faced with the possibility of not having a licensed bus driver on hand to transport students—and school opens next week in some areas.

William J. Edwards, chief examiner of the Motor Vehicle Department's Licensing Division, said a "high" percentage of bus drivers have failed the examination and some as many as 3 times.

"I would assume if they can't pass the test then they can't legally drive kids to school," Edwards said.

This same interpretation of the law, LB83, was given by Education Commissioner Dr. Floyd A. Miller. "The law seems clear on this point," he said.

Edwards said in some areas of the state 75 to 80% of the bus driver have failed to pass the examination.

Failures General

He emphasized, however, failures are not localized, but statewide.

The examination consists of 3 parts: written, eye and driving tests.

Edwards said the biggest stumbling block has been the written part of the examination. "The failure percentage of the driving part of the exam has not been alarming," he said.

But the surprising fact, Edwards said, is that the written examination is no different from that given a person seeking an automobile driver's license. "The written tests are identical," he said.

Edwards said no particular question or questions in the written examination have been causing the problem. "Every question has been missed at least once," he said.

No Limit

He said drivers are allowed to take the examination as many times as they want. But, the bind is the department only has 20 examiners and cannot conduct examinations throughout the state every day.

"In some cases we can only give the examination once every month because of our work load," Edwards said.

Miller said he has received few letters on the matter from local school officials, but admitted the seriousness of the problem may not have an impact until after schools open.

"I don't know what the answer would be," Miller said. "It's possible the new law will not be enforced to an extreme point immediately because of the late date the new bill took effect."

The bill was sponsored by Sens. Elvin Adamson of Nenzel, Arnold Ruhnke of Plymouth and W. H. Hasebroock of West Point. It went into effect Aug. 1.

Little Time

Edwards noted this left his division little time to administer the examination.

"There are about 4,000 bus drivers in the state and we thought we could examine them all and give some re-examinations by Sept. 1," he said. "But we didn't anticipate this large failure percentage."

Edwards also said the fact that many bus drivers are failing the conventional driver's license written test points up the need for a driver re-examination program in Nebraska.

A bill seeking such a program failed in the 1963 Legislature.

"The purpose of re-examin tion," he said, "is to make better drivers, not take them off the road."

State Air Guard's Mission Finished

The chief mission of the Nebraska Air National Guard has been completed, it was announced Wednesday.

Maj. Billy J. Pegram said all guard pilots and aircraft have qualified at Volk Field, Wis.

"We had 27 pilots and 24 F86-L's make the grade," he said. "They were rated on rocket firings over a Lake Michigan range."

To qualify a pilot has to score a hit on a tow-type target.

The Nebraskans completed their qualifying a day ahead of schedule, the spokesman noted.

The camp concludes Saturday.

JFK Calls For Even Tighter Rein On Federal Spending

Washington (AP) — President Kennedy called Wednesday for "an even tighter rein on federal expenditures" and foresaw the possibility of a smaller budget deficit in the next fiscal year.

The President gave his views in a letter to Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, expressing appreciation for committee approval of a two-step tax reduction and revision program. Kennedy again urged enactment of the bill this year, and expressed hope for strong bipartisan support.

"Let me stress once again," Kennedy wrote, "that the surest way to alter the pattern of deficits which has characterized 7 of the last 10 years is to enact at this session an effective tax reduction program. That program can both increase our national income and tax revenues and at the same time create a climate for the more prudent control of expenditures in the government as a whole."

Kennedy told Mills that he expects, if certain conditions are met, "to be able to submit next January a budget for fiscal 1965 involving an estimated deficit of less than the $9.2 billion forecast for fiscal 1964 by the secretary of the treasury in your executive sessions last week."

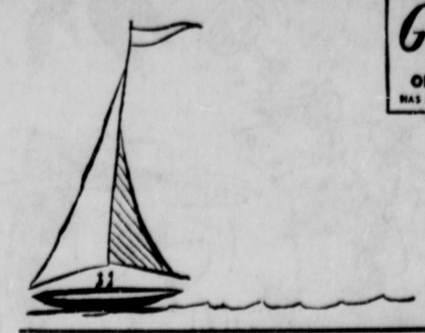

This, he said, is on the assumption that the tax program wrapped up in the committee bill is enacted and on the absence of "any unforeseen slowdown in the economy or any serious international contingency in the next 5 months."

The lower deficit, Kennedy said, is keyed to a policy of a long range goal of a balanced budget in a balanced, full-employment economy which he said cannot be achieved without a substantial tax cut to produce a higher national income.

And the tax reduction, he said, must be accompanied "by the exercise of an even tighter rein on federal expenditures, limiting outlays to only those expenditures which meet strict criteria of national need."

Theater Shows Deficit

London (AP) — The Royal Shakespeare Theater showed a deficit of 47,473 pounds ($132,924.40) last year, the theater governors were told. The theater operates at Stratford on Avon, and at the Aldwych and Arts theaters in London.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you. School Days Finish Golfing For Christie Schwartzkopf

. . . BOOKS OCCUPY TEEN PHENOM

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

When the school bells ring to open Lincoln schools Sept. 9, the golf clubs of one of the Capital City's top golfers will go into the closet.

"That (the opening school) generally means the end of the golf season for me," says Christie Schwartzkopf, who at 15 years of age is already one of Lincoln's top golf stars.

But as soon as school ends in early summer, it's back to the fairways for Christie and golf becomes her main activity during the summer months.

"I try to play every day during the summer vacation," she says. "Of course, I don't make that goal, but I generally don't miss more than one day a week."

Competition Limited

Statewide golf tournaments for the female set are limited with only the Ladies State Tourney and the Lincoln City Tournament offering major competition. But Christie keeps busy playing in club tournaments at Hillcrest Country Club and "just playing for fun."

The 1963 season was quite a comedown for the Lincoln High School sophomore in the trophy-collection department as she was upset in the state junior meet and moved up to the regular division of the Lincoln City Tournament where she lost to Jean Hyland in the semifinals.

This meant a slacking off for trophies to add to a large table in the Sam Schwartzkopf home at 930 Eldon Drive where trophies won by the Schwartzkopf family take up one corner of the living room.

Mother At Work

But while Christie wasn't bringing home any major trophies, her mother, Dorothy, added the Lincoln City and Nebraska State trophies to the table.

While she failed to win a major tournament the past year, Christie increased her golf travels and attended a national tournament for the first time.

She qualified in a tie for 5th with an 81 at the Western Girls Junior Tournament in Rockford, Ill. Christie was beaten in a first round match by Paula Smith of Mount Vernon, Ill.

"All the girls there were very serious about their golf," she says. "They all came from states where junior girls golf is a much bigger thing than it is in Nebraska."

Christie explained that other girls in the tournament were from states where they had 50 and more girls playing in their state junior girls tournaments. This is in contrast to Nebraska where only 7 were entered this summer.

Juniors Again In 1964

Christie, who won Lincoln City Junior titles in 1959-61-62 and the state junior crown in 1962, will be playing in the state junior meet again next year when the tourney will be held at the Omaha Field Club. She will not be 16 until after the state tourney and thus will not be eligible to play in the regular division.

But she will play for the regular championship in the Lincoln City Ladies Tournament, thanks to action taken recently by the Lincoln Womens Golf Association.

Chrisite was faced with a dilemma this summer at the conclusion of the Lincoln City Tournament. Each year the junior champion is invited to play with the regular lady golfers, but because Christie was junior champion last year she played with the regular group this summer.

With the junior tourney held in connection with the regular tournament, Christie could not qualify for the regular division next year because she could not play in the juniors this year.

Back To Juniors

This meant that either Christie would have to go back to the junior division next year where she easily outclasses any others in the field or a way had to be found to allow her to play with the regular golfers.

A proposal to cure this situation gained near-unanimous approval from the association. They voted to allow any junior golfer with a 12 or under handicap to play in the regular division.

One of her main goals at present is to win a state championship. She is looking forward to 1965 when she will get her first chance and it will come on her home course, Hillcrest Country Club, site of the 1965 Nebraska State Ladies Tournament.

Top Swimmer

Christie, who was started in golf by her father, Sam, then was turned over to Hillcrest pro Bunny Richards, gave up what was a promising swimming career to concentrate on her golf.

As a member of the Lincoln Swim Club, she and sister Sue, who is also quite a golfer, brought home more than their share of medals from most meets, including a first place in the breaststroke in a national AAU meet at Bartlesville, Okla., in 1959. But shortly after that she gave up swimming.

And now with her eye on 1965 and the state tournament at Hillcrest she has only her mother, Dorothy, and Jean Hyland standing between her and a state crown at the age of 16.

Two Homers By Mathews Pep 6-2 Win

San Francisco (AP) — Eddie Mathews walloped two homers, powering the Milwaukee Braves to a 6-2 victory over San Francisco Wednesday that sent the sagging Giants down to their 5th straight defeat.

The Milwaukee 3rd baseman hit the solo homers, his 17th and 18th, in the first and 5th innings, both off starter and loser Gaylord Perry.

Southpaw Bob Hendley won for the Braves, squaring his record at 8-8.

Milwaukee scored twice in the opening inning on a leadoff triple by Lee Maye, a sacrifice fly by Frank Bolling and Mathews' homer, and never was headed.

The Braves added a run in the 3rd on a single by Bolling and Hank Aaron's double, and made it 4-1 on Mathews 5th inning homer. Joe Torre's bases-loaded single in the 7th inning accounted for the final two runs.

Willie Mays doubled home a San Francisco run in the first and the Giants closed out their scoring in the 6th on a triple by Orlando Cepeda and Jose Pagan's single.

Peters Stops Red Sox, 7-1

Boston (AP) — Left-hander Gary Peters, Chicago White Sox rookie of the year hopeful, stopped Boston, 7-1, on 6 hits Wednesday night for his 9th consecutive victory and 14th of the season.

Peters got able support from rookie teammate Pete Ward, who opened the scoring with a solo homer, his 17th, in the 4th inning. Ward's grounder knocked in the final of 3 White Sox runs in the 5th.

Peters, who struck out 10, entered the contest with the lowest earned run average among major league starters —1.88—and did not damage his cause.

Arnie, Jack Tourney Favorites

Akron, Ohio (AP)— Defending champion Arnold Palmer and long-hitting Jack Nicklaus were solid favorites to win the $50,000 American Golf Classic, which begins Thursday.

Palmer proved he is ready for the 72-hole tournament over the 7,165-yard, par 70 Firestone Country Club course by firing a one-under-par 69 Tuesday in a playoff against Phil Rodgers and Jacky Cupit.

The victory qualified Palmer for the World Series of Golf, which will be played at Firestone Sept. 7-8, with Nicklaus, Julius Boros and Bob Charles making up the field of champions.

Boros Contender

Boros and Charles also are in the Classic field, and the 43-year-old Boros, having one of his greatest years, is a solid contender for the top prize of $9,000.

Most of the leading money winners on the PGA tour will be in the tournament with the exception of Sam Snead, Bill Casper and Gene Littler.

Snead withdrew because of business commitments. Casper, who put on a great drive Sunday to win the Insurance Open in Hartford after a 3-month layoff, decided to pass up the Classic.

Casper has had trouble with his right hand and said he did not want to take a chance on re-injuring it in Firestone's heavy rough.

Littler, No. 8 on this year's list of leading money winners, failed to make the cut in the Insurance Open and withdrew from the Classic because "I haven't been feeling up to snuff."

Gary Player, another of the favorites, will be making his first appearance in a tournament since the PGA in Dallas. Gary has been resting at his home in the Bahamas.

Top Shape

The Firestone course, benefiting from rains earlier in the week, is in excellent condition. In fact, the rough was trimmed a bit Tuesday night after Palmer defeated Rodgers by 5 strokes and Cupit by 6 in the playoff.

The tournament will be televised nationally over the weekend with ABC carrying it from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m., CST, Saturday and from 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m., CST, Sunday.

In the event of a tie, a sudden death playoff will be held immediately after the final round Sunday.

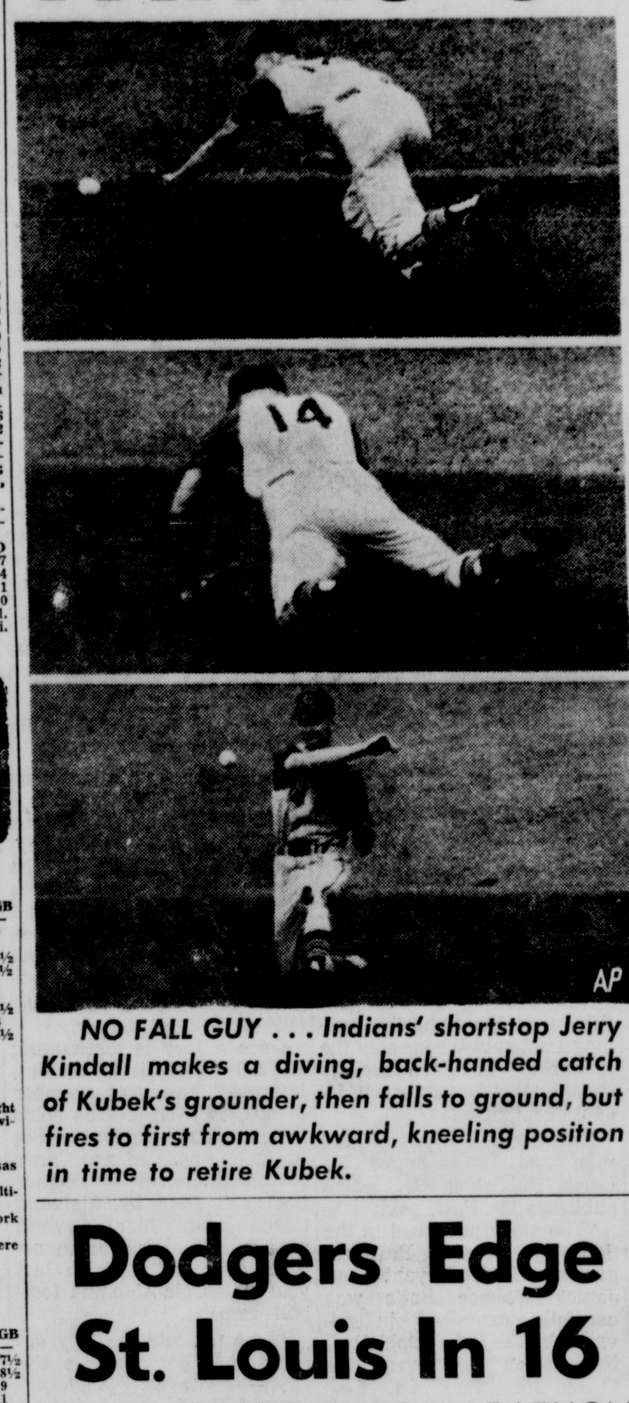

YANKS SWEEP TWO

Free-For-All Erupts In Tilt

. . . NY PASTES INDIANS

New York (AP)—Joe Pepitone drove in the deciding runs as the New York Yankees completed a doubleheader sweep of Cleveland by identical 3-1 scores Wednesday night and precipitated a free-for-all when he was hit by a pitch for the second time in the nightcap.

The twin victories stretched the Yankees' American League lead to 10 games but all was obscured by the melee that broke out in the last of the 8th.

NO FALL GUY . . . Indians' shortstop Jerry Kindall makes a diving, back-handed catch of Kubek's grounder, then falls to ground, but fires to first from awkward, kneeling position in time to retire Kubek.

Pepitone, hit on the wrist by a Barry Latman pitch in the 3rd inning, was nicked by a Gary Bell pitch in the 8th. Pepitone started toward the mound but was restrained by Umpire Lou DiMuro, who immediately warned Bell that he was being fined $50 for throwing an intentional bean ball.

Pepitone jogged to first base, but before Bell could make his next pitch, the Yankee first baseman rushed toward the mound. First baseman Fred Whitfield tried to restrain Pepitone and they wrestled to the ground as both benches and bullpens emptied.

A wild melee broke out in the middle of the diamond between first and second bases with numerous players throwing punches and others trying to break up the battlers. After about 3 minutes, order finally was restored.

Pepitone was ejected for his part in the fight.

Larry Brown, Cleveland shortstop, left the game after the scuffle. It was announced in the press box that he had been spiked during the fight.

Pitches had been going over and behind batters all during the second game with Yankee starter Stan Williams also involved.

Pepitone, who collected 3 hits in the opener, drove in the first two Yankee runs in the nightcap with a double in the first inning following singles by Tony Kubek and Bobby Richardson.

Tresh stroked two doubles, scored the first run and drove in the other two in the opener.

Dodgers Edge St. Louis In 16

. . . ROSEBORO ENDS MARATHON

Los Angeles (AP) — Johnny Roseboro drilled a single past 3rd base in the 16th inning, driving the tie-breaking run and giving the National League leading Los Angeles Dodgers a 2-1 victory over second-place St. Louis.

The triumph increased the Dodgers lead to 7½ games over the Cardinals.

The sudden breakthrough came with two out in the 16th when Ken McMullen bounced a ground rule double over the center field fence and Roseboro followed with his single.

It was the Dodgers' 7th straight victory and their 6th in a row over St. Louis. The largest crowd of the year in the majors—54,125-turned out, hoping to see the Dodgers' Sandy Koufax get his 20th victory.

Koufax left for a pinch hitter in the 12th after spacing 9 hits. He struck out 10 during his stint, fanning Tim McCarver in the 12th for No. 1,400 of his career. Cardinal starter Curt Simmons went out for a pinch hitter in the 14th. He had held the Dodgers to 7 hits.

Pepsis Win Legion Title

Salina, Kan. (UPI)—Omaha, Neb., defeated St. Paul, Minn., 4-3 tonight for the Regional American Legion Baseball crown and a berth in the American Legion "World Series" at Kenne, N. H., Aug. 25-31.

Omaha's big inning was in the 5th. Ron Blessie struck out, but St. Paul catcher John Murray dropped the ball, and then threw it into right field trying to get Blessie at first, who moved to second.

John Vacek followed with a walk, Leonard Boryca singled to load the bases, and Frank Vacek tripled to right field to score 3 runs. It made the score 4-1.

St. Paul pushed across one run in the 9th when Wally Hagberg got a pinch-hit triple and came home on a fielder's choice.

Gerald Beninato worked the first 7 innings and got the victory. He had to leave in the 7th because of a tournament ruling limiting 12 innings of work every 72 hours. Beninato was the winner last night in a 3-2 decision over Enid Oklahoma.

School Days Finish Golfing For Christie Schwartzkopf

. . . BOOKS OCCUPY TEEN PHENOM

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

When the school bells ring to open Lincoln schools Sept. 9, the golf clubs of one of the Capital City's top golfers will go into the closet.

"That (the opening school) generally means the end of the golf season for me," says Christie Schwartzkopf, who at 15 years of age is already one of Lincoln's top golf stars.

But as soon as school ends in early summer, it's back to the fairways for Christie and golf becomes her main activity during the summer months.

"I try to play every day during the summer vacation," she says. "Of course, I don't make that goal, but I generally don't miss more than one day a week."

Competition Limited

Statewide golf tournaments for the female set are limited with only the Ladies State Tourney and the Lincoln City Tournament offering major competition. But Christie keeps busy playing in club tournaments at Hillcrest Country Club and "just playing for fun."

The 1963 season was quite a comedown for the Lincoln High School sophomore in the trophy-collection department as she was upset in the state junior meet and moved up to the regular division of the Lincoln City Tournament where she lost to Jean Hyland in the semifinals.

This meant a slacking off for trophies to add to a large table in the Sam Schwartzkopf home at 930 Eldon Drive where trophies won by the Schwartzkopf family take up one corner of the living room.

Mother At Work

But while Christie wasn't bringing home any major trophies, her mother, Dorothy, added the Lincoln City and Nebraska State trophies to the table.

While she failed to win a major tournament the past year, Christie increased her golf travels and attended a national tournament for the first time.

She qualified in a tie for 5th with an 81 at the Western Girls Junior Tournament in Rockford, Ill. Christie was beaten in a first round match by Paula Smith of Mount Vernon, Ill.

"All the girls there were very serious about their golf," she says. "They all came from states where junior girls golf is a much bigger thing than it is in Nebraska."

Christie explained that other girls in the tournament were from states where they had 50 and more girls playing in their state junior girls tournaments. This is in contrast to Nebraska where only 7 were entered this summer.

Juniors Again In 1964

Christie, who won Lincoln City Junior titles in 1959-61-62 and the state junior crown in 1962, will be playing in the state junior meet again next year when the tourney will be held at the Omaha Field Club. She will not be 16 until after the state tourney and thus will not be eligible to play in the regular division.

But she will play for the regular championship in the Lincoln City Ladies Tournament, thanks to action taken recently by the Lincoln Womens Golf Association.

Chrisite was faced with a dilemma this summer at the conclusion of the Lincoln City Tournament. Each year the junior champion is invited to play with the regular lady golfers, but because Christie was junior champion last year she played with the regular group this summer.

With the junior tourney held in connection with the regular tournament, Christie could not qualify for the regular division next year because she could not play in the juniors this year.

Back To Juniors

This meant that either Christie would have to go back to the junior division next year where she easily outclasses any others in the field or a way had to be found to allow her to play with the regular golfers.

A proposal to cure this situation gained near-unanimous approval from the association. They voted to allow any junior golfer with a 12 or under handicap to play in the regular division.

One of her main goals at present is to win a state championship. She is looking forward to 1965 when she will get her first chance and it will come on her home course, Hillcrest Country Club, site of the 1965 Nebraska State Ladies Tournament.

Top Swimmer

Christie, who was started in golf by her father, Sam, then was turned over to Hillcrest pro Bunny Richards, gave up what was a promising swimming career to concentrate on her golf.

As a member of the Lincoln Swim Club, she and sister Sue, who is also quite a golfer, brought home more than their share of medals from most meets, including a first place in the breaststroke in a national AAU meet at Bartlesville, Okla., in 1959. But shortly after that she gave up swimming.

And now with her eye on 1965 and the state tournament at Hillcrest she has only her mother, Dorothy, and Jean Hyland standing between her and a state crown at the age of 16.

Two Homers By Mathews Pep 6-2 Win

San Francisco (AP) — Eddie Mathews walloped two homers, powering the Milwaukee Braves to a 6-2 victory over San Francisco Wednesday that sent the sagging Giants down to their 5th straight defeat.

The Milwaukee 3rd baseman hit the solo homers, his 17th and 18th, in the first and 5th innings, both off starter and loser Gaylord Perry.

Southpaw Bob Hendley won for the Braves, squaring his record at 8-8.

Milwaukee scored twice in the opening inning on a leadoff triple by Lee Maye, a sacrifice fly by Frank Bolling and Mathews' homer, and never was headed.

The Braves added a run in the 3rd on a single by Bolling and Hank Aaron's double, and made it 4-1 on Mathews 5th inning homer. Joe Torre's bases-loaded single in the 7th inning accounted for the final two runs.

Willie Mays doubled home a San Francisco run in the first and the Giants closed out their scoring in the 6th on a triple by Orlando Cepeda and Jose Pagan's single.

Peters Stops Red Sox, 7-1

Boston (AP) — Left-hander Gary Peters, Chicago White Sox rookie of the year hopeful, stopped Boston, 7-1, on 6 hits Wednesday night for his 9th consecutive victory and 14th of the season.

Peters got able support from rookie teammate Pete Ward, who opened the scoring with a solo homer, his 17th, in the 4th inning. Ward's grounder knocked in the final of 3 White Sox runs in the 5th.

Peters, who struck out 10, entered the contest with the lowest earned run average among major league starters —1.88—and did not damage his cause.

Arnie, Jack Tourney Favorites

Akron, Ohio (AP)— Defending champion Arnold Palmer and long-hitting Jack Nicklaus were solid favorites to win the $50,000 American Golf Classic, which begins Thursday.

Palmer proved he is ready for the 72-hole tournament over the 7,165-yard, par 70 Firestone Country Club course by firing a one-under-par 69 Tuesday in a playoff against Phil Rodgers and Jacky Cupit.

The victory qualified Palmer for the World Series of Golf, which will be played at Firestone Sept. 7-8, with Nicklaus, Julius Boros and Bob Charles making up the field of champions.

Boros Contender

Boros and Charles also are in the Classic field, and the 43-year-old Boros, having one of his greatest years, is a solid contender for the top prize of $9,000.

Most of the leading money-winners on the PGA tour will be in the tournament with the exception of Sam Snead, Bill Casper and Gene Littler.

Snead withdrew because of business commitments. Casper, who put on a great drive Sunday to win the Insurance Open in Hartford after a 3-month layoff, decided to pass up the Classic.

Casper has had trouble with his right hand and said he did not want to take a chance on re-injuring it in Firestone's heavy rough.

Littler, No. 8 on this year's list of leading money winners, failed to make the cut in the Insurance Open and withdrew from the Classic because "I haven't been feeling up to snuff."

Gary Player, another of the favorites, will be making his first appearance in a tournament since the PGA in Dallas. Gary has been resting at his home in the Bahamas.

Top Shape

The Firestone course, benefiting from rains earlier in the week, is in excellent condition. In fact, the rough was trimmed a bit Tuesday night after Palmer defeated Rodgers by 5 strokes and Cupit by 6 in the playoff.

The tournament will be televised nationally over the weekend with ABC carrying it from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m., CST, Saturday and from 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m., CST, Sunday.

In the event of a tie, a sudden death playoff will be held immediately after the final round Sunday.

The triumph increased the Dodgers lead to 7½ games over the Cardinals.

The sudden breakthrough came with two out in the 16th when Ken McMullen bounced a ground rule double over the center field fence and Roseboro followed with his single.

It was the Dodgers' 7th straight victory and their 6th in a row over St. Louis. The largest crowd of the year in the majors—54,125-turned out, hoping to see the Dodgers' Sandy Koufax get his 20th victory.

Koufax left for a pinch hitter in the 12th after spacing 9 hits. He struck out 10 during his stint, fanning Tim McCarver in the 12th for No. 1,400 of his career. Cardinal starter Curt Simmons went out for a pinch hitter in the 14th. He had held the Dodgers to 7 hits.

YANKS SWEEP TWO

Free-For-All Erupts In Tilt

. . . NY PASTES INDIANS

New York (AP)—Joe Pepitone drove in the deciding runs as the New York Yankees completed a doubleheader sweep of Cleveland by identical 3-1 scores Wednesday night and precipitated a free-for-all when he was hit by a pitch for the second time in the nightcap.

The twin victories stretched the Yankees' American League lead to 10 games but all was obscured by the melee that broke out in the last of the 8th.

NO FALL GUY . . . Indians' shortstop Jerry Kindall makes a diving, back-handed catch of Kubek's grounder, then falls to ground, but fires to first from awkward, kneeling position in time to retire Kubek.

Pepitone, hit on the wrist by a Barry Latman pitch in the 3rd inning, was nicked by a Gary Bell pitch in the 8th. Pepitone started toward the mound but was restrained by Umpire Lou DiMuro, who immediately warned Bell that he was being fined $50 for throwing an intentional beanball.

Pepitone jogged to first base, but before Bell could make his next pitch, the Yankee first baseman rushed toward the mound. First baseman Fred Whitfield tried to restrain Pepitone and they wrestled to the ground as both benches and bullpens emptied.

A wild melee broke out in the middle of the diamond between first and second bases with numerous players throwing punches and others trying to break up the battlers. After about 3 minutes, order finally was restored.

Pepitone was ejected for his part in the fight.

Larry Brown, Cleveland shortstop, left the game after the scuffle. It was announced in the press box that he had been spiked during the fight.

Pitches had been going over and behind batters all during the second game with Yankee starter Stan Williams also involved.

Pepitone, who collected 3 hits in the opener, drove in the first two Yankee runs in the nightcap with a double in the first inning following singles by Tony Kubek and Bobby Richardson.

Tresh stroked two doubles, scored the first run and drove in the other two in the opener.

WBA Outlaws Return Terms

. . . IN TITLE FIGHTS

Miami Beach, Fla. (AP) —The World Boxing Association voted Wednesday to suspend any member state approving a championship fight contract with a return bout clause.

The regulation was inspired by the contract Sonny Liston was forced to sign to get the heavy-weight title fight with Floyd Patterson. Delegates described it as the worst ever seen in the boxing business.

Patterson not only was guaranteed a return match, but retained the right to dictate its conditions.

Under new WBA regulations, state boxing commissions will insist on clauses in all contracts stating that there is no other contract, arrangement, or secret agreement assuring a return bout for the champion if he is defeated.

This part of the resolution obviously left a loophole through which a champion in some cases could get a return by being found "most deserving" even though under WBA rules he is dropped to No. 3 contender or lower after losing his crown.

"Suppose Cassius Clay should beat Liston," explained WBA commissioner Abe Greene, reaching way out for an example. "It would be silly to deny a return bout in a situation like that."

The WBA was told Wednesday that Federal control of the sport is a dream that will never be realized.

John Y. Jordan Jr, of Asheville, N. C., former WBA legal counsel, said the bill by the late Sen. Estes Kefauver to set up a federal boxing commission is unconstitutional and will never get out of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

If the bill were passed, he said, Congress would be legislating in a field in which it has no authority.

Nats Get Win Over KC, 5-1

Kansas City (AP)—Home runs by Don Lock and Don Zimmer powered the Washington Senators to a 5-1 victory over Kansas City Wednesday night.

Ron Moeller, former Los Angeles Angels right-hander won his first game with relief help from Ed Roebuck, another ex-Dodger.

Lock hit his 22nd home run in the 4th inning with the bases empty and Zimmer his 12th, with one on, during a 3-run burst that put it away for the Senators in the 8th. Jim King tripled and scored on a single by Lock before Zimmer cracked his drive over the left field fence.

Grid Contest Will Not Be Cancelled

Buffalo, N.Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Bills said Wednesday their exhibition game Aug. 31 with the Denver Broncos at Winston-Salem, N.C., will be played as scheduled.

Denver Coach Jack Faulkner said earlier he understood the game might be moved or cancelled because of a segregation problem.

Buffalo General Manager Dick Gallagher said the American Football League had received assurances in writing that there would be no segregation either in stadium seating or in accommodations for players.

Colts Blank Redlegs, 1-0

Houston (AP)—Houston's Don Nottebart, who allowed a run when he pitched a no-hitter earlier in the season, posted his first shutout of the season by limiting Cincinnati to 4 hits in a 1-0 Colts' victory Wednesday night.

Nottebart, who held Philadelphia hitless in a 4-1 triumph May 17, had to be at his best to get the shutout in a duel with Jim O'Toole.

The victory brought Nottebart's record to 8-5.

Nottebart got into his only jam in the 4th when Tommy Harper led off with a triple, but he pitched out by striking out Vada Pinson, getting Frank Robinson to ground out and Gordy Coleman to foul out. Nottebart wound up with 9 strikeouts.

Juror Says Jury Debated Higher Damages For Butts

Atlanta (AP) —The jury which awarded Wallace Butts $3,060,000 damages in his libel suit against Curtis Publishing Co., considered punitive damages beyond $5 million, a member of the jury said Wednesday.

The juror, in an interview with Fred Russell, sports editor of the Nashville, Tenn., Banner, and made available to The Associated Press, said:

"The jury was unanimous in wanting to assess punitive damages, and some felt so strongly about it that they suggested we ask the judge if we could go beyond $5 million, the amount asked in the suit."

Butts asked $5 million in punitive damages and $5 million in general damages.

The juror told Russell the jury was in agreement that on the evidence, the Saturday Evening Post article which was the basis for the suit was full of "inaccuracies and misquotations and showed terrible carelessness in preparation to be dealing with such serious accusations as 'fix' and 'rig' and 'corrupt'."

Once a jury is discharged, Russell wrote, it is not improper for any member to discuss a case. This holds true, even though the verdict has been appealed and Curtis is the defendant in another libel suit filed by Alabama Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant, as a result of the same article, charging a fix in last year's Georgia-Alabama football game.

The juror said the jury decided the first issue in the case—whether or not the defendant Curtis was guilty of libel-in short order.

"The first vote on that was 11 to 1, and that one man was in no sense a holdout. He just wanted to think about it a little more. We had begun deliberating about 5 after 3 p.m. Monday and I would say we had settled the issue of liability before four o'clock."

Top-Rated Tennis Teams Victorious

Brooklyn, Mass. (AP) — The top-rated men's doubles teams of Mexico and the United States swept through a pair of matches Wednesday and led the bulky field into the 3rd round of the National Doubles Tennis Championships at the Longwood Cricket Club.

Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox of Mexico, defending champions and top-seeded despite their recent loss in the Davis Cup to the United States, turned back Harrison Rowbotham of Wellesley, Mass., and Ralph Stuart of Boston, 6-4, 6-0, 6-3 and John Powless of Cincinnati and Dave Reed of Glendale, Calif., 6-4, 5-7, 7-5, 6-4.

The 1961 champions and conquerors of Osuna-Palafox in the Davis Cup, Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, Tex., and Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., also made it with the loss of one set. After winning their opening match by default, the Americans turned back the teen-age pair of Cliff Richey of Dallas and Dave Power of Fort Collins, Colo., 6-8, 6-1, 6-2, 7-5.

Final Boat Competition Slated For Carter Lake

Omaha (AP)—The 6-state Mid-States Racing Association has scheduled its final outboard motorboat racing competition for Carter Lake at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Lew Nichols, commodore of the association, said about 75 boats will be entered in this event which will determine championships in the 3 classes based in size and power of boats. There will be 12 heats, he said.

Registration Date Set For Midget Footballers

Registration for Midget and Junior football in Lincoln will be held Monday, Aug. 26 at 7 p.m. All boys are to register at the junior high school they attend.

Those eligible are boys 10-13 as of Oct. 31, 1963. Midgets must weigh 80-115 lbs. and Juniors can weigh 117-140 lbs.

Post Continuing 'Forceful' Policy

New York (AP) — The publishers of the Saturday evening Post said Wednesday the magazine will continue to speak out "forcefully on issues of importance."

Matthew J. Culligan, chairman and president of the Curtis Publishing Co., which publishes the Post, said:

"The story published in the Saturday Evening Post regarding Paul Bryant and James Wallace Butts was carefully examined in advance by the Philadelphia law firm which has served the Curtis Publishing Co. for many years.

"Based upon their opinion that evidence justified publication, the article was subsequently printed in the Post.

WBA Outlaws Return Terms

. . . IN TITLE FIGHTS

Miami Beach, Fla. (AP) —The World Boxing Association voted Wednesday to suspend any member state approving a championship fight contract with a return bout clause.

The regulation was inspired by the contract Sonny Liston was forced to sign to get the heavy-weight title fight with Floyd Patterson. Delegates described it as the worst ever seen in the boxing business.

Patterson not only was guaranteed a return match, but retained the right to dictate its conditions.

Under new WBA regulations, state boxing commissions will insist on clauses in all contracts stating that there is no other contract, arrangement, or secret agreement assuring a return bout for the champion if he is defeated.

A return match will be sanctioned only if the ex-champion justifies it by winning an intervening match or is judged the "most deserving" contender.

This part of the resolution obviously left a loophole through which a champion in some cases could get a return by being found "most deserving" even though under WBA rules he is dropped to No. 3 contender or lower after losing his crown.

"Suppose Cassius Clay should beat Liston," explained WBA commissioner Abe Greene, reaching way out for an example. "It would be silly to deny a return bout in a situation like that."

The WBA was told Wednesday that Federal control of the sport is a dream that will never be realized.

John Y. Jordan Jr. of Asheville, N. C., former WBA legal counsel, said the bill by the late Sen. Estes Kefauver to set up a federal boxing commission is unconstitutional and will never get out of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

If the bill were passed, he said, Congress would be legislating in a field in which it has no authority.

Nats Get Win Over KC, 5-1

Kansas City (AP)—Home runs by Don Lock and Don Zimmer powered the Washington Senators to a 5-1 victory over Kansas City Wednesday night.

Ron Moeller, former Los Angeles Angels right-hander won his first game with relief help from Ed Roebuck, another ex-Dodger.

Lock hit his 22nd home run in the 4th inning with the bases empty and Zimmer his 12th, with one on, during a 3-run burst that put it away for the Senators in the 8th. Jim King tripled and scored on a single by Lock before Zimmer cracked his drive over the left field fence

Buffalo, N.Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Bills said Wednesday their exhibition game Aug. 31 with the Denver Broncos at Winston-Salem, N.C., will be played as scheduled

Buffalo General Manager Dick Gallagher said the American Football League had received assurances in writing that there would be no segregation either in stadium seating or in accommodations for players.

Colts Blank Redlegs, 1-0

Houston (AP)—Houston's Don Nottebart, who allowed a run when he pitched a no-hitter earlier in the season, posted his first shutout of the season by limiting Cincinnati to 4 hits in a 1-0 Colts' victory Wednesday night.

Nottebart, who held Philadelphia hitless in a 4-1 triumph May 17, had to be at his best to get the shutout in a duel with Jim O'Toole.

The victory brought Nottebart's record to 8-5.

Nottebart got into his only jam in the 4th when Tommy Harper led off with a triple, but he pitched out by striking out Vada Pinson, getting Frank Robinson to ground out and Gordy Coleman to foul out. Nottebart wound up with 9 strikeouts.

Top-Rated Tennis Teams Victorious

Brooklyn, Mass. (AP) — The top-rated men's doubles teams of Mexico and the United States swept through a pair of matches Wednesday and led the bulky field into the 3rd round of the National Doubles Tennis Championships at the Longwood Cricket Club.

Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox of Mexico, defending champions and top-seeded despite their recent loss in the Davis Cup to the United States, turned back Harrison Rowbotham of Wellesley, Mass., and Ralph Stuart of Boston, 6-4, 6-0, 6-3 and John Powless of Cincinnati and Dave Reed of Glendale, Calif., 6-4, 5-7, 7-5, 6-4.

The 1961 champions and conquerors of Osuna-Palafox in the Davis Cup, Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, Tex., and Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif, also made it with the loss of one set. After winning their opening match by default, the Americans turned back the teen-age pair of Cliff Richey of Dallas and Dave Power of Fort Collins, Colo., 6-8, 6-1, 6-2, 7-5.

Lew Nichols, commodore of the association, said about 75 boats will be entered in this event which will determine championships in the 3 classes based in size and power of boats. There will be 12 heats, he said.

Juror Says Jury Debated Higher Damages For Butts

Atlanta (AP) — The jury which awarded Wallace Butts $3,060,000 damages in his libel suit against Curtis Publishing Co., considered punitive damages beyond $5 million, a member of the jury said Wednesday.

The juror, in an interview with Fred Russell, sports editor of the Nashville, Tenn., Banner, and made available to The Associated Press, said:

"The jury was unanimous in wanting to assess punitive damages, and some felt so strongly about it that they suggested we ask the judge if we could go beyond $5 million, the amount asked in the suit."

Butts asked $5 million in punitive damages and $5 million in general damages.

The juror told Russell the jury was in agreement that on the evidence, the Saturday Evening Post article which was the basis for the suit was full of "inaccuracies and misquotations and showed terrible carelessness in preparation to be dealing with such serious accusations as 'fix' and 'rig' and 'corrupt'."

Once a jury is discharged, Russell wrote, it is not improper for any member to discuss a case. This holds true, even though the verdict has been appealed and Curtis is the defendant in another libel suit filed by Alabama Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant, as a result of the same article, charging a fix in last year's Georgia-Alabama football game.

The juror said the jury decided the first issue in the case—whether or not the defendant Curtis was guilty of libel-in short order.

"The first vote on that was 11 to 1, and that one man was in no sense a holdout. He just wanted to think about it a little more. We had begun deliberating about 5 after 3 p.m. Monday and I would say we had settled the issue of liability before four o'clock."

Post Continuing 'Forceful' Policy

New York (AP) — The publishers of the Saturday evening Post said Wednesday the magazine will continue to speak out "forcefully on issues of importance."

Matthew J. Culligan, chairman and president of the Curtis Publishing Co., which publishes the Post, said:

"The story published in the Saturday Evening Post regarding Paul Bryant and James Wallace Butts was carefully examined in advance by the Philadelphia law firm which has served the Curtis Publishing Co for many years.

"Based upon their opinion that evidence justified publication, the article was subsequently printed in the Post.

Lynch Wallops 15th Pinch HR

Chicago (AP)—Jerry Lynch set a major league record with his 15th career pinch hit home run in the ninth inning Wednesday to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 7-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Lynch homered off Lindy McDaniel.

The pinch homer broke the major league record of 14, set by George Crowe.

Pirate relief pitcher Harvey Haddix tied a National League mark of 3 wild pitches in one inning in the scrambling game. He wild pitched what was the tying run at the time across the plate, and the lead run at that point to second, 3rd and home, in the 6th inning.

Antelope Thriving In Nebraska Area

Game-management technicians have good news for the 1,250 hunters holding permits to take part in the antelope season this year. The annual aerial inventory showed pronghorns thriving on the 5,570 square miles of range they inhabit, with approximately the same number observed as were sighted in 1962. The survey results released by the Game Commission indicated increases in three of the 5 management areas.

"We feel the antelope herd is in excellent condition," said M. O. Steen, Commission director. "Each year the herd shows healthy growth. This means we will be able to provide more fine sport for more people each year and still maintain a sound pronghorn population."

The antelope season will run Sept. 21 through 23.

TWINS SURGE PAST DETROIT

Detroit (AP) — The Minnesota Twins built up a huge lead for Camilo Pascual on 8 and 4-run rallies in the first 5 innings and he coasted to his 16th victory in a 12-1 rout of Detroit Wednesday.

Don Mincher led the Twins' 15-hit attack with a double, single and homer. Mincher drove in 4 runs. Rich Rollins drove in 3 runs with two singles before leaving the game with a sprained wrist.

Pascual gave up only 6 hits in posting his 6th straight victory and 9th in his last 10 decisions.

Barber Posts 18th Win As Orioles, L.A. Split

Baltimore (AP) — A bloop single by pinch hitter Bob Rodger in the 7th inning drove home the winning run Wednesday night as the Los Angeles Angels edged Baltimore 3-2 and gained a doubleheader split.

The Orioles won the opener 7-4 after scoring 6 runs in the second inning.

Relief pitchers played starring roles in each game. Baltimore's Dick Hall, who hasn't allowed a run in his last 20 innings of relief covering 7 appearances, preserved Steve Barber's 18th victory in the opener as he gave up just two singles over the final 3⅓ innings.

In the nightcap, veteran Art Fowler yielded only two hits in 4⅔ innings and picked up the victory in relief of Dan Osinski. Fowler entered the game with the bases loaded in the 5th and got Jack Brandt to hit into an inning-ending double play.

Lynch Wallops 15th Pinch HR

Chicago (AP)—Jerry Lynch set a major league record with his 15th career pinch hit-home run in the ninth inning Wednesday to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 7-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Lynch homered off Lindy McDaniel.

The pinch homer broke the major league record of 14, set by George Crowe.

Pirate relief pitcher Harvey Haddix tied a National League mark of 3 wild pitches in one inning in the scrambling game. He wild pitched what was the tying run at the time across the plate, and the lead run at that point to second, 3rd and home, in the 6th inning.

Antelope Thriving In Nebraska Area

Game-management technicians have good news for the 1,250 hunters holding permits to take part in the antelope season this year. The annual aerial inventory showed pronghorns thriving on the 5,570 square miles of range they inhabit, with approximately the same number observed as were sighted in 1962. The survey results released by the Game Commission indicated increases in three of the 5 management areas.

"We feel the antelope herd is in excellent condition," said M. O. Steen, Commission director. "Each year the herd shows healthy growth. This means we will be able to provide more fine sport for more people each year and still maintain a sound pronghorn population."

The antelope season will run Sept. 21 through 23.

TWINS SURGE PAST DETROIT

Detroit (AP) — The Minnesota Twins built up a huge lead for Camilo Pascual on 8 and 4-run rallies in the first 5 innings and he coasted to his 16th victory in a 12-1 rout of Detroit Wednesday.

Don Mincher led the Twins' 15-hit attack with a double, single and homer. Mincher drove in 4 runs. Rich Rollins drove in 3 runs with two singles before leaving the game with a sprained wrist.

Pascual gave up only 6 hits in posting his 6th straight victory and 9th in his last 10 decisions.

Barber Posts 18th Win As Orioles, L.A. Split

Baltimore (AP) — A bloop single by pinch hitter Bob Rodger in the 7th inning drove home the winning run Wednesday night as the Los Angeles Angels edged Baltimore 3-2 and gained a doubleheader split.

The Orioles won the opener 7-4 after scoring 6 runs in the second inning.

Relief pitchers played starring roles in each game. Baltimore's Dick Hall, who hasn't allowed a run in his last 20 innings of relief covering 7 appearances, preserved Steve Barber's 18th victory in the opener as he gave up just two singles over the final 3⅓ innings.

In the nightcap, veteran Art Fowler yielded only two hits in 4⅔ innings and picked up the victory in relief of Dan Osinski. Fowler entered the game with the bases loaded in the 5th and got Jack Brandt to hit into an inning-ending double play.

Tension Simmers After Birmingham Bombing

Birmingham, Ala. (AP) — Racial tension simmered Wednesday after the dynamiting of a Negro attorney's house, but there appeared to be no break in efforts between white and Negro leaders to keep the peace.

Angry Negroes roamed the streets after the home of Arthur D. Shores was dynamited Tuesday night. They hurled rocks at police and passersby.

After more than two hours the crowd dispersed.

The tension remained, but there was no violence like that which followed similar bombings last May.

Alone At Home

Shores, 51, was home alone. He was not hurt. His wife and daughter had gone to a movie.

There were these developments:

—The city council announced a plan to offer $50,000 in rewards in connection with the bombing of Shores' house, the two May bombings and a tear gas incident in a department store last week.

—A U.S. attorney issued what he said was an unprecedented statement saying that Tuesday night's violence was the direct result of false charges concerning last May's dynamitings.

—An integration group appealed for Negroes and white persons alike to refrain from further violence.

The city council's proposal to raise the reward money from public donations covers incidents which have occurred since the council was elected April 2.

Council President M. E. Wiggins said $8,000 had been received in the first hour since the proposal was announced.

Five Negroes were arrested Tuesday night on charges of disorderly conduct and rock-throwing. Another was charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

In a surprise announcement Wednesday, U.S. Atty. Macon L. Weaver said the violence after Tuesday night's bombing was the direct result of false charges after the May blasts.

Delve Into Charges

Weaver said the FBI had delved into charges "well known in the Negro community" that two Birmingham policemen were responsible for the earlier bombings. He said FBI agents found nothing to substantiate such charges.

"The rocking and stoning of the police department Tuesday night was a direct result of this falsehood that is being circulated in the Negro community," Weaver said.

He said the report was circulated after a Negro man said he saw two policemen bomb the residence of the Rev. A. D. King, brother of integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., last May 11.

The bombing of King's house and a motel used as a desegregation campaign headquarters set off rioting in whch more than 50 persons were injured.

Weaver said the FBI is working closely with local police in investigating the bombings.

He said the dynamiting of Shores' house "constitutes an unprovoked attack on the peace and tranquility of this community, an act calculated to cause further racial unrest."

The Alabama Christian Movement for Human rights, a Birmingham-based integration group, issued a statement calling on Negroes and whites to keep the peace "which was wrought by faith" and to refrain from further violence.

Integration will begin with the 12th grade.

Negro To Keep Fighting

Birmingham, Ala. (AP) — A Negro attorney who has spent most of his career battling for racial equality says he won't let the dynamiting of his home stop him.

But, Arthur D. Shores says, he is baffled as to why he should be singled out in the latest bombing attack in Alabama's racial troubles.

"I am not involved in the school integration case at all, and the last controversial case I handled was the University of Alabama integration case involving James Hood," said the 51-year-old lawyer.

Because Of Health

Shores announced two weeks ago that Hood had withdrawn from the university at Tuscaloosa after attending classes for two months. Shores said the student withdrew because of his health.

Birmingham schools are scheduled to be desegregated next month under federal court orders.

Shores, small in stature, stands high among the members of the Negro community. He is the city's most successful Negro lawyer. He got his reputation through the civil rights struggle.

He also is well regarded in the white community and has gained the confidence of some of the city's most influential white political leaders.

Line Open

When communications between white and Negroes were all but lost, the line to Shores remained open. He was one source the white leaders never cut off.

He is a familiar figure in Birmingham courtrooms, where he speaks quietly and sometimes humbly as he pleads the cause for human dignity for the Negro.

Slightly over 5 feet tall, the only distinctive feature of the dark Negro man is a close-cropped moustache. He is a native of Birmingham.

Despairing

Sitting in the wreckage of his house, which Shores said cost "about $50,000 with the improvements I've made," he appears despairing. Damage in Tuesday night's bombing was estimated at about $8,000.

Shores was home alone, but was not hurt.

Despair is nothing new to Shores. Many times he has been defeated in the courts and his clients went to jail.

But he never stopped hoping.

"That's what the courts are for—hope," he once said after scores of Negro demonstrators he was defending were sent to jail for parading with out a permit.

"If you don't have the courts, you don't have anything," he said.

He likes flowers, especially roses, and sometimes after a particularly trying time in court, he quietly goes home to tend his rose bushes.

"There are thorns everywhere, but the roses always bloom," he said philosophically.

Shores lost again when he ran for the Alabama legislature last summer. He campaigned for better race relations.

But he spoke out for what he believed to be right, and said "the rapidity with which we progress and move forward on every front will be directly determined by how we cope with this situation."

And now, he appears more determined that his fight for human dignity will continue.

"I can't let this interfere with what we are hoping for the future," he said.

In his eyes is a faraway look.

"We can't give up now."

Philanthropist Dies

Lord Nuffield, above, British motor magnate and philanthropist who gave away more than $84 million, died Wednesday in London at the age of 85. Nuffield, who was born William Morris, started in business as a bicycle repair man. He then started manufacturing cars and made an immense fortune. He had been ill with cardiac asthma since June 10.

11-Year-Old Has Twins

Steyr, Austria (AP) — A 11-year-old girl has given birth to twins, police reported. They said the father of the twins was the girl's 39-year-old step-father. He was arrested.

Tension Simmers After Birmingham Bombing

Birmingham, Ala. (AP) — Racial tension simmered Wednesday after the dynamiting of a Negro attorney's house, but there appeared to be no break in efforts between white and Negro leaders to keep the peace.

Angry Negroes roamed the streets after the home of Arthur D. Shores was dynamited Tuesday night. They hurled rocks at police and passersby.

After more than two hours the crowd dispersed.

The tension remained, but there was no violence like that which followed similar bombings last May.

Alone At Home

Shores, 51, was home alone. He was not hurt. His wife and daughter had gone to a movie.

There were these developments:

—The city council announced a plan to offer $50,000 in rewards in connection with the bombing of Shores' house, the two May bombings and a tear gas incident in a department store last week.

—A U.S. attorney issued what he said was an unprecedented statement saying that Tuesday night's violence was the direct result of false charges concerning last May's dynamitings.

—An integration group appealed for Negroes and white persons alike to refrain from further violence.

The city council's proposal to raise the reward money from public donations covers incidents which have occurred since the council was elected April 2.

Council President M. E. Wiggins said $8,000 had been received in the first hour since the proposal was announced.

Five Negroes were arrested Tuesday night on charges of disorderly conduct and rock-throwing. Another was charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

In a surprise announcement Wednesday, U.S. Atty. Macon L. Weaver said the violence after Tuesday night's bombing was the direct result of false charges after the May blasts.

Delve Into Charges

Weaver said the FBI had delved into charges "well known in the Negro community" that two Birmingham policemen were responsible for the earlier bombings. He said FBI agents found nothing to substantiate such charges.

"The rocking and stoning of the police department Tuesday night was a direct result of this falsehood that is being circulated in the Negro community," Weaver said.

He said the report was circulated after a Negro man said he saw two policemen bomb the residence of the Rev. A. D. King, brother of integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., last May 11.

The bombing of King's house and a motel used as a desegregation campaign headquarters set off rioting in which more than 50 persons were injured.

Weaver said the FBI is working closely with local police in investigating the bombings.

He said the dynamiting of Shores' house "constitutes an unprovoked attack on the peace and tranquility of this community, an act calculated to cause further racial unrest."

The Alabama Christian Movement for Human rights, a Birmingham-based integration group, issued a statement calling on Negroes and whites to keep the peace "which was wrought by faith" and to refrain from further violence.

Birmingham city schools have been ordered by the federal courts to start desegregation at the beginning of the fall term Sept. 4.

Integration will begin with the 12th grade.

Negro To Keep Fighting

Birmingham, Ala. (AP) — A Negro attorney who has spent most of his career battling for racial equality says he won't let the dynamiting of his home stop him.

But, Arthur D. Shores says, he is baffled as to why he should be singled out in the latest bombing attack in Alabama's racial troubles.

"I am not involved in the school integration case at all, and the last controversial case I handled was the University of Alabama integration case involving James Hood," said the 51-year-old lawyer.

Because Of Health

Shores announced two weeks ago that Hood had withdrawn from the university at Tuscaloosa after attending classes for two months. Shores said the student withdrew because of his health.

Birmingham schools are scheduled to be desegregated next month under federal court orders.

Shores, small in stature, stands high among the members of the Negro community. He is the city's most successful Negro lawyer. He got his reputation through the civil rights struggle.

He also is well regarded in the white community and has gained the confidence of some of the city's most influential white political leaders.

Line Open

When communications between white and Negroes were all but lost, the line to Shores remained open. He was one source the white leaders never cut off.

He is a familiar figure in Birmingham courtrooms, where he speaks quietly and sometimes humbly as he pleads the cause for human dignity for the Negro.

Slightly over 5 feet tall, the only distinctive feature of the dark Negro man is a close-cropped moustache. He is a native of Birmingham.

Despairing

Sitting in the wreckage of his house, which Shores said cost "about $50,000 with the improvements I've made," he appears despairing. Damage in Tuesday night's bombing was estimated at about $8,000

Shores was home alone, but was not hurt.

Despair is nothing new to Shores. Many times he has been defeated in the courts and his clients went to jail.

But he never stopped hoping.

"That's what the courts are for—hope," he once said after scores of Negro demonstrators he was defending were sent to jail for parading with out a permit.

"If you don't have the courts, you don't have anything," he said.

He likes flowers, especially roses, and sometimes after a particularly trying time in court, he quietly goes home to tend his rose bushes.

"There are thorns everywhere, but the roses always bloom," he said philosophically.

Shores lost again when he ran for the Alabama legislature last summer. He campaigned for better race relations.

But he spoke out for what he believed to be right, and said "the rapidity with which we progress and move forward on every front will be directly determined by how we cope with this situation."

And now, he appears more determined that his fight for human dignity will continue.

"I can't let this interfere with what we are hoping for the future," he said.

In his eyes is a faraway look.

"We can't give up now."

Philanthropist Dies

Lord Nuffield, above, British motor magnate and philanthropist who gave away more than $84 million, died Wednesday in London at the age of 85. Nuffield, who was born William Morris, started in business as a bicycle repair man. He then started manufacturing cars and made an immense fortune. He had been ill with cardiac asthma since June 10.

11-Year-Old Has Twins

Steyr, Austria (AP) — A 11-year-old girl has given birth to twins, police reported. They said the father of the twins was the girl's 39-year-old step-father. He was arrested.

WSCS Told To Start Mission Search

Some 300 women of the Nebraska Methodist Woman's Society of Christian Service were charged with the responsibility of initiating a 20th century search for understanding of role of missions, Wednesday evening.

Dr. Alva Clark, pastor of St. Paul Methodist Church in Omaha, presented the first directive for the next year's Methodist query into Christian service—"Our Mission Today."

Dr. Clark reviewed the book, "Our Mission Today," by Tracey K. Jones Jr., associate general secretary of the Methodist division of World Missions.

The book is to serve as a guideline for next year's discussions of witness and mission in the Methodist Church.

The tasks before the group as outlined by Dr. Clark was ——To revise the protestant philosophy of mission developed in the 19th century.

——To revise the attitude that "people who did not know Christ would go to hell if they did not know him."

——To change the motivation from civilizing the barbarian—saving the heathen, pacifying the enemy, or exploiting the energy of the less developed civilizations of the world.

Formidable Foes

Christianity is, according to Dr. Clark and Jones, pitted against Budda, Mohammed, Gandhi and Marx.

To win, Christianity cannot turn to pride because the people are not below us, or to power, or anticommunism, but rather to human compassion, the love of God, and the tolerance and joy inherent in Christianity, Dr. Clark said.

A person failing to accept witness and mission as a part of his faith was in fact refusing Christianity, he added.

Dr. Clark spoke at the School of Missions and Christian Service, continuing through Friday on the Wesleyan University campus.

'Lutheran Member Growth Outstripping Church Force'

Seward — "Our membership is growing more rapidly than the needed workers can be obtained," said a resolution adopted by 150 Lutheran congregations at the Northern Nebraska District Convention of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

The church group urged pastors, teachers, and parents to promote interest among young people for full-time church work.

"Today's challenge is the shortage of pastors and lay teachers," said Paul Steffens of Lincoln, education counselor of the Southern Nebraska District.

Citing adult education as the most urgent frontier of the church, he said, "The Lord is ringing the alarm so that we don't go to sleep spiritually."

The Rev. Walter Barth of Omaha, district executive secretary, made a plea for the church's progress.

"Regardless of rank and position," he said, "I hope and pray that the Lord will use all of us in the building of Christ's kingdom."

The convention closes Thursday.

IRON MANHOLE COVERS TO BE AUCTIONED OFF

Dereham, England (AP) — More than 2,000 cast iron manhole covers will be auctioned off here Thursday.

"The trouble with manhole covers," said a spokesman for the auctioneers, "is that there's nothing you can do with them except cover manholes." He said they would probably go to some scrap iron merchant.

WSCS Told To Start Mission Search

Some 300 women of the Nebraska Methodist Woman's Society of Christian Service were charged with the responsibility of initiating a 20th century search for understanding of role of missions, Wednesday evening.

Dr. Alva Clark, pastor of St. Paul Methodist Church in Omaha, presented the first directive for the next year's Methodist query into Christian service—"Our Mission Today."

Dr. Clark reviewed the book, "Our Mission Today," by Tracey K. Jones Jr., associate general secretary of the Methodist division of World Missions.

The book is to serve as a guideline for next year's discussions of witness and mission in the Methodist Church.

The tasks before the group as outlined by Dr. Clark was ——To revise the protestant philosophy of mission developed in the 19th century.

——To revise the attitude that "people who did not know Christ would go to hell if they did not know him."

——To change the motivation from civilizing the barbarian—saving the heathen, pacifying the enemy, or exploiting the energy of the less developed civilizations of the world.

Formidable Foes

Christianity is, according to Dr. Clark and Jones, pitted against Budda, Mohammed, Gandhi and Marx.

To win, Christianity cannot turn to pride because the people are not below us, or to power, or anticommunism, but rather to human compassion, the love of God, and the tolerance and joy inherent in Christianity, Dr. Clark said.

A person failing to accept witness and mission as a part of his faith was in fact refusing Christianity, he added.

Dr. Clark spoke at the School of Missions and Christian Service, continuing through Friday on the Wesleyan University campus.

'Lutheran Member Growth Outstripping Church Force'

Seward — "Our membership is growing more rapidly than the needed workers can be obtained," said a resolution adopted by 150 Lutheran congregations at the Northern Nebraska District Convention of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

The church group urged pastors, teachers, and parents to promote interest among young people for full-time church work.

"Today's challenge is the shortage of pastors and lay teachers," said Paul Steffens of Lincoln, education counselor of the Southern Nebraska District.

Citing adult education as the most urgent frontier of the church, he said, "The Lord is ringing the alarm so that we don't go to sleep spiritually."

The Rev. Walter Barth of Omaha; district executive secretary, made a plea for the church's progress.

"Regardless of rank and position," he said, "I hope and pray that the Lord will use all of us in the building of Christ's kingdom."

The convention closes Thursday.

IRON MANHOLE COVERS TO BE AUCTIONED OFF

Dereham, England (AP) — More than 2,000 cast iron manhole covers will be auctioned off here Thursday.

"The trouble with manhole covers," said a spokesman for the auctioneers, "is that there's nothing you can do with them except cover manholes." He said they would probably go to some scrap iron merchant.

Two Amendments Nailed Into Aid Bill

Washington (AP) — House Republicans nailed two important amendments into the administration's foreign aid bill Wednesday, but failed with a third. Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., took the floor against it.

The white-haired Democratic leader said the amendment would "seriously impair" the Development Loan Fund, which was initiated under the administration of President Eisenhower.

"Are we going to deny to President Kennedy what we gave to President Eisenhower?" McCormack asked.

It is rare for a speaker to take the floor while the House is considering a bill. When he does, he is throwing the prestige of his office into the balance. It is a signal he regards the issue as of overriding importance.

McCormack's side won by a teller vote of 169 to 155.

The amendment, offered by Rep. Thomas Pelly, R-Wash., would have prohibited the reloaning of development loan funds that are paid back into the fund, and would require a new appropriation in each case.

Pelly contended the arrangement constituted "backdoor spending," or direct borrowing from the Treasury. McCormack and Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., the bill's floor manager, said it was a revolving fund and clearly not backdoor spending.

Amendments

The two amendments tacked onto the bill:

—Minimum interest rates on development loan funds will be 2%. At present they are three quarters of one per cent. The vote was 167 to 143.

—A requirement that 50% of the development loan funds be used for "purposes of economic development through private enterprise. The vote was 142 to 126.

Both of these non-recorded votes are subject to reconsideration on a roll call vote when the House completes action on the bill, possibly Thursday.

'Grant Program'

The minimum interest rate amendment was offered by Rep. Edward J. Derwinski, R-Ill. He said "if it's going to be a grant program, let's call it a grant program."

Grants are outright gifts. The Development Loan Fund was started in 1957 in an effort to get American aid onto a loan basis instead.

Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, said "you can't charge more than a country can pay. The effect of this would be to drive this back to a straight grant program. It would be a step backward."

Protested

Rep. E. Ross Adair, R-Ind., offered the amendment requiring 50% of the loans to be used "through private enterprise." Several members protested that the wording was unclear and it was not certain what the amendment would do.

Hays said that in Latin America, it would either cause a 50% reduction in loans that would otherwise be made. or it would channel money into the hands of "the people who are funneling money into Swiss bank accounts." He said he knew Adair did not intend this.

Morgan, arguing against the Adair amendment, said in many underdeveloped countries, there aren't enough avenues of private enterprise to soak up 50% of the loans the country might need.

Washington (AP) — William Dalton is resigning as president and executive head of the National Community Television Association, effective Oct. 1, it was announced Wednesday.

The announcement was made jointly by Dalton and Fred J. Stevenson, chairman of the association and owner of a community antenna system in Rogers, Ark.

The announcement said Dalton, a native of Lincoln, Nebr., who has been prominent in organization and marketing activities in Washington and New York, will continue as a consultant to the association. He said he would not disclose his other plans "until the transition date arrives."

Sergeant Once Over Mussolini Is Killed By Fall

Bergamo, Italy (AP)—Benito Mussolini's sergeant in World War I was found dead Tuesday in a ravine near his home. An accidental fall killed him.

Antonio Rinaldi, 68, failed to return from a walk Sunday. His brother discovered the body.

Rinaldi was sergeant of the platoon in which Mussolini served from 1915 to 1918. Italy's future Fascist dictator was a corporal.

MARTHA PLAYS SEXPOT

Actress Martha Hyer, known to movie-goers as a portrayer of the high-type lady, is doing an about-face for her role in this movie called "The Carpetbaggers." Martha plays the part of a Hollywood call girl named Jennie Danton. "It's the role I've been waiting for all my life," says Miss Hyer. "I'm weary of those lady-like roles."

Probe Is Ordered Into Case Of Judge's Son

New York (UPI) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller Wednesday ordered an investigation into the handling of the case of a city judge's son involved in a traffic accident here which claimed 5 lives.

It was the first time Rockefeller had become officially involved in the legal proceedings concerning Gareth Martinis, 23, whose father, Joseph, is a Bronx criminal court judge.

Martinis had been indicted by a grand jury on vehicular homicide charges in the deaths last May of 5 persons in a 3-car crash on the Henry Hudson Parkway.

Prior to the indictment, he was acquitted by a 3-judge criminal court panel composed of colleagues of his father on charges of drunken and reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident. The jurists deliberated 5 minutes in reaching a verdict.

A storm of protest over the acquittal and handling of the case resulted, and the grand jury later indicted Martinis.

A spokesman for Rockefeller said here Wednesday the governor has ordered his special investigator, Herman Stichman, to look into the case. He did not elaborate, but said Rockefeller made the decision after a meeting with Stichman in the governor's New York office.

Stichman is an assistant state attorney general.

Meanwhile, a Bronx detective who testified he could not swear Martinis was drunk 3 hours after the accident has resigned from the force to become a fireman, it was disclosed Wednesday.

Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy said Thomas M. Rocks resigned effective Aug. 12 and now is in fire training at a reduction in pay. No reason was given for the switch in jobs.

Rocks, 30, spoke to Martinis several hours after the accident. Deputy Police Commissioner John Walsh said. The ex-policeman later testified before the 3 judges he could not say that Martinis was drunk at the time.

News photographers and 3 other policemen offered conflicting testimony, to the effect that Martinis was drunk at the time.

Multimillion Damage Suit In U.S. Court

W. D. Ferguson of 3400 No. Cotner Blvd. filed 3 suits in U.S. District Court asking total damages of $75 million.

In a suit filed against County Atty Paul Douglas, Kenneth L. Ferguson, Dale E. Fahrnbruch, William F. Seacrest, Judge Ralph Slocum, The First Continental National Bank and Trust Co., the Havelock National Bank and Sheriff Merle Karnopp, Ferguson asked damages of $25 million for alleged irregularities in the handling of money belonging to the Cornhusker Sales and Rentals Corp.

The suit alleges that the defendents "defrauded plaintiff and family of great sums of money, undetermined amounts through mail frauds, false information, false mortgages and telephone fraud and have wrecked the health and well-being of the plaintiff and numerous threats."

A second suit asking $25 million lists as defendents Jean Murray, Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Gib Laws, Lowell Jackson, Loyd Worley, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America Local 286, County Atty. Douglas, Adult Probation Officer Paul Beave and the Havelock National Bank.

Ferguson listed "refusal of employment" and the honoring of "unauthorized and forged signature checks" among his causes of action on the second suit.

A third $25 million damage suit was filed by Ferguson against S. E. Copple, president of the Commonwealth Co., County Clerk Carl S. Hartman and the Commonwealth Co., charging transferral of property "through forgery and unauthorized statements."

Blue Chips Dip, Others Gain On Mixed Market

New York (AP)—Blue chips took a back seat and less seasoned issues went to the fore Wednesday in an irregular stock market. Trading was moderate.

Most of the popular market averages took small losses but a few more stocks advanced than declined on the New York Stock Exchange.

The decision of directors of American Telephone to declare just the regular 90-cent dividend at this time and not to raise it, as some had expected, led to a degree of disappointed selling in this stock. AT&T slipped ¾ to 123.

Continued failure to reach an agreement which would stave off the Aug. 29 deadline for a national railway strike tended to restrain market activity among the market wheelhorses, such as the prominent oils, steels, motors, utilities and rails. But most changes were fractional.

The Dow Jones industrial average was off 1.55 at 715.72.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks, off .4 at 276.0, with industrials down .2, rails down .4 and utilities down .5.

Of the 1,302 issues traded, however, gainers outnumbered losers by 502 to 493. New highs for the year totaled 57 and new lows 12.

An irregularly higher trend prevailed on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was 1.28 million shares compared with 1.14 million Tuesday.

Corporate and U.S. government bonds were generally lower.

Two Amendments Nailed Into Aid Bill

Washington (AP) — House Republicans nailed two important amendments into the administration's foreign aid bill Wednesday, but failed with a third. Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., took the floor against it.

The white-haired Democratic leader said the amendment would "seriously impair" the Development Loan Fund, which was initiated under the administration of President Eisenhower.

"Are we going to deny to President Kennedy what we gave to President Eisenhower?" McCormack asked.

It is rare for a speaker to take the floor while the House is considering a bill. When he does, he is throwing the prestige of his office into the balance. It is a signal he regards the issue as of overriding importance.

McCormack's side won by a teller vote of 169 to 155.

The amendment, offered by Rep. Thomas Pelly, R-Wash., would have prohibited the reloaning of development loan funds that are paid back into the fund, and would require a new appropriation in each case.

Pelly contended the arrangement constituted "backdoor spending," or direct borrowing from the Treasury. McCormack and Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., the bill's floor manager, said it was a revolving fund and clearly not backdoor spending.

Amendments

The two amendments tacked onto the bill:

—Minimum interest rates on development loan funds will be 2%. At present they are three quarters of one per cent. The vote was 167 to 143.

—A requirement that 50% of the development loan funds be used for "purposes of economic development through private enterprise. The vote was 142 to 126.

Both of these non-recorded votes are subject to reconsideration on a roll call vote when the House completes action on the bill, possibly Thursday.

'Grant Program'

The minimum interest rate amendment was offered by Rep. Edward J. Derwinski, R-Ill. He said "if it's going to be a grant program, let's call it a grant program."

Grants are outright gifts. The Development Loan Fund was started in 1957 in an effort to get American aid onto a loan basis instead.

Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, said "you can't charge more than a country can pay. The effect of this would be to drive this back to a straight grant program. It would be a step backward."

Protested

Rep. E. Ross Adair, R-Ind., offered the amendment requiring 50% of the loans to be used "through private enterprise." Several members protested that the wording was unclear and it was not certain what the amendment would do.

Hays said that in Latin America, it would either cause a 50% reduction in loans that would otherwise be made, or it would channel money into the hands of "the people who are funneling money into Swiss bank accounts." He said he knew Adair did not intend this.

Morgan, arguing against the Adair amendment, said in many underdeveloped countries, there aren't enough avenues of private enterprise to soak up 50% of the loans the country might need.

Probe Is Ordered Into Case Of Judge's Son

New York (UPI) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller Wednesday ordered an investigation into the handling of the case of a city judge's son involved in a traffic accident here which claimed 5 lives.

It was the first time Rockefeller had become officially involved in the legal proceedings concerning Gareth Martinis, 23, whose father, Joseph, is a Bronx criminal court judge.

Martinis had been indicted by a grand jury on vehicular homicide charges in the deaths last May of 5 persons in a 3-car crash on the Henry Hudson Parkway.

Prior to the indictment, he was acquitted by a 3-judge criminal court panel composed of colleagues of his father on charges of drunken and reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident. The jurists deliberated 5 minutes in reaching a verdict.

A storm of protest over the acquittal and handling of the case resulted, and the grand jury later indicted Martinis.

A spokesman for Rockefeller said here Wednesday the governor has ordered his special investigator, Herman Stichman, to look into the case. He did not elaborate, but said Rockefeller made the decision after a meeting with Stichman in the governor's New York office.

Stichman is an assistant state attorney general.

Meanwhile, a Bronx detective who testified he could not swear Martinis was drunk 3 hours after the accident has resigned from the force to become a fireman, it was disclosed Wednesday.

Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy said Thomas M. Rocks resigned effective Aug. 12 and now is in fire training at a reduction in pay. No reason was given for the switch in jobs.

Rocks, 30, spoke to Martinis several hours after the accident, Deputy Police Commissioner John Walsh said. The ex-policeman later testified before the 3 judges he could not say that Martinis was drunk at the time.

News photographers and 3 other policemen offered conflicting testimony, to the effect that Martinis was drunk at the time.

Multimillion Damage Suit In U.S. Court

W. D. Ferguson of 3400 No. Cotner Blvd. filed 3 suits in U.S. District Court asking total damages of $75 million.

In a suit filed against County Atty Paul Douglas, Kenneth L. Ferguson, Dale E. Fahrnbruch, William F. Seacrest, Judge Ralph Slocum, The First Continental National Bank and Trust Co., the Havelock National Bank and Sheriff Merle Karnopp, Ferguson asked damages of $25 million for alleged irregularities in the handling of money belonging to the Cornhusker Sales and Rentals Corp.

The suit alleges that the defendents "defrauded plaintiff and family of great sums of money, undetermined amounts through mail frauds, false information, false mortgages and telephone fraud and have wrecked the health and well-being of the plaintiff and numerous threats."

A second suit asking $25 million lists as defendents Jean Murray, Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Gib Laws, Lowell Jackson, Loyd Worley, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America Local 286, County Atty. Douglas, Adult Probation Officer Paul Beave and the Havelock National Bank.

Ferguson listed "refusal of employment" and the honoring of "unauthorized and forged signature checks" among his causes of action on the second suit.

A third $25 million damage suit was filed by Ferguson against S. E. Copple, president of the Commonwealth Co., County Clerk Carl S. Hartman and the Commonwealth Co., charging transferral of property "through forgery and unauthorized statements."

Blue Chips Dip, Others Gain On Mixed Market

New York (AP)—Blue chips took a back seat and less seasoned issues went to the fore Wednesday in an irregular stock market. Trading was moderate.

Most of the popular market averages took small losses but a few more stocks advanced than declined on the New York Stock Exchange.

The decision of directors of American Telephone to declare just the regular 90-cent dividend at this time and not to raise it, as some had expected, led to a degree of disappointed selling in this stock. AT&T slipped ¾ to 122.

Continued failure to reach an agreement which would stave off the Aug. 29 deadline for a national railway strike tended to restrain market activity among the market wheelhorses, such as the prominent oils, steels, motors, utilities and rails. But most changes were fractional.

The Dow Jones industrial average was off 1.35 at 715.72.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks, off .4 at 278.0, with industrials down .2, rails down .4 and utilities down .3.

Of the 1,302 issues traded, however, gainers outnumbered losers by 502 to 483. New highs for the year totaled 57 and new lows 12.

An irregularly higher trend prevailed on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was 1.28 million shares compared with 1.14 million Tuesday.

Corporate and U.S. government bonds were generally lower.

Grain Prices Are Generally Easier

Chicago (AP)—Prices generally were little changed in the grain futures market again Wednesday but mostly easier.

Trade was quiet all around and after the August contract of soybeans expired at noon it virtually ceased. Brokers said the market simply lacks any significant incentives for speculators to do more than small volume buying and selling for quick trades, usually at little profit or loss.

Wheat finished 1¼-1 cent a bushel lower, September $1.79¼; corn ⅛ higher to ⅛ lower, September $1.27⅛-.27⅜; oats unchanged to ⅛ higher, September $1.27⅞-.28; soybeans ⅛-⅜ higher to 1 cent lower, August $2.56⅞-57¼.
